HE DIDN'T LISTEN

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Elizabeth Blakemore warned her 79-year-old husband, Frank, not to go on a fling to the United States.

"I told him, 'you're an old man,' but he didn't listen to me," the 80-year-old wife said today in an interview from the couple's home in Crofton.

On Wednesday, Blakemore, a retired builder, met a young woman on a street in San Francisco and bought her a drink at a night club.

San Francisco police said he accepted readily when she offered to thank him by giving him coffee and breakfast at her apartment.

But when he arrived there she hit him four or five times on the head with a claw hammer, took $1,300 in Canadian bills from his pocket and then shoved him out of the apartment, said patrolmen Larry Minasian and John Murphy.

The officers said the woman called a cab for Blakemore that took him to the police station.

Blakemore was treated at hospital and released.

Mrs. Blakemore was unaware of the incident until contacted by the Times this morning. She said her husband hadn't told her where he was going when he left home Tuesday.

"I thought he was going down to Reno."

She said she had managed to dissuade him from going to the races in Vancouver but not from the trip for which he had been saving for some time.

She was surprised by the amount of money he had taken with him.

"I don't think he had that much. I don't know what he'll do now with no money. I have none.

$25M Ferry Loss Seen by Strachan

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Transport Minister Bob Strachan said today operating losses for B.C. Ferries in the current fiscal year could be $25 million.

The minister blamed increased fuel costs, higher wages to ferry employees and lack of federal financial input for the losses, "vastly increased" over last year's $10.6 million.

But Opposition Leader Bill Bennett charged that the reasoning is simply a smokescreen for Strachan's financial mismanagement.

He said it indicates a "sad state of affairs". Pointing to deficits of $36.4 million in ICBC operations and a loss for B.C. Rail which Bennett estimates will be more than $10 million, the opposition leader said the government can't run away from its responsibilities.

"He's responsible for the ferry authority and if he can't manage the job he should resign," said Bennett.

"The minister just doesn't want to accept the responsibilities—the government of the day is not managing people's tax dollars and it reflects (especially in the case of BCR) on Premier Barrett as the minister of finance," said Bennett.

The minister said his predictions were based only on preliminary indications and the losses have not been computed.

In October Strachan hinted there would be a $20 million loss on the year's operations.

He described the service as a social service to the people —"We have to realize it's not a straight money-making proposition."

The government is always looking at increasing passenger fares but there has been no decision.

One of the main ingredients in the loss position is the high cost of offering restaurant facilities to the passengers, he said, but the government does not intend to scrap offering the service on the ferries.

"If I get too many protests from the people that too much money is coming from general revenue to keep the ferry system operating, we'll have to look at (increasing fares).

"But we also get a large number of letters from people saying the ferries should be free."

Strachan said he is not discouraged by the financial forecast.

"The price of fuel went up three times last year, there was a good wage increase to the ferry employees, and everything we buy has gone up in price."

Crux of the matter is the federal government's refusal

Arm Sewed Back On

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 10-year-old boy's left arm, torn off in an accident in a laundromat, has been re-attached by a team of Vancouver surgeons who give the operation a "good chance" of success.

Richard Burdett, of nearby Richmond, got his uniform dirty helping his little league baseball team win a game Tuesday. That night, as he tried to retrieve the uniform from a laundromat drying machine while it was still working, his arm was caught by the whirling drum and severed between elbow and shoulder.

A surgical team at Vancouver General Hospital began re-attaching the limb within an hour of the accident, and by early Wednesday had finished the complicated job of rejoining bone, blood vessels and nerves.

"Warmth has returned to the arm and there is pulse in the wrist," one of the two surgeons who operated said Wednesday night.

Doctors and police praised the boy's mother, Mrs. Carol Burdett, who made sure that the severed arm went with her son in the ambulance.

Richard was first treated for blood loss at Richmond General Hospital and then quickly transferred to VGH, where the surgical team awaited.

If the operation is successful, it would be only the second such achievement in Canada, one doctor said.

Richmond RCMP said Richard and his mother went to the laundromat about 10 p.m. to have the boy's uniform washed and dried. After washing, the uniform was put into a coin-operated machine called a centrifugal extractor.

Police said that although a notice on the machine warns against forcing the lid open before it opens automatically at the end of its cycle, Richard apparently became impatient.

The extractor's motor stops when the lid is opened, but because the drum is turning at such a high speed it takes some seconds to stop. Police said it appeared the boy reached inside as soon as he raised the lid.

Mrs. Burdett was nearby and didn't know anything was amiss until she heard her son cry out and fall to the floor.

Summer Jobs . . . An Expert's Advice

More than 1,100 young people have registered with the Canada Manpower youth office where there are only 20 jobs on the board — but it is not quite as bad as it seems.

Every day about 20 new jobs come in — and many are filled in the first five minutes.

"We have people who wait around all day and they are first in line when a new job is posted," says Leslie Fiddler, a provincial department of labor employee assisting at the manpower office.

"There are jobs but they go quickly."

But they should check in for a short period of time every day until they find work, she said.

The unskilled jobs tend to go to the first acceptable applicant in line. The skilled jobs are different. The manpower officers will search through their lists to find fully-qualified young people.

"The next action will be in the tourist industry jobs," Fiddler said.

"There is little hope of getting summer employment with the provincial government departments now because the deadline for applications was April 16. Most young people don't realize how early they have to start. We had applications in the last week of March."

Tourist industry jobs will mainly be paying only the minimum wage but they often hire young people with no experience.

"It may not sound like much taking a job as a chambermaid — or perhaps I should say chamberperson — but the work experience is as important as the money. There are a lot of hotels and motels in Victoria and they are all going to need additional staff for the summer."

She said the commonly-heard advice about knocking on as many doors as possible might prove to be counter-productive.

It might be better, she said, to knock on just a few doors on a regular basis so the owner gets to know you.

"If they know you and are impressed, they will hire you as soon as they can. The

CLICHE REPORT PROTEST HALTS OLYMPIC WORK

MONTREAL (CP)—Work at the main Olympic site in the city's east-end was halted today when about 250 construction workers walked off the job, a spokesman for one of the Olympic contractors said.

"Everything has come to a standstill," the spokesman said. "I don't know how long the work stoppage will last."

A spokesman for the Olympic organizing committee said the protest was against the Cliche commission report which recommended four union locals affiliated to the Quebec Federation of Labor be put under trusteeship.

In a related move, construction workers also walked off the job today at two Montreal refineries.

At Petrofina's refinery all 350 construction workers did not report for work and have caused a virtual shutdown of the construction site, the company said.

Supertankers To Anacortes?

SEATTLE (AP) — Shell Oil Co. is planning a sea-island oil terminal capable of handling supertankers at a spot near its Anacortes refinery, company officials say.

Refinery manager Bill Malseed said in an interview the sea island could be operating in Guemes Channel by 1978. It would rest above 70 feet of water about 1,000 feet off the Shell pier at March Point.

He said the $25 million facility could handle easily two 180,000 dead weight ton tankers Shell has on order. The biggest tanker previously to visit Puget Sound was one weighing 138,299 dead weight tons.

Malseed said the terminal would be an offshore pier or deep-water platform that could handle up to three tankers per month unloading crude oil cargoes.

Oil would be pumped ashore via an undersea pipeline to storage tanks. Smaller ships carrying refined products to California would continue to call at Shell's land-based pier.

Boy Lynette, chief advocate for the Coalition Against Oil Pollution, promised to "fight Shell with all the resources we've got.

Jeanne Sauve greets Vietnamese

Viet Refugees in Canada

Times News Services

A total of 153 Vietnamese refugees arrived in Canada by plane today and were taken immediately for customs and immigration processing as well as medical checkups.

Twenty refugees arrived in Vancouver, but moved on immediately; two for Edmonton, five for Toronto. The rest flew on to Montreal.

The refugees are the first of about 3,000 being admitted into the country by the federal government in the next several weeks.

On arrival in Montreal aboard a Canadian Forces Boeing 707 jetliner, the refugees, many smiling, some crying after the flight from Honolulu, were whisked downtown by waiting buses. A number of children were among the arrivals.

Immigration spokesman Patrick Gaudreau said the refugees now would undergo an introduction to the Canadian way of life including everything from how banks work to language instruction and job training.

He said the process could take from five days to several months.

Officials were careful not to allow close contact with the refugees, saying that most had not been properly vaccinated.

They were met in Montreal by Jeanne Sauve, federal environment minister, representing immigration minister Robert Andras, as well as immigration officials and representatives of the newly formed Committee of Assistance for Vietnamese Orphans and Refugees from the Montreal Vietnamese community.

The spokesman said most of the Vietnamese would be settling in Quebec.

CIDA Hid Loan—MPs

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Charges that CIDA, the Canadian International Development Agency, had concealed from parliament and the public that it was providing loans and grants totalling $23.5 million to Cuba, were made in the Commons Wednesday.

Confidential CIDA documents were obtained by the Ottawa Journal. They indicated agreement had been reached by the government agency's top officials at a meeting last December to announce only that $12.5 million was going to Cuba. The Journal published the documents in part Wednesday.

Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp said if the opposition had questions to raise about CIDA they should put them to External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen in the house. The minister was absent from the Commons.

Sharp suggested the opposition use one of its alloted days in the house to question the minister on the charges.

Two Progressive Conservative MPs raised the issue. They were A. D. Alkenbrack (Frontenac-Lennox) and Dan McKenzie (Winnipeg-South Centre).

Alkenbrack attempted to introduce a motion calling for the cancellation of all payments of aid by CIDA to Cuba

Strachan to Fight Body Shop Hikes

The time may have come for the Insurance Corporation of B.C. to start signing contracts with selected auto body shops in the province, Transport Minister Bob Strachan said Wednesday.

Strachan, interviewed on an open line radio program in Vancouver, said the ICBC may have to consider a new system of authorized body shops to avoid what he called unilateral harassment by some shop operators in B.C.

While Strachan was on the program, he was informed for the first time that auto body shops in Victoria plan a substantial increase in rates, over and above the ICBC-approved rate.

The body shops will raise the rate May 15 from $15.50 an hour to $20 an hour.

Strachan said he didn't know how long the corporation could stand the unauthorized rate hikes. He said his reports indicate that the body shops are doing very well under Autoplan.

A spokesman in Strachan's department today explained how an authorized body shop system would work.

The ICBC would negotiate rates with certain body shops around the province and then authorize those shops as Autoplan shops. A motorist with an accident claim would have to take the work to one of the authorized shops. The ICBC would not pay for any work done in a shop which was not authorized under Autoplan.

Individual contracts would be signed with the authorized shops instead of the present system where a province-wide rate is negotiated between the ICBC and the Automotive Retailers' Association representing shop operators.

There are indications today that other body shops in B.C. may also be planning rate hikes similar to those announced for the Victoria area.

A meeting of shop operators on northern Vancouver Island will be held in Parksville Monday to discuss possible implementation of new rates.

Tom Brown, a Nanaimo operator, said some sort of price adjustment is needed "just to let us keep even."

Body shops are now entering contract negotiations with employees and owners are expecting to pay hefty wage increases.

Bob Mussalem, chairman of the Lower Mainland ARA division, said his unit may also be planning rate hikes to about $19.05 an hour and later to $19.95 or $20 an hour.

Barrett Set To Discuss Indian Claim

FORT ST. JAMES (CP) — A spokesman for the Stuart-Trembleur Indian Band said Wednesday Premier Barrett wants leaders of the band to meet him in Victoria to discuss their claim against the British Columbia Railway.

Justa Monk said the band, which for more than a week has blocked the B.C. Rail line on its Tachie Reserve 28 miles northeast of here, was advised that the premier is anxious to meet with them.

Elsewhere in the province, Indians continued sit-ins at the Vernon and Bella Coola offices of the Indian affairs department. Indian pickets at the department office in Kamloops halted work for the third consecutive day.

'Two for Price of One' . . . MPs' Wives Want Pay

OTTAWA (CP)—The wives of some MPs and diplomats say they should get money—or at least a little recognition—for toiling on behalf of their husbands.

Several wives of parliamentarians and diplomats told a seminar here Wednesday that it is time they went on the government payroll for their tasks as hostesses, secretaries and managers for ambitious husbands.

They said a husband's election to the Commons or posting to a foreign country uproots families, cuts short the independent careers of many women and forces wives into unpaid jobs as public servants.

But others said women should be content to do what they can to support their husbands and not push for more independence.

The seminar, sponsored by the Parliamentary Wives' Association, showed widely diverging views between younger and older women on whether the public is getting "two for the price of one" when MPs are elected or diplomats are sent abroad.

Laurette Watts, wife of a diplomat, said she must give up her government policy analyst's job to follow her husband to a posting at the Canadian embassy in Washington.

Such moves are fine for the husband, Mrs. Watts said, "but what about our responsibilities towards ourselves and our own development?" She said the government should consider some form of compensation for wives who interrupt their own careers.

Mauren McTeer, wife of MP Joe Clark PC-Rocky Mountain), said MPs should not be criticized for hiring their wives at government expense to work in their offices.

"Who knows the riding better than the spouse?" Ms. McTeer asked. She said she was startled by criticism of Liberal MP Jim Fleming (York West) when he hired his wife Illona, to work in his parliamentary office.

Eunice Raines, wife of Marke Raines (L-Burnaby-Seymour) said she is "appalled and dismayed" at the amount of work her husband is expected to do. She would gladly sign any petition to grant MPs more time at home with their families and said MPs need a union to fight for better working conditions.

Evelyn Munro, wife of Donald Munro, a former diplomat who now is Conservative MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, said women should consider it a privilege to support their husband's careers.

"Being part of your husband's life should be your career," Mrs. Munro said. "It is up to us to give 100 per cent effort and anything else comes later. Do not let the side down."

Air Canada's Experts 'Aware' of Payment

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada financial experts were aware of an unusual $100,000 payment to a Montreal travel agent last November, the Air Canada inquiry was told Wednesday.

Yves Menard, former Air Canada vice-president of marketing, said he discussed his plan to invest in McGregor Travel Co. Ltd. with Michael Cochrane, the airline's vice-president of finance, before the $100,000 was paid to R. Y. McGregor, travel agency president, Nov. 28 last year.

Gordon Henderson, Air Canada counsel, said later evidence will show that forms approving the payment were checked by the finance division.

"These are controls that work and they did work in this case," Mr. Henderson said.

The government-owned airline is not allowed under the Air Canada Act to own travel agencies.

The inquiry, which resumed Wednesday after a two-day break earlier in the week, continues hearings today.

The inquiry is headed by Mr. Justice Willard Estey of the Supreme Court of Ontario who is investigating the $100,000 payment and financial control and management of Air Canada.

Mr. Menard, who resigned recently as Air Canada vice-president, said it was uncommon to finance the acquisition of a share in a business through his promotional budget.

Earlier in the hearings, he said he had not read documents authorizing the $100,000 payment.

He later told reporters he would not have signed the documents if he had read them. The terms in the documents were different from an original proposal for Air Canada to invest in McGregor Travel as a first step to a minority share for the airline in a network of travel agencies across the country, he said.

The documents indicated the money was for Mr. McGregor's consulting services in influencing provincial, Middle Eastern and Latin American governments for Air Canada.

Mr. McGregor has said the money paid to him personally was taken in as revenue by his company and offset against previous losses for tax purposes.

Mr. McGregor has denied he received a financial kickback for services to Air Canada and said he received no money from McGregor Travel for the $100,000 payment.

Mr. Menard said travel agencies can divert business from one airline to another but Mr. McGregor said earlier he had no power to switch business to Air Canada from other airlines.

The former Air Canada executive also said he had not seen draft proposals indicating one purpose of the McGregor deal was to increase Air Canada ticket revenue provided by McGregor Travel by 20 per cent in 1975.

This was not his understanding of the purpose of the McGregor transaction, he said.

Mr. Menard said he discussed with Mr. Cochrane in general terms his plan to invest in McGregor Travel as a step to a nationwide travel agency.

"He nodded his head and said okay," Mr. Menard said.

But, as he was unaware of the eventual terms with Mr. McGregor, he did not discuss them with Mr. Cochrane.

QUEEN GOES BAREFOOT

Thousands of well-wishers greeted the Queen and Prince Philip as they toured Tokyo and a Japanese bagpiper played Scotland the Brave at the state guest house.

About 400 Japanese members of parliament lined up to give the Queen enthusiastic handshakes. A few of them jumped up and down to get a look at the royal couple. Communist members skipped the ceremony.

The Queen arrived Wednesday from Hong Kong on the first visit to Japan by a reigning British monarch.

Police officials said they were told bagpipes were played every morning at Buckingham Palace so they sent a patrolman, Ichiroku Yanagihara, in Highlander dress to serenade the Queen.

MPs Paid for Experience?

OTTAWA (CP) — Pay raises for MPs should be based on their ability to get re-elected, Senator Ernest Manning (SC—Alberta) said Wednesday as the Senate gave approval in principle to proposed salary legislation.

"Parliament is one of the few fields where experience is not rewarded," Senator Manning said.

"A graduated indemnity would encourage more MPs to stay for more than one term."

The first term was a learning one and it was only in subsequent Parliaments that an MP could put his knowledge to work effectively.

Senator Manning, Alberta premier for 25 years, attacked the federal New Democrats for their opposition to the pay bill in the Commons. He said their counterparts in British Columbia had brought in large increases for legislature members.

But he added that MPs and senators should not accept pay raises when the country faces "grave economic troubles."

Some Student Jobs Are 'Super Neat'

same thing applies to the Canada Manpower office here. We get to know the people who come in regularly and it is only natural that their name comes to mind when a job becomes available."

Fiddler is winding down a successful job creation project sponsored by the provincial department of labor.

The provincial government is paying 50 per cent of the wage for young people hired under the program. In the Victoria area there were 176 new jobs created and the young people were hired by employers approaching school counsellors or the Canada Manpower office.

The department insisted that in each case, it must be a newly-created job and not one that existed the previous summer.

"Some of the jobs were super-neat, like two who were hired by the department of oceanography and they will be going to the Arctic this summer to assist with research projects. I was very pleased about that."

Some of the other jobs created under the program include: tennis instructor, driver instructor (he will have to pass a stringent driver's test first), day care jobs, a receptionist-publicity writer for a theatrical group, sailing instructor, workers in ceramic stores and a young person conducting a survey of businesses for an interior decorator.

The young people will work from two to four months at a salary of not less than $400 a month. The department of labor pays 50 per cent of the salary but not more than $300 per student per month.

Unemployment is far less severe in Victoria than in most other B.C. communities but it is a problem nevertheless.

"The most difficult people to place are the handicapped. It is heartbreaking really. Some of them are very bright, very competent and it is difficult to find jobs," Fiddler said.

"The second most difficult group to place are young inexperienced people, mostly high school students. They are not certain what they want and they get discouraged easily."

Another group difficult to place are those who have a belligerent attitude.

"They walk in and say to an employer: You just gotta hire me, man."

FIDDLER
. . . job finder

And some young people have been overly-selective about the type of job they do and the level of pay.

"There are some young people holding out for $700 a month. But the time they get that job, the summer might be just about over and they will have earned less than if they worked all summer at $500 a month," she said.

FERRY LOSS

to subsidize ferry operations.

The federal government, he said, is using a phony argument to avoid partial subsidization of the B.C. service and the province is not receiving equal treatment.

One eastern province received $3 million recently, he said, referring to a subsidy granted to Ontario.

Future meetings between the federal and provincial governments are being scheduled in attempts to resolve the differences, and Strachan estimates that $40 million would be a fair starting point.

The minister said he is unhappy with $3.5 million import tax imposed by Ottawa on the $14 million Swedish ferry that the government bought last year.

Cuban Loan Queried

until this matter could be thoroughly investigated. Liberal backbenchers and New Democratic Party MPs shouting "No, no" refused unanimous consent to introduce the motion.

McKenzie rising on a question of privilege claimed that Paul Gerin-Lajoie, president of CIDA, had misled him when he sought information at a meeting of the external affairs committee of parliament last Friday.

He said the CIDA president had told him that $12,600,000 would go to Cuba. This consisted of about $9.5 million in the form of a loan and the rest totalling $3 million in technical assistance in grant form.

McKenzie referring to the confidential documents published by the Journal said a secret decision was taken last December by the president's committee of CIDA headed by Gerin-Lajoie. The decision was to keep $11 million earmarked for Cuba hidden announcing only that $12.5 million would be going to Cuba to avoid raising too much controversy.

"They didn't want to announce the full details to avoid a public outcry," said McKenzie, "they decided to conceal the full amount of the loan."

The MP wondered how the agency could provide $23 million to Cuba and only publicly announce it was sending $12 million.

Speaker James Jerome ruled McKenzie did not have a proper form of privilege and was out of order.

Rollback Eyed On Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — The government may use long-promised legislation permitting it to freeze or roll back "excessive" prices in its efforts to get the public to accept voluntary wage and price restraints.

Corporate Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet says the legislation is "almost ready," but it is being held back until current consultations on wage and price restraint are completed.

Finance Minister John Turner's months-long campaign for a straints system to fight inflation has run into resistance from some labor leaders and politicians who say they fear the plan may be tough on wages but soft on prices, profits and rents.

Some government authorities suggested Wednesday the so-called prices justification bill is being held in reserve by Ottawa as an answer to criticism that its anti-inflation lacks teeth to control prices.

Ouellet indicates the government feels it is important the consultations on voluntary wage and price restraints be completed before the bill is reintroduced.

the weather

A weakening weather system in the north Pacific will bring occasional rain or drizzle and brisk southeast winds to the north coast today. These periods of rain and drizzle will persist through Friday. Elsewhere the fine sunny weather will continue. Afternoon temperatures will be a little warmer in some areas on Friday.

Community News Round-Up

"We're not interested in a big project — just one that fills the needs of VIC WEST."

Kay Woods, chairman of the Neighborhood Improvement Committee, was commenting on Vic West's desire to have a community centre built from the more than $950,000 alloted to Vic West.

The committee has been meeting weekly and has invited Victoria aldermen to attend these sessions.

Council has been cool to the idea of a community hall, especially as to where will the funds come from to operate the proposed centre.

Mrs. Woods says invitations have gone out to the last three on council who have not attended a session — Mayor Peter Pollen and aldermen Sam Bawlf and Clyde Savage.

The next NIP meeting is Monday night and the committee will report to the executive of the Vic West Development Association which meets Tuesday night.

Association president Allan Rogers says that some aldermen are less than enthusiastic to Vic West's desires.

"We're not seeking anything yet from council but we hope to be able to hire a planner to come up with a centre the community can use and that will wipe away the objections of some aldermen."

The only other area alloted NIP funds is James Bay and they too have asked for part of the $1 million allotted to them be used to add a community centre to the elementary school.

This also has received a cool reception from city council.

This week in discussing the James Bay plans, Ald. Sam Bawlf made some comments against the idea and this brought a sharp response from Beverley Kieferle, president of the JAMES BAY COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION.

She said Bawlf's statement to council was that a centre attached to the community school should not go ahead because there already are unused community facilities around the city.

He also knocked the location and said it was not suitable, said Kieferle.

Kieferle replied saying, "the expenditure of NIP funds are to be decided upon by the community as set out by the federal government. Bawlf is not a part of our community so he can't say what our community should do with these funds — it's against the whole idea.

"Secondly, the James Bay Community school at this time is running programs which are nearly full now and which overflow in the winter sessions.

"What we have requested from council is an extension of the school so that we have more appropriate space — such as cafeteria and facilities for community use, not full of desks and things."

The pace is picking up in getting things completed for the May 24 vote for a community resource board for JAMES BAY.

Phil Rogers of the publicity committee says more than 7,000 people have registered to select 15 out of the 20 persons nominated as candidates.

The polling station will be at the James Bay Community School from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. The advance poll, for those who will be away for the weekend, will be Thursday, May 22, from 4 to 8 p.m. also at the school.

The voters list is now being typed out and will be posted at various locations in the community.

Students at JAMES BAY community school will hold a car wash and bottle drive Saturday at South Park school 508 Douglas.

Grade 6 students are trying to raise enough money to attend Camp Waskowitz, 50 miles southeast of Seattle, from May 19 to 23.

Students will be washing cars from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., and collecting donated bottles at the car wash site.

The JAMES BAY COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION will be re-advertising for a doctor to staff the community health clinic.

Co-ordinator Bob Dill says that when the committee first sought applications from doctors — 20 applied — the association had only a partial program worked out. "We now have definite goals set out and which we would like the doctor to develop," says Dill.

The association will be contacting the doctors who applied before to see if they are still interested in the post and also advertise for others who may be interested.

The third phase of the community development plan for James Bay is now completed and will be presented at the next meeting of the association executives for endorsement.

The plan lists things that should be done now and outline long range guidelines.

The annual general meeting of the ALBERT HEAD RATEPAYERS ASSOCIATION will be held May 26 at 8 p.m. in St. Mary's Parish Hall on Metchosin Road.

President Shirley Wilde has still one more year to serve and members will be electing directors whose term have now expired.

"Don't go wading or walking in the sand at the public park on Prospect Lake . . . at least until after the cubs and brownies clean it up."

Pat Harkness, president of the PROSPECT LAKE COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION says there is a lot of broken beer and pop bottles in the sand and issued the warning in case someone was planning to use the park this weekend.

He said the cubs will be out Monday night to rake the sand and pick out the glass and on Wednesday, the brownies will clean up the remainder of the park area — of rocks, paper and any other litter.

He said both groups volunteered to do the work for the good of the community and others who use the park.

Harkness said that tonight people in the neighborhood will be at the community hall to test the new sound equipment.

Cheese and crackers will be provided.

How to develop confidence in yourself, family, community, job and leisure will be the topics covered in the life skills program that starts Monday in a room at the Indian Friendship Centre.

It starts at 9:30 and the two people teaching the course and the FERNWOOD COMMUNITY ASSOCIATIONS are working together on the program.

The program, which lasts 10 days, is limited to 12 people per course for the spring and summer months.

The life skills program for the spring and summer months is funded by grants by the attorney-general's office and in the fall funds will be alloted by the department of human resources to carry on the program.

Brian Lewis community worker, said the association's application to be included in the Neighborhood Improvement Program "is somewhere between Victoria and Ottawa."

Lewis said he feels that should their application be approved — funds come from Ottawa, the province and Victoria — it won't be spent on any "huge, highly visible project" but will be kept "low key" with only minor projects getting approved.

Lewis says the community is more interested in the residential rehabilitation side of NIP.

And residents are reminded of Fernwood's first spring fair Saturday from noon to 4 p.m. where their will be something for everyone including a puppet show for the children by Elspeph Strang from North Pender Island and sale of plants and local crafts for the older ones.

Lewis said there has been a tremendous response from the community in donating items for the rummage auction.

Susan Hamilton is the student who will be developing and running the summer program for children in Newton Gardens.

Velma McIntosh of the NEWTON - RICHMOND COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION says Susan will be working with those who are carrying out the winter program funded by Local Initiative Project funds.

The LIP funds end July 7 and Susan will be on her own after that date.

Why are Mazda sales up?

Mazda Economy. These days, people are looking for value like they've never looked before. And they're finding it in the 808. The lowest-priced 1600 cc car in Canada.† During the first quarter of this year, sales increased 66% compared to last year. That should tell you something.

Mazda Performance. Fuel economy has become a necessity these days. And, as you would expect, a car as popular as the 808 rates high in this area; 25 MPG in the city and 36 MPG on the highway. What will surprise you is the performance you get from the spunky 1600 cc OHC engine.

Mazda Standard Equipment. Power-assisted brakes with discs up front; four speed transmission; whitewall tires; coil/leaf heavy duty suspension system; chrome bumpers with bumper guards; high back front bucket seats to mention just a few.

Mazda Quality. Test drive the 808. Note the firm fitting doors, the interior appointments, the extra touches you find throughout. A test drive will tell you a lot about Mazda quality.

Mazda Selection. Visit your Mazda dealer. Look over the two coupes and the 4-door wagon that make up the 808 line. You'll find plenty of reasons to buy a Mazda 808.

NORAD Has Outlived Its Time

Canada has been renewing the North American Air Defence Treaty with knee jerk regularity ever since the bilateral agreement was signed in 1958. Anticipating more flak than usual against renewal of an obsolescent treaty, Defence Minister James Richardson has trotted out a neat side step to deflate the issue. Not only will this soft shoe routine ensure armed forces and House of Commons support, it contains a deep bow to western sensitivities as well. In other words, the recipe has all the ingredients of political success.

We are now told there will be two NORAD regions in Canada. Air Command headquarters will be located Winnipeg — the defence minister's riding by odd coincidence — and a new $25 million facility will be built in Edmonton. The rationale for these initiatives, according to Richardson, is to bring all Canadian air space under Canadian control for the first time since the agreement was signed in 1958. Such an admission is not exactly news. But what gall the minister has to boast that he is repatriating what the government gave away a little more than a decade ago.

In the past the government was rather quiet about the fact that we did not control our own air space. Although we learned this sad fact during the 1962 Cuban missile crisis when the armed forces went on alert automatically, without parliamentary approval as the message flashed from NORAD headquarters in Colorado Springs. Yet the protection of Canadian sovereignty is purportedly our number one defence priority. There would seem to be a paradox here.

Even more basic than the political hokum foisted on taxpayers to justify renewal is the question, how necessary is NORAD?

When the treaty was first signed in 1958, the cold war was in deep freeze. The possibility of manned bomber attack against North America was real and at times immediate. But technology and political detente have mitigated these circumstances. Today, the main threat comes from guided missiles. The manned intercontinental bomber with its expensively trained crew is as obsolete as the three squadrons of CF-101 Voodoos Canada maintains to fight this threat. The government admits it can't afford anti-ballistic missiles and sophisticated over-the-horizon radars to combat this menace. Better we spend our small defence budget on building ice breakers to patrol northern waters, rather than throwing it into an archaic sink hole to protect us from a threat that no longer exists.

It has also yet to be proved that NORAD was anything but a vehicle to defend the U.S. from manned bomber attack. Even in the cold war days the U.S. strategy was to shoot down enemy nuclear bombers over Canadian land.

Then when the U.S. developed two-stage nuclear anti-ballistic missile missiles, the idea was to explode incoming missiles over Canadian territory. What would those atmospheric interceptions do to Canadian cities? Whatever the devastating effects, Canada was destined to be the ham in the sandwich of U.S.-Soviet nuclear confrontation.

While it is naive to think that getting out of NORAD would spare us any horror in a nuclear confrontation between the superpowers, the treaty offers us nothing. It drains our small defence budget for an outmoded purpose; it compromises our sovereignty in times of crisis; it guarantees heavy casualties if the unthinkable takes place. Canada can better serve its own aims by a strong Arctic presence. NORAD has outlived its time. The treaty should be allowed to die a natural death.

A Road of Good Intent

Saanich's planning and engineering staff deserves credit for changing the provincial government's mind on the Blanshard Street extension. Last January the government came rushing in waving a sheaf of blueprints outlining an expensive tunnel complex to connect the Trans Canada and Pat Bay Highways with Blanshard. Neither Saanich or Victoria had been consulted. Nor did the scheme take into account exits for the Town and Country Shopping Centre or access to the Pat Bay Highway from the Trans Canada Highway. In a phrase, there was no sweetness and light at the end of the tunnel.

At the time, the government acted as though the tunnel was a fait accompli. Provincial highway officials shrugged off complaints, saying it was too late to make any changes. But Saanich persevered and the government, to its credit, listened to reason and new plans were drawn up. Two one way streets — Vernon and Seymour — behind the Town and Country shopping centre will replace Douglas as the gateway to the Pat Bay Highway. Mackenzie Avenue will be extended westward to join up with the Trans Canada Highway. Both these long awaited plans will be funded entirely by the provincial government. The municipality's major cost will be widening Saanich road and other access streets.

After 10 years of inertia on the part of the former provincial government and an inauspicious alternative by the current administration the $6 million scheme is finally tangible. It is the kind of cooperation and ability to compromise which is all too rare in provincial-municipal dealings these days. The provincial government gets an "A" for trying harder; Saanich gets an "A plus" for rejecting an ill-thought-out tunnel and persevering for an acceptable alternative.

NATO Twitchy on Portugal

LONDON — Portugal's military rulers continue to insist that they have no intention of taking the country out of the NATO alliance, despite the strong influence of the communist party over sections of the armed forces.

Brigadier Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho, a very left-wing member of the Supreme Revolutionary Council and head of the army's special security unit called Copcon, has told journalists it was realized that NATO had been cutting Portugal out of the nuclear planning group and certain sensitive intelligence information because of communist presence in the government.

This includes Alvaro Cunhal, leader of the Portuguese communist party, who is a minister without portfolio in the 21-man provisional government.

"His continued membership in the cabinet, however, does not mean we intend leaving NATO," said Brig. Carvalho. "We will remain in the alliance unless thrown out."

Cunhal himself has said of Portuguese NATO membership: "We are not in a hurry. This is a matter we do not wish to raise at this time. The same applies to the American bases in the Azores."

Can't Use Azores

Prime Minister Vasco Goncalves, however, has ruled out any use of the Azores by the Americans to re-supply Israel in the event of another Middle East war.

The Azores base, 1,350 miles west of Portugal in the Atlantic Ocean, was a key factor in the 1973 Yom Kippur war re-supply operation. Now it is less important because United States airforce crews have been trained in sufficient numbers to carry out the delicate and dangerous mid-air re-fuelling operation that would allow non-stop flights by mammoth C-130 transport jets between the U.S. and Israel.

But this is a very expensive method and German diplomats say privately they are worried that the United States may apply intense pressure to the West Germans to allow the use of bases in the federal republic denied in October, 1973.

American presence in the Azores is likely to continue in exchange for an annual cash payment to Portugal. Nothing was paid to the former regime, which regarded American military presence as a valuable bonus to membership of NATO.

Moreover, a western diplomat recently in the Azores says he found strong evidence that the people there would firmly resist any idea of closing down the American base because of the local income it provides.

Moscow's sleek ambassador, Arnold Kalinin, is reported to be frustrated at the delay in getting an answer from Portugal's rulers about his request for a re-fuelling depot in Madeira for the Soviet Atlantic fishing fleet.

VASCO GONCALVES
. . . Portugal's premier

This request was made after strong European reaction to the request for such facilities at Iggueira Da Foz, a town about halfway between Lisbon and Oporto that just happens to be close to a NATO communications base.

A Madeira base would give excellent opportunities for Soviet spy trawlers, which cruise with the fleets but are loaded with electronic listening equipment, to observe NATO naval manoeuvres in the area.

During the recent election campaign, far-left groups that were busily denouncing any non-Portuguese they met as CIA agents, also made extravagant claims about "menacing" the NATO naval manoeuvres off the Portuguese coast.

Some NATO sources say that loss of the Azores base could be borne by the alliance in a strictly technical sense because its value as a point for re-fuelling ships and aircraft and for surveillance of Atlantic shipping and submarine movements is not what it was. Other bases could be used in Spain or Spain's Atlantic islands and there have been new technological developments in refuelling and surveillance that make the Azores less vital.

Wild Talk

But it would be a serious psychological blow to an alliance already unsure of Portugal's long-term NATO future, trying to repair the ravaged south-eastern flank caused by the Greece-Turkey tension over Cyprus and generally suffering from inflation-forced cuts in military expenditure by members. NATO remains a point of contact between Portugal's rulers and the non-Soviet countries.

It also is, says one moderate member of the Supreme Revolutionary Council, "a possible channel to helping Portugal to get some form of economic association with the Common Market to counter-balance Soviet economic ties."

This officer also said that Portuguese withdrawal from NATO is unlikely "while the existing situation of a three-way ideological split remains within the armed forces movement."

"The split is between moderates, Moscow-line communists and young radical officers who believe in a fairly extreme socialism learned from Third World guerrillas during our colonial campaigns in Africa. For the moment, the Third-Worlders are siding with the moderates against the communists on some issues like NATO. And the communists are clearly under Moscow orders not to frighten the international community by wild talk of kicking out NATO."

Blame Ourselves

Before we place all the blame for everything wrong with ICBC on the NDP, we might just have a look at ourselves.

An auto mechanic working on my car showed me a Rambler he had just bought for $35. He said it would run for years just as it stood (he was going to use it on his small farm) — it lacked one headlight and fender, but it had been written off.

Standing in a junkyard, I saw a man bring in his station wagon. There was a crease the entire length of the vehicle — no other damage. He told me he hated to part with it, but he couldn't afford to turn down the money — it had been "totaled" and was five years old. However, these are petty instances. I've been told by responsible mechanics that the real rip-offs occur in the repair business across the province.

Officials hired by government, professionals of the automative trade, and laymen like you and I all take advantage of that impersonal system — the government. We "rip off" those guys in Victoria. We take "our share" because we can't afford not to. We laugh and pocket the money.

But we curse and blame the government when we learn there has been so much cheating by so many like ourselves that ICBC has had an enormous deficit. Stinkers — real stinkers — those NDPers. — H. H. Sorensen, 1829 Fern Street.

Space Used

I must take exception to your front page article Ninth Scandal of Waste Bared of May 1, wherein our illustrious leader of the opposition laid bare another waste of the taxpayers' money. The example cited is the eighth floor of the Marine building in Vancouver. This report is grossly misleading and inaccurate. True, the provincial government has had the office space leased since January, 1975. However, it has been used. The previous tenants vacated the premises as of December 31, 1974, taking with them doors, carpets and anything else that could be removed. As a consequence, considerable work was required to ready the place for the Forest Service which already occupies the second and sixth floors of the same building. Work has been underway continually since January, 1975.

As for positioning someone there to answer the phone as a cover-up for wasted space, the person was moved there because her office was ready and as far as I know by her own request. Furthermore, other office space on the eighth floor becomes available within the next two weeks.

I do not know Bennett's sources, but as an employee of the Forest Service working in the Marine building for the last eight months, I know the things stated above are true. Perhaps Bennett could carry out his duties with a little more responsibility to the people of B.C. if he bothered to check his facts. — Gary Anderson, 4863 Imperial Avenue, Brnaby.

Whaling Myths

As a member of parliament, I have been receiving a great deal of mail regarding Canada's position on whaling and I would like to clarify a few points of misconception, which I think some readers share.

Canada is not engaged in commercial whaling for any of the great whale species of the world's oceans. Small scale whaling operations that had been in operation were ended on the Atlantic coast in 1972 and on the Pacific coast in 1967. Canadian natives in the Arctic are still permitted to take a limited number of small whales, belugas and narwhals, which are strictly for their own use.

Although not involved in commercial whaling, Canada actively participates as a member of the 15-nation International Whaling Commission, which regulates international whaling. In all the deliberations of this commission, Canada consistently supports the protection from exploitation of all stocks and species of whales believed to be endangered.

Four species of great whales — blue, humpback, gray and right whales — have for some years been fully protected by a moratorium (i.e., a total ban on whaling) instituted by the International Whaling Commission.

Scientific experts on whaling, both inside and outside the commission, consider that all the great whale species which are truly endangered are covered by the existing world moratorium. Hunting of other species is regulated by various conservation measures, such as minimum sizes, closed areas, closed seasons, controlled whaling methods and quota restrictions.

Whaling continues to be an important industry to certain countries such as Japan, the USSR and a number of other nations, which are whaling for protein and also for economic benefits.

Concern for the conservation of whales throughout the world was expressed in 1972 at the United Nations conference on the human environment at Stockholm. A resolution adopted by that conference called for an international agreement under the auspices of the International Whaling Commission and involving all governments concerned, for a ten year moratorium on commercial whaling, also for strengthening of the Commission and for increased international research efforts.

WHALING
. . . Coal Harbor, B.C., in 1965

Canada has supported the proposal for a world moratorium on commercial whaling since 1972 as a means of protecting endangered whales.

Traditional renewable resource policies have accepted the definition of conservation as meaning the sound management of resources to allow utilization for meeting human needs, to ensure perpetuation of the resource for use and enjoyment by future generations, and to maintain ecological balance with other species.

Public opinion trends reflect widespread concern for the conservation of living resources, but there are widely divergent views of what conservation really means. To some people, animal resources exist primarily to feed, clothe and otherwide serve mankind. To others, animal resources, especially mammals, should not be taken or utilized in any way by man.

As long as society's objectives fall somewhere between these two extremes, effective management of living resources will demand total protection of those which are endangered, and sensible, scientifically-based utilization of those resources which can safely support exploitation to serve society's needs.— Hugh Anderson, MP, Comox-Alberni.

Relative Wages

In recent newspaper reports, the figures for wage agreements between management and CUPE in Esquimalt have been quoted.

They are given as an hourly rate for laborers: base rate $4.42 at present, to increase under CUPE proposals to $5.60.

The wage for clerical workers is given as a monthly sum: $446 per month at present, increasing under CUPE proposals to $645.

At an estimated 170 work hours per month: Laborers, unskilled men — $725 to $900 monthly. Clerical, skilled women — $2.62 to $3.79 per hour.

These facts should be made clear to those readers of newspapers who may not have made the calculations necessary in order to compare laborers' and clerical workers' pay scales — H. Parkinson, Sidney.

Hostile Judges

If a retired judge of the supreme court of Canada feels the need to criticize the decisions of judges at present serving, that is his privilege, but when Stuart Shaw takes several columns to tell us that our alleged shortcomings are all due to following British law, instead of having a nice bill of rights like the one he thinks was invented in the U.S.A., he is talking nonsense.

The main provisions of the American bill of rights were adopted from the much earlier British bill of rights as applicable, both in the constitution of the United States and the state constitutions. As to how far a bill of rights is a cure-all, as he thinks it is, he should read about religious discrimination in Britain. Anyone who thinks the American bill of rights was intended to apply to black slaves or the indigenous Indian population needs his head seen to.

No one should be misled because an English judge is said to have spoken contemptuously of the "omnipotence of parliament." Parliament has its faults, but so have judges. It was the hostility of judges to working peoples' rights that caused them to decide that unions, being "in restraint of trade," were illegal associations. Consequent beneficial legislation passed by parliament, was again undone by judges as late as 1901, when they pronounced strike action illegal, thus provoking the formation of a separate Labor party in parliament to protect labor against judge-made law. Parliament then wrote laws that the most prejudiced, class-conscious judge could not misinterpret.

If important books like Future Shock have any validity, a lot of "interference by parliament" is foreshadowed if civilization is to survive. — S. G. Woodeson, 6456 Patricia Bay Highway.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of May 8, 1915

LONDON — The best available information on the Lusitania tragedy states that 1,364 persons aboard the luxury liner lost their lives when she was torpedoed yesterday by a German submarine. A total of 2,067 passengers and crew were aboard the vessel. The work of compiling a list of those saved is proceeding slowly because of the indescribable confusion at Queenstown, but apparently few first-class passengers were among the survivors. Four torpedoes were apparently fired at the Lusitania but only two made their mark. The Exchange Telegraph Company here received the following message from Copenhagen: "Berlin papers print the news of the disaster at sea in the largest of type and hail the successful torpedoing of the ship as a new triumph for Germany's naval policy. The general impression is that Britain got what she deserved."

Mid-East Journal— PART TWO: CYPRUS

By LON WOOD
Times City Editor

The Canadian UN soldier in Cyprus is in a situation nearly opposite to that of his counterpart in Egypt. As to the roots of conflict in the two areas, it is only coincidence that the two hot spots are less than 350 miles apart.

In size Egypt is about the area of British Columbia, with a population of some 35,000,000. Cyprus is one-third larger than Vancouver Island and has 634,000 inhabitants — 18 per cent Turks and 82 per cent Greeks and others.

Cyprus has been a colony of one country or another for 2,700 years. For 300 years from 1570 it was under Turkish rule — it has never been a state of Greece, except distantly when Alexander briefly ruled the known world.

Never independent, the Greek-Cypriot struggle in an era of decolonization was not for independence but for transferal from British to Greek control as part of Greece.

In 1955 the Greeks began a terrorist movement towards Enosis — union with Greece. Britain granted independence in 1960. The Turks were indifferent until the Greeks revoked their veto power and maintained a push for union with Greece.

In 1963 shooting between Greek and Turk Cypriots began. The latter fled or were chased into several large and many small enclaves where they remained under close seige for four years as impoverished refugees.

In 1964 United Nations Forces in Cyprus (UNFICYP) took over a measure of order restored by troops from the British sovereign bases on the island.

Last July the Eoka B movement led by Nicos Sampson staged a coup against the regime of Archbishop Makarios. A month later the Turks — with strong support from the mainland — launched an invasion.

A ceasefire was arranged on Aug. 16 and the country now stands split with Greek and Turk Cypriots polarized to south and north respectively and one-third of the island's residents displaced from their homes.

The confrontation line—an unnegotiated ceasefire line — zigzags laterally to slice the island in two and passes through the heart of the largest city and capital, Nicosia.

Thirty-four per cent of the island is under Turk control. They have 70 per cent of the crops, 60 per cent of the industry, 100 per cent of mining. They control 80 per cent of the tourist areas and hold Kyrenia, the tiny nation's only deep-water port.

While the contingent in Egypt is made up of people from units all across Canada, the 700 men in Cyprus are all members of the Royal Canadian Regiment of London, Ont.

In Egypt, Canada works in a support role far back from the buffer zone. The RCR is right up front in Nicosia Zone East as an observer in perhaps the hottest of the six UNIFCYP zones.

Sandbags symbolize divided Island . . . at disused Nicosia Airport and in windows of Ledra Palace

"The observer is the fellow who is fired upon — the fellow who takes the risks," says Lt.-Col. Phil Spencer, deputy commander of the contingent. "They're not bashful. It's very, very frustrating . . . we've had two deaths in the past 10 days."

Spencer was referring to Ian Patten's death on the Ledra balcony and of the death of Pte. Stephen Kohlman, fatally injured in a jeep mishap shortly before we arrived.

We landed at the British airbase at Akrotiri and began the two-hour drive to the Nicosia Hilton. With an abundance of oranges, grapes and olives, Cyprus looked like heaven after the sand and heat of Egypt.

The Hilton is in the Greek half of the city, where we did all of our eating, recreation and shopping. With watchful Turkish army guides, we later toured the Salamis ruins near Famagusta and Othello's Castle. We were not allowed into Famagusta — a tourist city on the scale of Miami, now a ghost town because the Turks don't have enough people to run things.

Operation of the Hilton was kept up despite the lack of guests. Full dining room service — although you might be the only one dining. We ate most meals downtown — fine salads, Greek food and wine at good prices.

We spent one day visiting the UN observation posts sandwiched between the Greeks and Turks along the confrontation line in Nicosia.

"The problem is that both sides are so close they talk to each other, shout insults, throw rocks and then shoot at each other," says Maj. Jerry Thompson, leader of B Company observation team.

"If there is a shooting incident, radio contact is made with both sides and a liaison officer is sent out," he continues. "A written firing report is also made to protest any ceasefire violation.

"One barrel moved forward one foot means an international incident here."

Both sides have pledged not to shoot at UN jeeps, but some have holes in their flags to prove otherwise.

When firing breaks out on a large scale it rapidly spreads down the line — usually during a national holiday, or New Year's Eve as it happened this year.

"A spontaneous celebration got out of hand," says Thompson. "At four minutes to midnight the Greeks started . . . at 12 the Turks opened up with 50 mm . . . it was picked up all the way along."

In these instances a UN jeep is sent in, flag flying, lights on, flashers flashing and flak-jacketed observers shouting over a loud-hailer for a halt.

At one post we walked in just as a single shot was fired from the vicinity of the nearby city prison. A report was made, but no one owned up to it.

Our jeep took us through narrow alleyways in the heart of the Walled City. On either side within touching distance, watchful eyes and rifles were visible through slits in the Greek and Turk sandbag bunkers.

We climbed several floors to visit a UN observation post atop an evacuated apartment building. Despite some cleaning up, there was the stench of rotting food left with all other personal effects when evacuation took place last summer.

This month manning of Nicosia International Airport posts is being turned over to the Finnish contingent of UNIFYCP.

At first glance it looked like a normal airfield operation. A second look bared the strings of barbwire surrounding the commercial jets. The runways are mortar-pocked and one Cyprus Airways passenger jet remains at the end of the runway where it crashed during last summer's conflict.

"The Greek and Turk Cyps can't agree on opening up the airport," says Maj. John Haymans of support company. "They can't decide who will run it, who will get the revenue . . ."

Another day Russ Clifford of CHEK-TV and I rode in Lynx and armored personnel carriers on a regular patrol from the Turkish village of Lourojina, 1½ hours along the line to Nicosia.

The Canadian outpost at Lourojina is used to supply Turkish enclaves in the Greek sector.

The lush countryside is laced with mines under blankets of bright red poppies. Neither side tells the UN where the mines are. The UN so far has been lucky in detecting the minefields and tagging them with the warning symbol — a red triangle pointing down.

The presidential palace is but a shell after the coup and following Turk invasion. Makarios now lives at the bishopric within the walled city. He has 40 bodyguards and can be seen accompanied by a handful of them from time to time on Nicosia streets.

There are reports that his famous escape from the palace didn't occur and that he ran out of gas on the way to the palace — inadvertently avoiding capture by Sampson's crew.

Sampson is still around and both still have strong followings.

After a two-hour briefing by Turkish-Cypriot information officer Zhini, he hands us booklets crammed with photographs — mothers and children slain by the Greeks.

In both Egypt and Cyprus the Canadians are openly mistrustful of the press and equally disdainful of the political arm — namely Defence Minister James Richardson.

They divide people into two camps — those friendly to the military and those not. It was difficult to put the point across that both the media and politicians reflect the public attitude. The main counterpoint was that if the press reported more on the Canadian peacekeeping role — not just the high-level talks or the three paragraph items when someone gets shot — the public could make better decisions on its military matters.

Right now both camps are undergoing cutbacks ordered by Richardson because he feels the situations in the two areas are sufficiently stable.

The controversial article on Richardson in the March Maclean's said it for just about every overseas Canadian who read it. Equally endorsed — especially by the junior officers — was Nicholas Stethem's article My War With The Army in the same issue.

In the Stethem piece the author says Richardson's proclaimed need to cut back on manpower in order to create a better-equipped, elite force gives a false impression.

"I've heard that one before," writes Stethem. "Elite means small; better equipped means nothing but the further application of spit and glue to what we have now."

An hour after we check out of the Hilton, Melina Mercouri checks in. She is to lead a group of Greek Cypriot women across the confrontation line to their homes in the north.

As we leave Akrotiri, Finance Minister John Turner lands his government jet there. He is in the Mid-East looking for Arab money.

Prince Charles arrives in Ottawa an hour after we take off for Vancouver. The flags were flying, the parade square was freshly-painted — and all the Canadian Forces aircraft in mothballs were polished up and placed in a row on the tarmac.

Sexism in Bluenose Country

harry bruce

HALIFAX — This being International Why Not Year (and the Nova Scotia government being nothing if not "With it,") there has come to pass down here a special provincial task force whose duty it is to worry about the status of women in Bluenose country.

No, this is not the special steering committee to co-ordinate International Women's Year activities in Nova Scotia. Really, my dear person, don't you know your International Women's Year Committees from your International Women's Year Task Forces? The committee's old hat. The task force is new gesture.

Maybe that last crack is unfair. After all, Attorney-General Allan Sullivan has respectfully described the task forcers as "free thinkers and no shrinking violets." They don't sound like the sort of persons who'd allow the cabinet to brush off their recommendations, now do they?

Sullivan, incidentally, is a stocky, bustling, brainy Cape Breton Islander with a flair for salty language that borders on poetic genius. He does not flash his talent before women, of course, but this would not inhibit him among his colleagues in the cabinet for the simple reason that there are no women among his colleagues in the cabinet.

And for that matter, there are no men among the colleagues on the task force. The unshrinkable violets include a university administrator, a home economics prof., a legal-aid lawyer, a journalist, the director of guidance and pupil personnel for Dartmouth schools, the president of the Business and Professional women's Clubs of Canada, and a municipal councillor who used to be president of the Women's Institute of Nova Scotia.

Seven solid citizens. Seven good women and true. Seven Nova Scotians of distinction and yet (figuratively speaking, of course) there's not a pair of pants among the whole bunch of them.

So what? Why should any mere man share the innermost deliberations of a task force on the status of women? To that, I reply ringiingly, resoundingly and in my richest baritone timbre, "Why not!"

The absence of even one measly man among those women is an insult to the men of Nova Scotia. It is sexual discrimination at its most boorish, and I refuse to accept the sleazy, worn-out judgment that men simply aren't qualified to join women at the decision-making levels of task forces on women's problems.

The task force has a mandate (woman-date? Persondate?) to study the report of the federal Royal Commission on the Status of Women, and I ask you: As studiers of reports, are men inherently inferior to women?

Moreover, the task force will hold hearings around the province. Haven't men got ears, too? For that matter, hath not a man hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions? If you prick us, do we not bleed? If you tickle us, do we not laugh?

The seven-woman force wants not only female but also male witnesses to testify at its hearings and, leaving aside all questions of human fairness, would it not be tactically canny to have at least one friendly man's face up there among the commissioners?

Finally, the province's sexist decision to exclude men from its official team of worriers about women is one more baffling contribution to the growing polarization, as it were, of the sexes.

No sooner do we abolish taverns that ban women than we establish task forces that ban men. What sort of progress is that? Down with male preserves. Down with female preserves (except, possibly, Mom's home-made peach jam). Up with the co-educational society. What the world needs now is not less but more intersexual communication. and love, sweet love.

Girls choir entertains James Bay School fair guests

Busy area was the book table

1,500 Attend Fair

It was a community affair from start to finish with an estimated 1,500 attending the first fair at the James Bay Community School.

Brian Wile, assistant vice-principal, said a lot of credit must go to those who volunteered, especially Margaret Drier, and Pauline O'Neill and those from the James Bay New Horizons club group.

The fair made a profit of $1,500 which will be used to finance the summer program.

In other school news, they are ready to launch a recycling project at the school but the school must first get permission from the Victoria School Board to locate a sorting shed on school property.

The school has asked the board but so far there they have not received a reply.

Eight University of Victoria students who took some of their training at the James Bay school have received an Opportunity for Youth grant to conduct a summer project for the children in the area.

It's named Summershine 75 and they will be coming up with a full program in the near future.

Check the chart. From 19 to 30 highway miles and from 14 to 22 city miles per gallon of gas for these '75 Pontiacs and Buicks!

Here are the U.S. E.P.A. fuel economy test results on 1975 Pontiacs and Buicks with GM's Maximum Mileage System and using unleaded gas. The E.P.A. tests were performed on a dynamometer, a machine which simulates a number of different driving conditions. The tests simulated stop-and-go urban driving and highway driving at about 50 m.p.h. Miles per gallon results are converted to Imperial gallons.

In calculating range—we have merely multiplied the appropriate E.P.A. fuel economy figure X the vehicle's tank capacity. For instance: Century V6 highway range is 28.8 m.p.g. X 18.3 gal. tank = 527.04 miles.

What kind of mileage can you expect?
You probably won't match E.P.A. results in actual driving. How close you come will depend on a number of factors. Fuel economy is affected by many factors, such as how you drive, the load you carry, optional equipment, weather conditions and where you do your driving.

See how much more you can have going for you if you buy a 1975 Pontiac or Buick. Ask your dealer for his best trade-in offer on your present car. You may be pleasantly surprised how easy it can be to change to a gas-saving '75.

NO DEALS, SAYS BENNETT

VANCOUVER (CP)—Social Credit will make no deals or offer inducements to get backing from other parties on their MLAs, leader Bill Bennett said Wednesday.

Bennett made the statement in an interview in response to questions about the split within the liberal party over a proposal by Liberal MLA Allan Williams for some form of electoral co-operation between Liberal and Social Credit parties to defeat the New Democratic Party government.

Bennett said at first that he doesn't concern himself about what is happening in other parties, but concentrates on building an alternative to the government.

"I have never set out to destroy any parties, but to build an alternative," he said. "We shsould be positive, not negative."

But when pressed to comment on the Williams' proposals and on whether Williams, MLA for West Vancouver-Howe Sound, would be welcome in the Socred party, Bennett said:

"I don't make special deals. There are no special inducements. Over 30,000 people made the decision to join our party last year and I expect the same this year and that well could include some very prominent names."

Ferry Brochure Ban Vetoed

Canadian Press

The provincial government has reversed an order issued by Transport Minister Bob Strachan last November which banned the free display of travel brochures on government ferries.

Strachan's order, which would have seen hotel, motel and tourist businesses charged as much as $240 a year, touched off protests from the tourist industry.

When Strachan showed no signs of relenting in his position which would have placed brochure displays in the hands of Vancouver Island Tourist Services Ltd., of Victoria, the critics turned to Premier Dave Barrett and Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall.

Hall said Wednesday the tourist industry had never been charged in the past and would not be charged in the future. He made no reference to upsetting Strachan's decision of last year.

Under the new contract, Vancouver Island Tourist Services will still be responsible for brochure displays on ferries, but as employees of the provincial government.

The revamped contract will be worth $75,000 a year to VITS but within that fee all ferries will be serviced, display racks provided as well as transportation to move and replace brochures.

There will be no cost to businesses wishing to display brochures. Any company wishing to display space on ferries must first approach the department of travel which operates independently of the ferry system which is under the jurisdiction of Strachan.

"The difficulty before was that the ferries couldn't handle this aspect of their work," Hall said.

"It meant extra staff and there were always arguments as to who got displayed and where, and arguments about racks that were not maintained or complaints that somebody was deliberately stealing somebody else's brochures."

Hall said that it was pressure "by the ferries, by motel people" which brought the change.

"Frankly this has been a bad scene since last October," he said. "When the ferries said in despair 'do away with the brochures' because they couldn't handle them any longer, I got into the act."

Consumer Kit 'Anti-Business'

A consumer education kit prepared by the provincial government for use in schools is "anti-business", a Social Credit MLA said Wednesday.

Don Phillips (SC—South Peace River) said he believes in the need for consumer education but the kit being circulated in B.C. schools is not balanced.

He asked Consumer Services Minister Phyllis Young about the kit in the legislature and was told it was compiled by her department in conjunction with education department officials.

It was prepared at the request of teachers, she said later, and is aimed at grade 11 and 12 students.

School trustees and teachers were not asked for their approval before the kits were sent, said Young, because the material was distributed through the department of education.

Phillips asked about the bibliography in the kit, which mentions an American book entitled "Sue the B'st'rds" and asked Young if she felt it was an appropriate reference material for the course.

Young said the bibliography explained the book was American and might not necessarily apply to B.C.

Nicolson's Record 'Greatest Disaster'

The housing department's $90 million spending estimates were approved by the legislature Wednesday amid opposition cries that Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson's track record is the greatest disaster of the NDP government.

Socred Don Phillips, who monopolized the debate, suggested the government pump the entire department budget directly into the housing market.

Nicolson, he said, has not made a single move to reduce the cost of land. Money is being squandered on the government's ideology, he charged.

"I'm most unhappy that $400,000 is being spent by this department to ram the government's policy down the throats of the taxpayers through information brochures, financed by the publics own tax dollars."

Nicolson, however, said many programs had been introduced to relieve the housing shortage and information and press release funding is necessary because pamphlets save a great deal of staff time in answering repetitive questions.

The South Peace member charged Nicolson was simply "wiffle-waffling" around to try and justify his department.

BENNETT EYES FUND SHARING CONFERENCE

VANCOUVER (CP)—Socred leader Bill Bennett has called for a national conference to establish new priorities for revenue and power-sharing between federal, provincial and municipal governments.

He told the Vancouver Canadian Club Wednesday that local governments have become casualties in the competition for power and revenue. Bennett said it is the local governments which must provide the most important basic services.

Gov't Will Decide Steel Mill Site

Economic development Minister Gary Lauk would not be pinned down Wednesday on a commitment to follow local community wishes concerning the location of a new steel mill in B.C.

"No small community has a final veto on anything this assembly or the government of B.C. may or may not decide," Lauk told the legislature.

But he said the government would be irresponsible if it did not consider the opinions of people where it wishes to build a steel mill.

Liberal leader David Anderon was trying to pin Lauk down on whether the government would follow the lead it has taken on location of an oil refinery in the province.

Premier Barrett has promised the refinery will not be built if the local government in the area selected rejects it.

The committee studying the possibility of a steel mill in conjunction with private Japanese business interests is still working on a possible site for the mill, said Lauk. The second phase of the study will involve social and economic inpact studies.

After those studies are completed, said the minister, there will be public meetings and participation to determine the reaction of the community.

"If there is not co-operation from the labor force, community and business leaders to operate a mill, certainly it would be mad to try to put one there," he said.

Six sites are still being studied for the mill and a location is expected to be chosen later this month.

Protesters Clubbed

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — Mounted police clubbed demonstrators Tuesday as striking state hospital workers marched on parliament to demand more money and better working conditions. Trade union sources said at least 12 persons were injured in the melee which developed after several hundred strikers approached the parliament buildings shouting slogans against Prime Minister Leo Tindemans.

Gov't to Help Pay Nursing Bills

COCKE
. . . it's a priority

The provincial government will ease the injustices of costly nursing home care, even if the federal government doesn't provide financial assistance, Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Wednesday.

"With or without Ottawa, it is a priority that we'll go it alone," Cocke told the legislature during debate of his department's $712 million spending estimates.

The health minister said recent discussions indicate the federal government might help.

Cocke made the commitment after Tory Leader Scott Wallace called attention to "dreadful injustices" in the hospital care sysstem.

He said the government has gone overboard to help patients at certain levels of illness, and refuses to look at intermediate care provided by nursing homes.

The current $1 a day charge for acute care is a farce which fails to cover even the bookkeeping c o s t s, said Wallace.

"Either scrub it completely or make contributions a realistic fraction of the cost."

Acute-care patients could afford to pay more and financing could be moved around to help pay for intermediate facilities which are as high as $600 a month at Sandringham Private Hospital in Victoria, said Wallace.

He called for immediate legislation to help patients in nursing homes and "if the federal government won't help, make a commitment to go it alone."

Liberal MLA Allan Williams urged the government to consider contracting intermediate care to private facilities.

He drew attention to a lack of regulations that define which persons qualify for intermediate care, as opposed to extended or acute care.

"Once the government determines a course of action, tremendous financial power can be directed to the solution," said Williams, urging that Cocke take action soon.

Cocke said he is against making deals with the private sector to supply intermediate care at present.

He estimated some 10,000 persons are extended and intermediate care patients and 9,000 are receiving personal care.

Cocke said the province is discussing provision of an extended health care benefit scheme to private citizens in the province.

Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson (North Vancouver-Capilano) asked if the government would consider offering its own extended insurance system to provide coverage for those citizens not working in a large firm belonging to a private scheme.

Extended health insurance plans pay a portion of hospital, ambulance, and other medical costs incurred by patients with extended illnesses.

Cocke said the extended plans are only available to groups because private insurance companies believe the only people who will apply for coverage are those who need it.

Extended care plans have proven a profitable venture for private companies, he added.

The problem of providing a government scheme is that only those who can't get private coverage will likely apply for the government plan and the scheme would not be easily workable or economic.

The only other alternative would be a province-wide plan but then the government would face charges of wiping out another insurance field, said Cocke, and he challenged Gibson to support a government monopoly.

Gibson said he did not have a solution but he hoped the government could fine one.

PATIENTS PAY RENT?

The provincial government is considering a room and board fee structure for extended care patients, Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Wednesday.

One of the alternatives being considered by the department could see extended care patients paying for room and board, while the province financed hospital care costs.

It would ensure that patients on Mincome, for example, are paying real costs, rather than the current $1 a day charge.

"We're trying to develop a new system that would be all-encompassing for people who are chronically ill.

BCMA Union Urged

The B.C. Medical Association will be recognized as official bargaining agent for salaried doctors in the public service if it applies to the Labor Relations Board for union status, Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Wednesday.

"There would be no problem recognizing the medical association if it applied to the LRB—but that isn't very likely," said Cocke.

All sorts of problems have developed after inclusion of the salaried doctors in the Professional Employees Bargaining unit, said Cocke. The doctors said they wanted out.

But the government is saying that a voluntary group has to be a union to protect the rights of its members. The association, he added, does not represent all the doctors in the province.

The provincial government is considering the problem and communication is continuing with the association.

The issue was introduced during debate of Cocke's department estimates by Socred MLA Pat Jordan (South Okanagan).

She said there is concern within the medical profession that the association has been denied the right to represent members.

"The physicians' right should be the right of choice," she said, adding the association represents 97 per cent of the doctors in B.C. and 3,600 members.

She said Cocke's attitude indicates that the government is committed to unionize everyone whether they want it or not.

"There's no earthly reason why the association should not be able to protect the rights of its members," she said.

But Cocke retaliated that Jordan "should be writing some kind of fairy tales for a grown-up child."

Province Reclassifies Women: They're Not Infants, Lunatics

Legislation amending 27 provincial acts to eliminate all "statutory slurs" against women, was introduced in the house Wednesday.

The Status of Men and Women Amendment Act was drafted in recognition of International Women's Year and the equality of sexes before the law, said Attorney-General Alex Macdonald.

It removes from the statute books such anachronisms as the reference to homes "for the reformation of fallen women" and the classification of women in the same category as "infants, absentees and lunatics."

It also removes certain special exemptions for women under the law and will mean in the future women can be called in to fight fires, and assist in dyke construction.

Women will be allowed to work underground in mines without having to seek special permission from the mines department and the allowance for different curfew times for girls and boys will also be eliminated under the new legislation.

The bill is the result of a survey of all provincial legislation by the attorney-general's department and the human rights commission, said Macdonald.

"It's a matter of clearing out archaic language that discriminates against women . . . but we think it's important, in total context," said the minister, "although the main basis of discrimination is still to be found in cultural habits, in our education and in our social conduct.

"We're determined to wipe out the last vestiges of female serfdom that has come down to us from the dark ages."

Under the Libel and Slander Act as it exists, a person who impunes the chastity of a female can be sued without proving a monetary loss, said Macdonald.

"We had to consider whether or not that should apply to imputing the unchastity of a male or whether that provision should be altogether done away with . . . and we chose the second course," he added.

The same applied to the reference to homes for fallen women under the list of properties exempted from the Taxation Act, said Macdonald, and it was decided not to include homes for fallen men but simply to eliminate the reference.

In the Department of Highway and Department of Public Works Acts, a section places women in the same category as lunatics in needing somebody else to administer contracts for them.

Throughout the new amendment legislation, the word male is replaced by person and widow replaced by spouse.

. . . dark ages over

A-G to Probe Socred Fund Bid

The provincial attorney-general's department will investigate applications for student employment funds made by Social Credit constituency organizations.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Wednesday it "may be" that false statements were made on the applications and that the Socred associations have broken the law.

Labor Minister Bill King has called it "shocking" that 42 Socred party organizations would apply for public funds to pay for people to work for their party during the summer.

To receive funds equivalent to 50 per cent of the cost of employing students in the summer, applicant must be bona fide small businesses or, in special cases, non-profit organizations, said King, and the Socred groups do not fall into those categories.

Only the Prince George organization is registered as a non-profit society, he said, but it has not submitted a required annual report since 1971 and will therefore not receive funds.

Socred party president Grace McCarthy said the applications were simply a ploy by the Socreds to see what the NDP government's stand is on public funds for political parties.

Since the government has reacted with shock to the applications, it must be against public funding of parties and therefore cannot bring in any election expenses legislation providing for public funding, she said.

But King dismissed McCarthy's explanation saying it is "akin to pilfering a store jjust to test the security of the store."

He said the two situations of public funding are not parallel because the student employment program was approved by the legislature specifically to aid small businesses.

By the Sea, By the Sea By the Beautiful Sea

Our notes here the other day on the sheer physical invigoration of a trip into the interior of the province prompted an amusing letter from a gent who has retired from his work in Prince George and will spend his remaining years in Victoria — in an apartment on Dallas Road, to be exact, just across the street from the mysterious sea.

"Yes," he notes, having digested my delight in the joys bof mountain air, "but would you want to live there?"

It's a letter that practically demands some reflection on the curse and the pleasures of living by tidewater which, with very brief and enforced periods, has been the story of my life.

The curse is that a man who has spent this many years by salt water is simply incapable of living anywhere else with complete contentment. I'm often asked why I left Toronto and what may have been the best newspaper job in the country. The absolute, crazy truth is that I couldn't live a full life when the nearest ocean was a thousand or more miles away.

I am not at all sure that this may be explained by the theory of the late Rachel Carson and others who have suggested that, since we all crawled from the sea a great many centuries ago, we have a subconscious pull toward it. They have called it "Mother Sea" for that reason. Well, that's a bit vast for a brain the size of mine. But, for any number of reasons, I am drawn to it hypnotically and you could say that my life has been dictated by that pull.

It is by no means an isolated affliction. Anyone who has spent a few weeks exposed to it develops a case of sea fever that will last a lifetime. Whenever I meet my old friend Arthur Mayse, himself a beach dweller for most of his life and a man who has written some of the most beautiful and memorable accounts of it, we end up talking of how lucky we've been to be waterfront dwellers, though it's cost us both whatever small fame or fortune might otherwise have come our way.

One attraction certainly is the incredible number of moods that any stretch of contemplated ocean water present to the viewer. Years ago, when we moved to a beach on Salt Spring Island, I jotted down notes from time to time on the many faces of Booth Bay, ranging from an absolutely motionless haze to the kind of complete fury that hit us on the windy Easter weekend. The project was eventually abandoned simply because that bay is hardly ever the same from one day to the next. Only the gulls, the crows, the heron standing, long-legged, at low tide, the diving ducks, are constant.

There is, too, the magical delivery system of the ceaseless tide which, eventually, makes every waterfornt man a compulsive beachcomber. I'm often told about Sid Barron, the artist and Toronto Star cartoonist who lives in James Bay and is said to have a home-full of objects from the beach — gnarled bits of driftwood, buoys, stones and shells and the rest — and have heard him described as an eccentric for this reason.

But at this moment on any stretch of strand in the wide world — on the rocky, Atlantic coast of Brazil, on the channel tide flats at Calais, along the Capetown shore — there are people involved in precisely this kind of salvage job.

There is not a morning that passes, whatever chores I may have for the day, that I don't begin with a preliminary survey of what the tide has brought in. There is, in fact, a breed that will find a use for almost anything that has been washed ashore. Thus, this week, when the beach was littered with tiny, orange, deep-water starfish, no bigger than your hand, loosened by the dragging nets of the shrimp boats from Crofton, the beach was suddenly crowded with people who took them away for reasons that I'll probably never know.

We, ourselves, over the years, have had a more or less constant supply of firewood and building materials delivered by the pull of the moon to our front door. Mayse, himself, has written with characteristic awe of the occasional bark tide when the beach is covered by the best of all burning wood, sometimes in great, long slabs from the hide of firs.

This very week we've had a delivery of the finest of all garden growers, a long line of seaweed that looks exactly like chopped spinach. The trick here is to wait until the tide is about half way in, at which point the small waves have nudged it along the edge of the beach in a thick, lava-like scallop of aromatic greenery, and you simply rake it into piles. Vegetables and flowers of every kind take to it as a baby takes to mother's milk.

It has been a week, too, when, making my first morning survey from the porch, I saw a flat-bottom, plywood rowboat drifting empty around the point so that everything had to come to a halt while we rowed out for the salvage. One side, the side we could not see, turned out to have been stove in, but it may be repaired by the inevitable neighbor who is handy at such things and anyway, as I say, anything looks better than it is when it comes from nowhere.

You are forever conscious, as well, that the sea, so constantly beautiful, may also be cruel. I think of our neighbor, Ruth Heinekey who, walking the beach one serene, slumbering morning after a gale, was confronted by the body of a man whose skiff, overloaded with clams, had gone down in the storm, and in our own time here a half dozen persons have gone down forever in those innocent-looking depths.

Our own brushes with such disasters have been more comical than tragic. I think of the afternoon when a woman swimmer, out in the bay, suddenly began to thrash about and call for help. My wife and I ran to our dinghy, to which a small, outboard motor was attached. As we staggered down the beach my wife's bikini top slid to her waist and when we had finally reached the swimmer and I manouvered the boat to bring her in the raised motor conked her smartly across the back of the head. She was suddenly swimming strongly for the shore, escaping the greater menace of her rescuers than the sea itself.

That very same evening, sitting on the proch, watching the rising of a full moon, we heard thin, piteous cries for help far out in the channel. Since our outboard was in its usual state of unresponsiveness we rowed out into the darkening night, straining on the oars for at least a mile and a half. At the point of total exhaustion we could see the hull of the small cruiser ahead and rowed on desperately. At that point the engine of the cruiser roared into life and it disappeared, never to be seen again.

Well, I've written the Dallas Road gent to tell him all this and to explain why we could never live up there in the interior, though, Lord knows, it is a grand place to visit.

Five-Mill Tax Hike For City

Victoria city council today gave first readings to its $33.2 million budget bylaw for 1975, which makes provision for a $4.4 million hike in municipal expenditures and involves a mill-rate increase of slightly less than five mills.

The levy for general city purposes is established at 43.48 mills this year, 4.96 mills higher than the 1974 rate.

But levies for education, hospital purposes, the regional district, and the B.C. Assessment Authority added to the city requisition bring the combined mill-rate to 89.97 mills—a 13.61-mill increase over last year.

Finance committee chairman Ald. Sam Bawlf today explained that the budget in its present form is a "best-guess" document which, due to the difficulties of the civic dispute, had to be prepared without the usual preliminary of thorough departmental expenditure reviews.

But once the budget is adopted to meet the May 15 deadline under the Municipal Act, those detailed studies will be carried out and adjustments made, he said.

"That will probably be done with more vigor than at any time in the city's recent history," Bawlf added. "We have a mandate to cut costs wherever possible."

Firemen First To Order Smoke Alarms

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Saanich is introducing a fire safety program unique in Canada.

Long advocated by Chief Harold Gains, the municipality will sell smoke detectors to residents for less than $50.

Gains says if the program catches on provincially it will save lives and reduce fire premium costs.

The smoke detectors are easy to screw into the ceiling and blend with their surroundings. They're an ionization type, sensitive to combustible products in the air, and powered by seven batteries.

The batteries, Gains says, will last from a year to 18 months and can be replaced for $6.

"Battery-powered detectors are better than electrical ones," Gains said. "If fire knocked out an electrical system then people would be left without a warning system."

Saanich will call tenders for the devices next week and Gains said delivery could be expected within a month.

The council voted Monday to buy 500 and by Tuesday all 18 firemen on duty had ordered one. Municipal administrator Bill Tremayne also ordered one.

Gains said residents are already phoning and asking to be put on the list.

Purchasers must show proof they live in Saanich and indications are there will be many repeat orders.

The only other similar program Gains knows of is run by the borough of Monroeville in Pennsylvania.

It ordered 2,000 detectors as an initial introduction, selling 1,900 of them in 60 days. Now the borough requires the devices be installed in all single-family homes and duplexes.

As a result of this over-all use of devices, the borough has a .3 per cent drop in fire insurance rates for all its residents.

Chief Gains and his compact life-saver

"I've phoned the underwriters to see if our rates could be affected," Gains said. "I was told if the devices were used on a much broader base, say provincially, there would be a re-examination of their ratings."

Gains is hoping residents in other municipalities of the Greater Victoria area will contact their fire departments if they are interested in obtaining this modestly-priced protection.

"If the other chiefs feel as I do the service could spread. Not only would the devices be saving lives, they would also be saving an awful lot of property so lower insurance rates would be justified."

The fire marshal's department in Vancouver has approved the project.

The chief quelled fears of some residents that they could be away on holidays and return after two or three weeks, not knowing the batteries that power the detector are dead.

"They'll have ample warning," Gains said. "There's a two-week toning device that will give intermittent tones when the batteries are getting low."

Gains said he would like to see all apartments and single-family homes fitted with the devices.

"Ninety-nine people out of 100 don't die of burns, they die of asphyxiation," Gains said. "The detectors, which have a three-year warranty, are very reliable, and will give people ample time to get out of the house."

The detectors will be sold at the main firehall on Vernon.

Bawlf Rejects Mass Heritage Designation

BAWLF

Victoria's Heritage Advisory Committee today urged city council to designate 133 buildings in the city's central area as heritage structures, but committee chairman Ald. Sam Bawlf dissociated himself from the recommendation.

In an interview before this afternoon's regular council meeting, where the committee's report was to be presented, Bawlf said he would explain to fellow-aldermen that he feels designation of all the suggested buildings is "definitely not warranted at this time."

"In bringing this recommendation forward I think they are being premature," he added.

Bawlf explained that he had authorized an "informal gathering" of the committee so that some progress could be made during his absence last month. The meeting was attended by only three members.

The likely result of council consideration of the report today would be a request for reappraisal of the heritage list by the full committee, he said.

The committee recently published a fully-illustrated "Heritage Conservation Report" listing 133 buildings as "deserving primary and immediate attention by council," and it is these structures which the committee today recommended for designation.

Of the total, 95 are privately owned and the remainder either government-owned or under some form of quasi-public ownership, such as churches and clubs.

Heritage designation is a procedure under the Municipal Act which permits municipalities to protect historically and esthetically valued older buildings. Any building so designated cannot be demolished or altered externally without specific council approval.

In other recommendations aimed at stimulating "revitalization" of the central area's heritage architecture, the Heritage Advisory Committee today proposed:

—Establishment of a heritage office to administer heritage designation bylaws and advise on improvements to older buildings;

—A renewed civic clean-up and paint-up program;

—And further approaches to senior governments for legislative changes that would assist preservation efforts.

Among the legislative changes earlier suggested by the committee is one that would give municipalities the power to stall for 30 days the issuance of a demolition permit where that would conflict with a heritage designation bylaw in course of preparation.

It also proposed "conditional" demolition permits, under which the holders would be required to preserve listed architectural features, or turn over to public custody artifacts that would otherwise be destroyed.

LIDSTER
. . . familiar figure

Disabled Victorian Honored

He received an award set up in 1969 which recognizes disabled persons who, through their own efforts, establish themselves and encourage others to do the same.

Lidster, who is blind, paralyzed from the chin down as a result of rheumatoid arthritis, is the author of No Time for Why, a book which describes how he came to terms with his disabilities.

Lidster said today he doesn't know the nature of the award and can only imagine it is some kind of certificate.

He sent a four-minute tape recorded acceptance speech to the rehabilitation council.

In it he said disabled people are "on the threshold of the most exciting productive period ever faced by them."

He said concern in the community for disabled people is growing and electronic devices are giving disabled persons a greater measure of independence and a greater opportunity to live nearer to a normal pattern of life.

Disabled people, he said, don't need to be depressed.

Lidster enjoyed a normal boyhood in New Westminster until striken by progressive, destructive rheumatoid arthritis and declining sight in his high school days.

No Time for Why was published in 1973. He won first prize in 1957 in an essay contest sponsored by the Canadian Council for the Blind.

Suspect in Murder Picked Up in City

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Canadian Immigration officials in Victoria are holding a 23-year-old man whom they believe is wanted to face charges in Lebanon, Indiana, for a 1972 murder and attempted murder.

John Brady Jenkins, who lived here under the name John Brady, was arrested Wednesday afternoon while at work on a construction site in Saanich.

The arrest came as a shock to Jenkins' employer Fred Von Ilberg who described him as "a personable fellow, a first-class person."

Jenkins had been employed with Von Ilberg's firm, F.V.I. Development and Management Ltd., for the past seven months as a carpenter's helper.

"He was one of my best men, a very fine worker and I'll have trouble replacing him."

Von Ilberg said he received a call from Colwood RCMP Cpl. Ed Currie at 3 p.m. asking him to meet him at a restaurant on Pat Bay Highway to discuss a matter pertaining to one of his employees.

He said police told him Jenkins had been discovered through a credit check.

Von Ilberg, together with Currie and RCMP Constable Rick Lewis returned to the job site at 4 p.m. where Jenkins was arrested.

"John's fellow workers were completely flabbergasted," Von Ilberg said.

According to Von Ilberg and other sources, Jenkins had worked for a short time with Rubber Ducky Divers in Victoria measuring diving suits and before that had lived in Vancouver.

Immigration official Doug Cook said Jenkins entered Canada last September but other sources indicated the wanted man had been living in this country, mainly on the west coast for more than two years. Jenkins and his Canadian girlfriend, who was unaware of his background, rented a home on Stelly's Cross Road.

Jane Castle, city editor of the Lebanon Reporter, told the Times that Jenkins had been indicted following a shoot-out in August, 1972 on a farm southwest of Lebanon that left one man dead and another paralysed for life. She said Jenkins disappeared after the shootings. His car was discovered at an Indiana airport six weeks later.

She said Jenkins was married at the time. His wife is now believed to reside in nearby Indianapolis.

Jenkins has retained Victoria lawyer Brian Smith to represent him at an immigration inquiry expected to be held either later today or early Friday.

Sports Car Hits Tree, Driver Dies

Twenty-year-old Paul Charles Whillans of 1315 Gladstone was killed Wednesday night when his sports car crashed into a large oak tree at West Saanich Road and Stelly's Cross Road.

Whillans, who would have been 21 in four days and was engaged, was dead on arrival at Royal Jubilee Hospital soon after the accident which occurred at 11:05 p.m. He was the only occupant in the car.

Central Saanich police chief Bob Miles said officers at the scene estimated the car was travelling at between 90 and 100 mph when it failed to round a turn in the road, hit a sign, a telephone guy-wire and slammed sideways into the tree.

Miles said the car was demolished. Shreds of glass from the windshiled were hurled 250 feet down the road.

It was the first traffic fatality in Central Saanich this year.

Women Plan Outrage Day

Women's groups in Victoria are planning a rally and march to the legislature Saturday to mark Outrage Day, which has been called to protest government inaction on issues affecting women's rights.

The rally will start at 2 p.m. with a meeting at the Law Courts, 740 Burdett.

The group will also be demanding freedom for Dr. Henry Morgentaler, the Montreal doctor convicted for performing illegal abortions earlier this year.

Hospital Day Proclaimed But There'll Be No Show

Health Minister Dennis Cocke has proclaimed Monday Hospital Day but you won't be able to tell the difference at the area's major hospitals.

Overcrowded and over-extended, the Victoria General Hospital will be unable to be able to come through with a special show.

"We're holding off until we have something to show," a spokesman said.

Oak Bay Ald. Doug Watts, chairman of the hospital's board, said "The Victoria General Hospital is still experiencing peak occupancy with extra beds set up in all available areas such as sunrooms, classrooms and conference rooms."

Medical administrator of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, Dr. A. C. Pickles, said the hospital's facilities and personnel were stretched to the limit.

The Gorge Road Hospital, also, plans no special events.

The one exception in the area is the Saanich Peninsula Hospital at 2166 Mount Newton Cross Roads.

The extended care hospital, which has 75 patients, will hold an open house guided tour and tea from 2 to 4 p.m. and mount displays of work done by the patients.

Telephones Disrupted

About one-third of the incoming trunk telephone lines serving southeastern Victoria were put out of service this morning by malfunctioning computer switching equipment and B.C. Telephone Co. planned to keep them idle until late tonight.

A spokesman said half the automated equipment was deliberately switched off to avoid overtaxing the remaining circuits in the 592-598 series of prefixes.

The breakdown about 9 a.m. affected 92 of 240 trunks that carry calls from the 64,000 subscribers in the 38- zone to the 59- series, which are mainly in Oak Bay and South Fairfield.

17% Tax Increase for Saanich

Saanich residents are facing a hike of 5.85 mills in the general mill rate and an average increase of 15 to 17 per cent in their over-all taxes.

In the second of two budget sessions which ended at midnight Wednesday, council brought down a total budget of $25.8 million, $17.3 million for municipal services.

Council had given department heads notice before the budget sessions that the increase in mill rate from 40.38 was not to rise higher than 47 mills.

Comptroller-treasurer Roy Broughton said today the edict was made to hold the line in an emergency situation.

In the public works budget of $1,613,000, for example, no priorities were established. Projects will be funded in order of necessity.

People with sewered homes in the municipality will get a break.

"On the bright side," Broughton said, "Thanks to the provincial government's sewerage facilities assistance grant for work in excess of $3 million, the parcel tax has been reduced $11, from $36.70 to $25.70. There's also a reduction in the levy based on land assessment. On a $50,000 home this will amount to $9."

In a sewered home valued at $50,000, the net increase in the general municipal tax would be $30 because of the $20 reduction in sewer taxes. The over-all increase to the homeowner, including school taxes, hospitals, would bring the total increase to $103 in School District 61.

Because of the rise in school taxes in School District 63 (from 31.55 mills to 42.95 mills) the over-all increase in taxes to an owner of a home valued at $50,000 will be $168.

The big increase in school-tax in School Distict 63, will jump the over-all increase in taxes to about 25 per cent.

The budget for garbage collection was lopped by $100,000 and set at $634,800. Broughton said the engineering department has been askeed to review the garbage collection situation and come up with recommendations to cut costs.

Worst of Depression May Be Ahead: Expert

VANCOUVER (CP) — The worst of the current recession may be ahead of us, says Hal Sigurdson, an expert in cleaning up the debris of bankruptcies.

Sigurdson is senior partner of Dunwoody and Co., a national firm of chartered accountants which in Vancouver does about a quarter of its business handling bankruptcies.

His 20 years of experience in one of Vancouver's larger corporation morgues has led him to believe that the worst may be yet to come.

"What has happened is that sales have not fallen off as it was thought they would and banks have extended credit to companies that needed it," Sigurdson said in an interview.

"It's possible also that shareholders have left money in their companies to finance inventories," he said, adding that he thinks a number of companies have borrowed to the maximum amount.

"If banks have lent them the last dollar that they're prepared to lend them . . . then troubles come.

"If sales continue at low levels because of the recession, or if companies don't get better prices for their products (especially logging and timber), or if wage settlements are extravagant, then some will go over the brink.

"This is what might happen if things don't improve fairly soon for some industries . . . and there isn't a hell of a lot on the horizon to give us much confidence."

He said if banks tighten up credit "there could be terrible consequences."

Sometimes companies fall in a kind of domino effect, he explained, as several companies might fall because they lent money to each other.

He presented figures showing that business failures in B.C. totalled 34 in January compared with 27 in December and 21 last January.

Other factors besides tight money and recession conditions can bring businesses to their knees.

Sometimes a growing business may become a problem business. For instance, a successful body shop may expand to six other locations then fail because management hasn't the administrative skill to cope with that many units.

There is also the under-invested business. Sometimes someone with $50,000 will rush into a business despite a warning that $100,000 is needed.

"They are so anxious to get into business that they close their eyes to the risks . . . then they wind up in my hands," said Sigurdson, "It's the second buyer who's got it, not the improvident first investor."

The second investor might only have $60,000, "but if he gets the business for $25,000, he's got $35,000 left, and he gets a loan . . . then away he goes."

Another problem he said is poor record keeping.

After a company in Penticton went broke, it was discovered that although it kept a record of cheques, the company kept no books. It took almost four years to clean up the case.

Boeing

The Boeing Co. reports increased net earnings for the first quarter of 1975 but also told stockholders there was a slight decline in sales.

Boeing's net income for the first three months of 1975 was $18,492,000 compared with $17,638,000 for the first quarter of 1974. Share earnings were 87 cents compared with 83 cents for last year's first quarter.

A dividend of 20 cents a share was also declared.

The company reported sales of $839,895,000 for the quarter compared with $841,373,000 for the first quarter of 1974.

Warnock Hersey

Warnock Hersey International Ltd. reports its earnings, excluding extraordinary items, for the first quarter of 1975 were $404,000 or 20 cents a share compared with $828,000 or 42 cents a share for the corresponding period last year. Extraordinary items raised per-share earnings to 25 cents for the first quarter of 1975 and to 56 cents for the first quarter last year.

Garibaldi Lifts

Garibaldi Lifts Ltd. reports a profit of $241,000 in 1974, an increase from $187,900 in 1973.

The Vancouver-based operator of skiing facilities at Whistler Mountain experienced a 19 per cent rise in operazting revenue to $1.7 million from $1.5 million. Operating costs rose 14 per cent to $1.2 million from $1 million, President Franz M. Wilhelmsen said.

He said an unusually early snowfall in mid-November resulted in the mountain being ready for skiing from the first day of operation, Nov. 23, and during the first part of the operating season, from Jan. 1 to May 24, weather and snow conditions were favorable, he said. Mid-week attendance showed a marked increase as well, he added.

Chieftain

William Grace, financial vice-president of the petroleum exploration firm, said the 1974 income before extraordinary items was $436,603 compared with $328,697 during 1973.

Chieftain's 1974 net income was $478,793, compared with $661,691 during 1973. Grace said income of $337,994 from extraordinary, non-recurring items in 1973 distorted the comparison.

The extraordinary item resulted from a capital gain on the exchange of stock related to the firm's North Sea operations.

Stock Tax Shelters Eyed

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

The investment industry hopes it has convinced the federal government to permit the establishment of stock tax shelters for all Canadians.

The plan, devised by the Investment Dealers Association of Canada, has been presented to the federal cabinet on two occasions — and the preliminary reaction has been favorable.

"We won't know for sure until it is announced in some federal budget," said James Bassett, Vancouver Island director of the Investment Dealers Association.

A federal budget is due later this month, although a tax shelter plan is more likely to be announced closer to an election date, if it is approved by cabinet.)

The IDA plan would permit taxpayers to delay taxes on up to $5,000 per year, similar to a registered retirement savings plan.

The lifetime limit of the shelter would be $50,000 or $5,000 for each of 10 years.

Under the plan, an investor would be able to purchase Canadian shares of up to the value of $5,000 per year and write off $5,000 from his taxable income.

If he sold the shares, he would have to reinvest the money in other shares within six months to keep the cash inside the tax shelter.

As long as the money (in the form of shares) stays inside the shelter it is immune from taxation.

(The IDA, as a sidelight, has also proposed that any money received through an inheritance could also be pumped into a tax shelter immediately and that there be no limit to the amount of funds that are invested from inheritance sources.)

Like registered retirement savings plans, the stock investments would be subject to taxation in the year they are withdrawn from the plan.

Presumably this would be in retirement years when an investor's income is lower and subject to a lower rate of taxation.

For example, he could withdraw his $50,000 at the rate of $10,000 a year and pay about $2,000 a year tax on it.

The $50,000 could grow to $70,000 or more over the years.

If an investor puts $50,000 in, he would have been able to write off $50,000 against his taxes over a number of years.

If he pulls out $70,000 at retirement, the $50,000 (his original investment) would be subject to income tax and the profit, $20,000, would be subject to capital gains taxes.

More likely, he would pull it out in smaller amounts but the principle of taxation would be the same.

In the event the $50,000 was reduced to $40,000 — because the stocks performed poorly — he would pay income tax on the $40,000 only (and be eligible for a capital loss write-off on the $10,000).

One way or the other, the investor would eventually pay taxes but he would be encouraged to invest in Canadian equities and likely would be adding to his retirement fund. Any dividends would be taxed in the year they are received.

Under the plan, investment through mutual funds and other institutions would not be allowed.

One of the aims of the plan is to increase the number of individual investors in the market, to counteract the influence of the institutional traders, which are dominating the market.

Some federal cabinet ministers have expressed an interest in some aspects of the plan but there has never been a firm commitment from the cabinet.

"We hope to be pleasantly surprised in some federal budget," Bassett said.

Average U.S. Citizen 'Can't Afford' House

NEW YORK (AP) — A prominent American banker says the average family no longer can afford to buy the average single-family house.

"We've been pushing the limit for years, but recent events have pushed housing costs over the edge relative to the average man's ability to buy," said J. Rex Duwe, president-elect of the American Bankers Association.

Mr. Duwe, a Lucas, Kan., banker who this October takes over the reins of the 100-year old association, said government figures show that in 1973 the average family headed by a man had an average family income of about $13,000. The average family readed by a woman had an income of about $5,800.

Statistics also show that the average sale price of a new, one-family home, excluding mobile homes, was $32,800 in the same year.

"Using the rule of thumb that you shouldn't spend more than 2½ times your annual income on a house, the average household headed by a man could spend $32,500 for a home; and a household headed by a woman, about $14,500."

Fuel, taxes, and repair costs are rising.

And as values become inflated, homeowners must buy more insurance protection.

"The consumer price index already shows that one-third of every dollar we take home is going to housing," Mr. Duwe said in a much-discussed speech at a real estate conference in Denver last week.

"How much more can we afford?"

Mr. Duwe had his reasons for discussing housing costs.

"I've become tired of interest rates being the whipping boy for the housing problem," he said. "I'm weary of hearing in Congress and the media that interest rates are the total villain. It isn't so."

He said it is also time for the American people to re-examine the type of housing they want— and can afford.

The proper mix of housing to fit each community must be understood, including the number of single-family houses and the number of apartments, condominiums and others.

To bring down single-family home costs, Mr. Duwe referred to the contention of an architect that he could shave 25 per cent from housing prices through economies in site planning, building design and other changes.

As well, developers may offer houses with unfinished rooms. A two-storey house may have an expandable third level or an extra bathroom may be roughed in, to be used as a closet until the buyer finished it.

In addition, said Mr. Duwe, some resolution of practices that hinder cost reductions must be attempted, such labor practices, archaic building codes and restrictive zoning.

ALL FORD PLANTS CLOSING

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. will shut all of its 64 U.S. assembly and manufacturing plants for two or three weeks in July for worker vacations, the company said Wednesday.

Ford said it will be the first time the firm closes all its plants at virtually the same time. A company spokesman said Ford is taking the action because the current sales slump in the U.S. will not require continuous production through the end of the model year.

Ford vice-president Donald Bastian said all 17 assembly plants would close for two weeks, beginning July 14.

He said the Canton, Ohio, forge plant would close for two weeks, beginning June 30, while the other 46 manufacturing plants would be down two or three weeks, beginning either July 7 or 14.

Victim Jailed

MILAN, Italy (AP) — A wealthy industrialist kidnapped in 1972 and ransomed for $2.4 million has been jailed for refusing to give investigators information of his abduction, police said. Pietro Torielli, a shoe manufacturer, was held by kidnappers for 51 days.

Doors Open to Refugees

WASHINGTON (WP) — Thousands of Americans, stirred by the plight of 130,000 homeless Vietnamese coming to the U.S., have swamped the state department with offers of jobs, job training, temporary homes and financial assistance for the refugees.

This outpouring of support comes while other Americans —fearful of job competition and additions to welfare rolls — are expressing dismay that the country is taking in the refugees.

"I think Congress is getting the hate mail, while we're receiving the offers of support," said Chris Pappas, assistant director of state's office of refugee and migration affairs.

Some examples, state department and relief officials here reported: A man in Pontiac, Mich. offers to train a Vietnamese man to become an automobile mechanic; the mayor of Beckley, W. Va. said the town council had voted to support two refugee families; a firm in El Dorado, Kan. will train construction workers; farmers in Joplin, Mo. need farm hands, and a mushroom grower in Portland, Ore. wants helpers.

Many have called offering to open their homes to Vietnamese refugees while they become settled here, state department officials said.

Typical of the letters of this type, they say is one from a man in North Dakota:

"We live on a farm and we have plenty of meat, milk and eggs and garden produce. We would like to offer our home to a Vietnamese refugee family."

Five hundred offers of assistance were logged at the state department Tuesday, officials there said. Those getting through had to hold a half hour because of the volume of calls. Officials said Tuesday they will add more telephones to the 16 already in service.

Pappas said he believes part of the support comes from Americans who have been to Vietnam. "You can't send millions and millions of Americans there without some of them feeling ties to the place," he said.

"Another factor is that this is the traditional American response to a crisis. We saw the same kind of offers for the Hungarians and the Cubans. People feel an obligation to help." A minority of the callers have had questionable motives, state and relief officials said. Some seem to want wives, babies, live-in maids or nurses.

"Oh we're getting some people saying they are looking for domestics, some sharpies trying to rent apartments, but most of the offers sound legitimate," Pappas said.

A McLean, Va. retired couple who said they did not want personal recognition, offered to take in a family "because they are people in need. They've been called gooks too long. It's time we treated them like people."

John W. Hartigan, a navy department employee, said he and 30 colleagues who also worked in Vietnam are looking for Vietnamese friends who may have escaped. They want to offer housing and job assistance.

The state department is collecting such specific offers in a computer, along with the names of all the refugees, in hopes of making connections.

General offers of support are being forwarded to the American Council of Voluntary Agencies in New York, where they are distributed to volunteer relief workers at the three refugee camps.

John McCarthy, executive director of the U.S. Catholic conference refugee section, one of the agencies working directly with the refugees, said his representatives at the refugee camps will first attempt to relocate Vietnamese with relatives or friends, or if they have none, where they can find suitable employment. "We'll try to match them to their skills," he said. "We won't have a surgeon picking mushrooms."

Of each 1,000 coming into the camps, 160 are men of working age, 240 are women and 600 are children, he said. About 70 per cent have at least some command of English.

CITY TEACHER BACKS WHALES

Signatures to a letter of protest against indiscriminate killing of whales are being sought by one of the Victoria founders of the Greenpeace Foundation.

Peter King, an elementary school teacher, said the letter will be sent to the federal government.

"We hope everyone will get behind this petition," he said. "Several species of whales are in danger of extinction. We must stop the slaughter of these intelligent mammals."

King said the government is doing nothing to help save whales from extinction.

Funds are also needed to assist the Greenpeace mission in Pacific whaling waters, he said.

Some of the money would be used to pay for recording the sound of whales being slaughtered by Japanese whalers.

"The recording will eventually be played back to the International Whaling Commission," he explained. "Members of the commission have no idea of the brutal way whales are killed. The recording may wake them up."

Meanwhile, world-famous flutist Paul Horn, a Greater Victoria resident, said Tuesday he will join the Greenpeace mission in the Pacific.

"I've had personal contact with killer whales," he said, "and feel they have great intelligence. There was a definite response from them and I felt they had a keen sense of awareness.

Why you should own sterling silver Canadian Olympic Coins even if you've never collected coins before.

$5 — Canoeing $10 — Cycling $10 — Lacrosse $5 — Rowing

To commemorate and help finance the 1976 Montreal Olympics, the Government of Canada is issuing a special limited edition of 28 sterling silver coins.

It is a fact that every previously issued Olympic Coin, whether minted in 480 B.C. or 1972 A.D., is now a collector's item available only through resale. So it was no surprise that when Canadian Olympic Coins were first offered in Canada, Japan and Europe, the demand was great. There are many reasons why you should consider these coins.

Single encapsulated coins. Uncirculated coins are available individually in transparent capsules made of styrene crystal.
FROM $8.00

2½ troy pounds of silver- An impressive treasury.

The collector who acquires all seven series of Canadian Olympic Coins will possess a most impressive treasury of silver. Each $10 coin weighs 1.44 troy ounces of pure silver. Each $5 coin weighs .72 troy ounces of pure silver. A 4-coin series, comprising two $5 and two $10 coins, contains 4.32 troy ounces of precious silver. The full 28-coin collection weighs more than two and a half troy pounds of silver.

The coins are considerably larger in size than any coin in your pocket. In fact, the $10 coin is 45 mm in diameter, larger than a silver dollar. The special size and weight give the coins a heft that is most satisfying.

FROM $9.00

Handsome works of art- Seven series in all.

Coins that have become prized collectors' items are not only valued for their precious metal content, but also for their aesthetic appeal. The Olympics especially have inspired magnificent commemorative art and Canadian Olympic Coins are handsome additions to this coin category.

Legal tender- Largest matched set ever.

These Olympic Coins are not medals. They are legal tender, struck by the Royal Canadian Mint and backed by the Government of Canada for their full face value. This is the first time that $5 and $10 silver coins have ever been issued in Canada. The 28 coins, 7 series of 4 coins each, represent the largest matched set ever in the history of Olympic Coins. Past issues of Olympic Coins have shown tremendous increases in value. For example, the 1972 Munich coins have nearly tripled in value.

Four-Coin Prestige Set. A set of four coins inset in a blue mock-velvet removable platform. Case is textured in matte black.

Participate in the Olympics- Support amateur athletes.

Canadian Olympic Coins make it possible for every Canadian to participate in the Olympics.

When you purchase Olympic Coins, you will contribute to the growth of amateur sport in Canada and to the Canadian Olympic Team. Money raised through the sale of these coins will be used to support training programs for Canadian amateur athletes and to build facilities for the Olympic Games.

Proof Coins. These coins are available in sets only. They are double-struck from specially selected blanks. Deluxe case is Canadian White Birch with a tanned steer hide cover. Certificate of authenticity is included.

Start your collection today- Series III available now.

You can purchase coins individually from $8, or you can choose from several 4-coin sets from $47.50. All coins are protected in clear styrene crystal capsules to ensure continued brilliance and beauty.

Series III is now available at banks, financial institutions and authorized distributors wherever you see the red, white and blue display.

Times Back in Swing With Tennis Tourney

It's tennis time again and time for the Second Annual Victoria Times Public Parks Tennis Tournament.

That means it's time for you to get into action and start swinging that racquet. For this is the one big tournament of the summer designed exclusively for those who do not belong to private clubs, but play their tennis on public parks courts.

Sponsored jointly by the Victoria Times and the Vancouver Island Lawn Tennis Association (VILTA), the tournament will get under way with first-round matches starting Friday, May 30. Just fill in the entry form on this page and send it to the Times. Entries close May 23.

If you played in last year's popular inaugural tournament, you will know how things work. For those who didn't play last time and want to get in on the action this year, this is how it goes:

● There will again be four events, men's singles, women's singles and junior boys' and girls' singles. The age limit will be over 14 and (for juniors) under 18 as of Oct. 1, 1974.

● There are no entry fees but entries are restricted to those who play only on public parks courts. Members of private clubs or those belonging to public-court teams playing in the Island League are not eligible.

● When all the entries have been received and the draw made out, a committee (headed by VILTA tournament chairman Peter Lembke) will send post cards to all players notifying them of the opponents against whom they have been drawn.

● The postcards will inform one of the players involved in each match that he or she is responsible for contacting the opponent, arranging a mutually-suitable time and place to play; for providing new balls and for filling in the card with the complete result and mailing it back to the Times. The same procedure will be followed for each round.

● Players in the tournament will have no preference over those already using public courts in the four Greater Victoria municipalities but will be allowed to complete their matches before giving up the courts. (The Times regrets that, because of shortage of facilities, it is unable to extend boundaries beyond Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt.)

● All matches up to the semi-finals will be of one pro set, with the winner being the first to win nine games. A tiebreaker will be played at 8-8 if necessary. Semi-finals and finals will be best-of-three normal sets.

● First-round matches will start Friday, May 30, and players will be given 10 days to play their game and have the result back in to the Times. If no result is received in that time, both players will be defaulted. The tournament will run through June, July and August with a grand-finals day planned for early September.

● The Times will provide prizes to the winnrs and runners-up in all events and it is hoped again, with the co-operation of Delta Hotels, to bring interntional star Mark Cox over to conduct a special clinic for players who reach the semi-finals of all four events.

Last summer, Gordon Liebscher battled through a field of 89 entries in the men's singles and defeated Tom Dumancic 6-3, 7-5 in a hard-hitting final. B.C. junior badminton champ Liz Anne Ogden downed Jo-Anne Stone 6-4, 6-0 in the women's final and the junior champions were Greg Booth and Linda Weech.

When the Times announced this new concept in tournament tennis for the masses last year, VILTA president Greg Miller was delighted and predicted it would "encourage a lot more people to play tournament tennis — people who would not otherwise get the chance."

He was right.

Many of those who savored their first taste of competition in the Times tournament have come back for more in this season's VILTA events. Mrs. Stone was a runner-up in the "B" women's singles in the Island Indoor Classic and last weekend Jim Temple, a Times tourney semi-finalist, was runner-up in the "B" men's singles in the Capital City Championships.

And Miller says VILTA is again delighted to be associated with the Times in running this year's tournament.

"It's the grass-roots tournament of the year," says Miller, referring of course to the people it's designed for and not the court surface. "This type of public tournament is helping tennis greatly and is now being sponsored by newspapers all over Britain."

"It's a marvellous idea," says the VILTA president. "The Times tourney was a fantastic success last year and it should be even better this time."

Series-Extending Islanders Happy With 'Extra Help'

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP) — Denis Potvin of New York Islanders figures his team had a little extra help on its side Wednesday night.

"The good Lord helped us out a little bit and I hope we make sure we thank him for it," said Potvin, grateful that the Islanders were still alive in the National Hockey League playoffs.

The Islanders, indeed, had a lot to thankful for in scoring a 4-3 overtime win on Jude Drouin's goal, preventing Philadelphia Flyers from completing a four-game sweep in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final.

For instance:

—Bill Barber was awarded a penalty shot, only the sixth in playoff history, late in the first period. The Flyer left-winger shot too high, enabling goalie Glenn Resch to get a piece of it and make an eye-catching save.

—Reg Leach of the Flyers appeared to have broken a 3-3 tie by scoring in the last second of play. Referee Dave Newell signalled "no goal" because the third period already had ended. The green light flicked for a second or two and the buzzer had sounded just before the goal, the officials said.

The entire Flyer team was in a brief uproar, believing they had won the series in four consecutive games. Philadelphia leads the series 3-1, with the fifth game tonight in Philadelphia.

"After that buzzer sounded, I thought everything was gone," said Potvin. "We really got a break."

Resch himself thought he had lost the game.

"I don't know whether it was a goal or not," he said. "I heard the buzzer but my back was to it.

"I was upset. I thought I had blown it."

Leach said he had skated away from the net thinking he had scored.

"I just shot it and it went in," he said. "Sure I put it in.

"I was maybe three or four feet away from him (Resch). It went in between his legs. I didn't think the clock ran out."

The Islanders won because they checked and skated with the Flyers most of the time and got the breaks. They had their first lead of the series when they pile up a 3-0 advantage in the first 32½ minutes of the game.

But New York tired on occasion and the Flyers jumped on every mistake they could, coming back to tie the score on Rick MacLeish's sixth and seventh goals of the playoffs and a goal by Ross Lonsberry.

By the end of regulation time, the Flyers had a 38-28 edge in shots.

But the Islanders needed just one shot in overtime to win.

Drouin was alone when he beat goalie Bernie Parent at 1:53 to end Philadelphia's unbeaten string at 21 games going back to March 8 in the regular season.

"It was me and the Flyers," said Drouin. "If I had missed it I would have shot myself."

It was captain Ed Westfall, who had scored New York's first goal, who started the play that put the Islanders back in the series.

He carried the puck over the blueline himself, then flipped a pass to Drouin that bounced over his stick. J. P. Parise picked up the loose puck and passed it to Drouin, who was by then alone in front of the net.

"I noticed Bernie Parent was more on the lefthand side of the net, so I had to go to my backhand, which I did," said Drouin.

Coach Al Arbour of the Islanders said there was "no doubt" in his mind that the period was over when Leach scored.

"I don't think there was too much argument about that, but the Flyers argued," he said.

Islander general manager Bill Torrey said the timekeeper caused the confusion by turning off the green light indicating the end of the period too quickly.

He said a videotape of the game confirmed that the green light flashed before Leach scored.

After Westfall's power-play goal early in the first period, defenceman Gerry Hart made it 2-0 when he shot a 25-footer after taking a pass from Andre St. Laurent behind the net early in the second period.

Ralph Stewart gave the Islanders a three-goal lead on another power play but Lonsberry and MacLeish cut that lead to one goal, scoring before the period ended.

The fifth game of the best-of-seven series will be played Friday night in Boston with the defending NBA champions fighting to avoid elimination.

Sports: An Escape Valve That's Open to Everyone

bill walker

Back in the dirty thirties the lyricists had a word for the depression. Matter of fact they had several. And one ballad went something like this: "Potatoes are cheaper, tomatoes are cheaper; now's the time to fall in love."

Today, the message could probably be adapted to sound like this: "Money is scarcer, credit is tighter, tickets are higher, now's the time to go out to the old ball game."

It's a paradox of the times, which puzzles economists and sociologists alike, but of all the seemingly indispensable commodities that govern our every-day lives, sports do appear to have been one of the least affected by the restrictive economy across the nation and in the U.S.

But then it has long been held axiomatic the play life of any race reveals, to a greater degree than any other activity, its inherent mental and physical characteristics. So why not?

Crowd totals are up nearly everywhere, and still on the rise in many major sports. Major League baseball drew 30 million fans last season. only 100,000 or so below the record year of 1973 and, the way the turnstiles are clicking this year, there will be another record by fall. The American League alone is up 11 per cent and the pennant races haven't even heated up yet, while Los Angeles, the perennial leader in attendance, is already 8 per cent better than '74 and, with the Dodgers pennant material, the sky's the limit.

Rewarded with Price Boost

The National Hockey League recently announced its best year ever in attendance which was understandable because there were two new teams, Kansas City and Washington, but even around the league better crowd totals were the rule rather than the exception. Vancouver Canucks, for instance. played a full season to a sell-out house, and is assured of the same next year even though ticket prices have been boosted to a $10 top. If the cross-rink Blazers went under and moved to Calgary, it was possibly to be expected in light of their dismal record. But still, even in the World Hockey Association an increase of 17 per cent in attendance on the season was announced shortly before the end of the year.

Professional basketball was down slightly in the NBA, but in Seattle the Sonics were playing to sell-outs. In pro football, there was a slight drop, about 3,000 a game, but there was also a good reason. The drop was attributed to the pre-season players strike and action by U.S. Congress in ending blackouts of sold-out home games. The key word is "sold-out".

Major sporting goods companies, which cater to everyone, haven't suffered materially from the inflated operating costs which plague the major professional clubs and also amateur organizations.

Tennis on the Upswing

The only downtrend noted by one major concern was in skiing equipment. There were otherwise brisk sales in tennis, bowling and golf, with tennis perhaps showing the biggest boost. Tennis, too, has been a big draw with its many tournaments and attendant publicity on TV. Tournament golf still commands tremendous crowds, but tennis is cutting into the overall popularity of golf because it is less expensive. Bowling has always been big, especially in the U.S.

In Victoria, if auto racing at Western is still No. 1, and holding, junior hockey screamed for attention this spring, got it, and the Cougars set a new attendance mark. Last fall, the Canadian fastball championship was an outstanding success and Victoria fans responded in record numbers. And in boating — Wow! The sales figures on the Island are probably staggering even if people generally aren't travelling as much as before.

So what's the reason? Who really knows, except that for most, sports is an escape valve. It's so easy to become an expert, to identify with a hero, to hit a wedge a la Jack Nicklaus, if only once; to scream at the referee, because he can't scream back; to thrill to the roar of the super-stock, and put yourself in the driver's seat; or just to say "the hell with it. I'm going to have some fun and let tomorrow take care of itself."

Me, too. I think I'll go fishing.

Major Junior Leagues Unite

Times News Services

Officials of Canada's three major junior hockey leagues have called a news conference for today in Kitchener where they are expected to announce agreement on a constitution for a new Canadian Major Junior Hockey League.

Representatives of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior "A" series, the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League and the Western Canada Hockey League met for four hours Wednesday to iron out details of the constitution.

Officials did not say how the league would operate but Ed Chynoweth, WCHL president, had previously stated that travel costs would preclude a full interlocking schedule. Instead, teams might play one nationally-televised inter-divisional game a week.

You Must Be Fast To Enter This One

NANAIMO — You just move quickly to succeed on the tennis courts and in the case of the Vancouver Island Closed Championships here May 17 and 18, you'll have to move quickly to get into the tournament.

Entry deadline is 5 p.m. Wednesday, May 14, and it's on a first-come, first served basis with a limit of 32 entries in each of six events — men's and women's "A" singles, men's and women's "B" singles — men's open doubles and women's open doubles.

The fee is $4 for singles and $3 per player for doubles. All entries, with fees enclosed, must be mailed to Bert Lam, 11 Giggleswick Place, Nanaimo. In Greater Victoria, entry forms are available at the Oak Bay Tennis Club, the Racquet Club and the Island Indoor Tennis Club.

All players must report to the starter's desk at 8:30 a.m. May 17 at the Bowen Park tennis courts.

New Group to Boost Sports Projects

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

Vic Lindal's brainchild has a home for 1975.

The Pacific Rim junior "A" men's and women's volleyball tournament, conceived by the B.C. provincial coach last year, will take place August 14-16 at the University of Victoria.

Announcement of the site was made Wednesday at the Princess Mary by the Victoria Amateur Sports Event Association, a group of businessmen committed to aiding local amateur sports groups.

Last year's inaugural tournament was held in Hawaii with powerful Japan winning both the men's and women's competitions.

This year Lindal expects Japan, Korea, the U.S., a separate team from Hawaii, Canada and possibly China to compete.

"We'd really like to see China come here for the tournament," said Lindal. "Laurie Wallace (Deputy Provincial secretary) sent them a special invitation but we haven't heard anything yet."

Representing Canada at the event will be the B.C. provincial teams.

"The Canadian Volleyball Association didn't want to get together the national junior teams for the tournament, so it agreed with me to use our provincial teams," added Lindal.

And that couldn't make the provincial coach happier.

"I think it's a great opportunity for our B.C. clubs to get some international experience," he said, "and it's because of events like these (Rim tournament) that this province leads the country in volleyball."

Seeking an avenue for international meets last year, Lindal travelled to Hawaii and convinced volleyball interests there to hold the first Rim tournament. Then he talked several countries into participating. The result was a smashing success.

Responsibility for promotion of this year's tournament rests mainly with the VASPEA and it will be the association's first major operation.

"We're doing this as individuals and there will definitely be no companies involved," said Reg Mooney, president of the association.

Aims of the society are to promote special events, help sports groups take on financially risk-oriented projects, guarantee losses when working with a sports group on a project and build a trust fund strictly to aid Victoria amateur sports.

"The businessmen involved in this group have the experience available to take the risks of promoting events which might not do as well if promoted strictly by the sports group," explained Mooney.

The society, with an executive of eight, doesn't plan to raise funds or promote the bigger sports events, such as a hockey, lacrosse or baseball tournament.

"We're looking for those groups which don't have any support at all," added Mooney.

The association's first project was the Jan. 19 volleyball match between Korea and Canada at UVic.

"None of us will make any money out of this," said Mooney. "Any profits from events will be put in the trust fund and then allocated back to the sports groups."

Lindal is vice president of the association and Arlene Vickery is treasurer. Other executive members are John McDonald, Jim Cowie, George Easdon, Robbie Dunn and Gordon Vickery.

A GOLF BIRDIE AND A REAL ONE

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Defending champion George Burns had two birdies on the eighth hole of the fourth round in the North and South amateur golf tournament Wednesday.

One was a birdie four that helped the Port Washington, N.Y, golfer to a 5 and 4 victory over Vance Heafner of Cary, N.C.

The other was a red-headed woodpecker.

Burns hooked his tee shot into the pine trees. When the ball came to rest, the curious woodpecker perched atop it. He began pecking at the ball, without moving it, however.

After the bird was shooed away by a tournament official, Burns proceeded to hit his next shot into a trap but blasted within a foot of the cup for his birdie-four.

Deron's Key Hit Lifts Sox to Win

By The Associated Press

Deron Johnson's two-run pinch single with the bases loaded capped a three-run ninth-inning rally that lifted Chicago White Sox to a 3-2 American League baseball victory Wednesday night over Minnesota, snapping the Twins' four-game winning streak.

In other American League games, it was: Baltimore Orioles 4, New York Yankees 3; Milwaukee Brewers 7, Detroit Tigers 5, and Boston Red Sox 4, Cleveland Indians 2.

Cincinnati Reds whipped San Deigo Padres in one of six National League games. In other action, San Francisco Giants beat Atlanta Braves 6-2; Pittsburgh Pirates downed New York Mets 6-1; Chicao Clubs blanked Montreal Expos 7-0; Philadelphia Phillies defeated St. Louis Cardinals 4-1 and Los Angeles Dodgers topped Houston Astros 5-1.

Bert Blyleven blanked the White Sox on five hits for eight innings but was replaced by Bill Campbell after issuing a leadoff walk to Bill Melton in the ninth. Campbell got one out but singles by Tony Muser and Ken Henderson produced Chicago's first run. Campbell walked Brian Downing to load the bases and Johnson greeted Tom Burgmeier, the third pitcher of the inning, with his game-winning hit.

Mike Cuellar pitched a five-hitter and Al Burmbry hit a tie-breaking bases-loaded single off Sparky Lyle with two out in the ninth inning, lifting the Orioles past the Yankees.

George Scott clouted a tie-breaking three-run double in the seventh inning to give the Brewers their victory over the Tigers. Jim Rice's homer sparked a three-run sixth inning that carried Boston past Cleveland.

Bruins Move Into Final

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Coach Ernie McLean wasn't surprised at the way his New Westminster Bruins out-skated, out-hit and forechecked Toronto Marlboros in Wednesday night's Memorial Cup hockey game.

"That's the way we always play," McLean said moments after the Bruins, champions of the Western Canada Hockey League, scored four goals in the final period to defeat the Marlboros 6-2 in the third game of the first round of the Canadian major junior championship.

The win gives the Bruins a bye into Sunday's 10:30 a.m. PDT final, while the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A winners from Toronto must play Sherbrooke Beavers in a sudden-death game Friday night to determine New Westminster's opponent.

Sherbrooke, representing the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League, lost both its games in the first round, a 5-4 overtime decision to the Marlboros on Saturday night, and a 7-5 Monday night loss to the Bruins.

Wednesday's game was supposed to feature the hard-hitting often-brutal tactics of the Bruins and the free-wheeling Toronto attack. The reverse was almost true.

And when the Marlboros did manage to get a shot away at Laxton—29 in all—the Bruins goaltender handled them easily.

McLean sees penalty killing as the key to his team's win.

The Bruins had to kill off seven minor penalties assessed by QMJHL referee Marcelle Vaillancourt. Toronto had five minor penalties called in the first fight-free game of the tournament.

New Westminster took a 2-0 first-period lead on goals by Brian Shmyr and Clayton Pachal. Mark Napier scored the only goal of the second period and Lynn Jorgenson scored at 1:54 of the third to tie the game.

Steve Clippingdale put the Bruins ahead 3-2 at 5:08 of the final period and Mike Sleep, Fred Berry and Richard Shinske added insurance goals later in the period.

Laxton was forced to make several outstanding saves during the game, including a breakaway skate save on Napier when the Marlboros were shorthanded near the end of the second period.

Laxton said after the game he doesn't care which team he plays in the final—"we beat them both"—but rates Sherbrooke as the tougher team.

Greenpeace Bound for Whalers

WINTER HARBOR (CP) — The two Greenpeace vessels, now reunited here near the northern tip of Vancouver Island, sailed at 3 a.m. today for the north Pacific whaling grounds.

The crew of the vessels are hoping for a confrontation with Japanese and Russian whaling fleets, said Bob Hunter, Greenpeace spokesman.

He said the vessels would sail into the north Pacific where equipment would be tested when whales are found.

The Japanese whaling fleet has orders to avoid confrontations with the Greenpeace expedition but Hunter said the members of Project Ahab — the Greenpeace's mission to halt whaling—believe the whaling fleets cannot dodge them continuously.

The 80-foot Greenpeace V and the 36-foot Greenpeace III met here Tuesday and began making plans for their departure to the deep sea.

Trustee Head Stresses PR

VANCOUVER (CP) — The new president of the British Columbia school trustees association said Wednesday the association will attempt to give more publicity to its work in the coming year.

Mike Berg, 38, of Nelson was elected by a vote of 202 to 139, defeating incumbent Eileen Madson of Windermere.

Berg said that although the BCSTA has been active, its work has not been brought to the public's attention.

He also said the department of education will be hearing more from the association.

Peter Bunn of Victoria was elected vice-president. Bill McSeveney of Creston and Rewdina Hamilton of Penticton were elected to the executive.

Mediator Gets Nod

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister King Wednesday appointed provincial mediator Clive McKee to investigate the problem of a mid-term contract cost-of-living clause in the B.C. construction industry.

Both the Construction Labor Relations Association and the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council had asked that an industrial inquiry commission be appointed after they failed to reach agreement on the contract change in negotiations last year.

However, King said the law did not permit him to appoint a commission because the law deals only with disputes arising out of contract negotiations and not mid-term contract problems.

'No Shows' Irk County Court Judge

Warrants were issued for the arrest of two persons Wednesday in what is becoming "no show" week at county court.

Larry Allan Preston scheduled to stand trial on two counts of breaking, entry and theft from the King John Inn at Colwood last November, was in the emergency department of Chilliwack General Hospital. He was on bail awaiting trial.

Defence lawyer Peter Klassen said he telephoned a friend of Preston's at the hospital and was told the accused fell down a flight of stairs Wednesday morning and was in emergency awaiting medical examination.

"It's not your fault," said Judge Montague Drake, but he added this was the second time this week the jury panel had been callled to no avail and "it's getting ridiculous."

Fifty-four prospective jurors had come to court to await selection.

Monday, the jury trial of Michael Frederick Fyfe, who was in court, was adjourned to May 22 when crown witnesses failed to respond to subpoenas. Fyfe is accused of armed robbery involving $100.

"I'm sorry it's a wasted day again for you," Judge Drake told the jury panel.

But he said if there are any more delays, jurors are to be notified in advance "so you are not called for no purpose."

A warrant was also issued for the arrest of 22-year-old Christina Hildebrandt of Vancouver who pleaded guilty earlier to pointing a pistol at Walter Edward Currie. She didn't appear Wednesday morning for sentencing.

The crown had withdrawn a two-count charge of forcible confinement against her in an incident at the Executive House downtown last November when two Colwood RCMP officers were hogtied and held captive for two hours.

A non-jury trial Tuesday was adjourned for two weeks when court was told that Mark Graham Murray, 1750 Chambers, was in the emergency department of Victoria General Hospital. He is accused of possession of cocaine for the purpose of trafficking.

He appeared in court later in the morning accompanied by his mother and Dr. John Stratton testified the accused "may be mentally ill" because he was in a state of shock and severe anxiety.

Murray was remanded in custody for psychiatric examination and the case will come back into court May 21.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Vancouver lawyer Harry Rankin tried unsuccessfully Wednesday in provincial court to get the particulars of the case against his client Larry Lovell, charged with murdering two Esquimalt women.

Rankin said he had written two letters to the regional prosecutors' office about the release of particulars but had received no reply.

"It seems to me the courts would operate more efficiently if the particulars were given to defence counsel prior to the preliminary hearing," he said.

Judge Fred Green said he understood Rankin's position but had no authority to order the Crown to supply the particulars.

Prosecutor Nicholas Lang agreed.

"Defence counsel may go on a fishing expedition but the Crown is not obliged to supply him with the fish," Lang said.

Lovell, 20, of CFB Naden, was charged March 4 with the Sept. 6 murders of Jane Isobel Plume, 51, of 1153 Munro, and Florence Bevan, 62, of 1324 Lyall. Preliminary hearing is set for June 10.

Darrell Kenneth Planes, 19, of 6191 Sooke Road, was sentenced to 21 days in jail and placed on six months probation after pleading guilty to assaulting a peace officer.

Lang said Constable K. J. Morris of Sooke RCMP seized 17 bottles of beer from Planes at 8:10 p.m. May 3. About 20 minutes later, a juvenile, was seen in an intoxicated state. Morris escorted him home. On his way back to the station, Morris met Planes en route home. Lang said Planes punched Morris in the head while his brothers and father watched. Morris left for assistance.

Planes threw rocks at Morris when he returned with another officer. They finally placed Planes and the juvenile in the police car.

On the way to the station, Planes kicked in the rear-door window of the car, climbed on to the roof and tore off the antenna. Meanwhile, the juvenile had grabbed Morris through the driver's window, forcing the police car into a gravel shoulder.

Morris radioed Colwood RCMP who arrived and escorted Planes and the juvenile to Victoria police cells:

"What you must realize is there is no reason the public or businessess should have to put up with your impulses," Green told 18-year-old Randall Middlemass after he pleaded guilty to kicking in the front door window at The Bay, 1170 Douglas on May 3.

Middlemass had said there was no reason for his action that evening other than "impulse."

He was fined $75, placed on six months probation and ordered to pay $185.64 for the broken door window.

In traffic court Judge Harold Alder imposed $350 fines on Murray Scott Moran, 23, of 1790 Oak Bay, Timothy Orville Maxwell, 19, of Sooke and John Charles Andrew, 28, of 3901 Carey Road, placed them on six months probation and ordered them to attend the impaired drivers' course. The three had pleaded guilty to separate charges of impaired driving.

Allan Drew, 43, of 828 Courtney, was fined $200 and given the same conditions after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Big Hanging Row Planned?

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Conservative MP Eldon Woolliams suggested Wednesday that the federal cabinet intends to seek stays of execution for all eight convicted murderers facing the death sentence so as to have one big "political smell" at one time.

He also accused Solicitor General Warren Allmand of misleading the House of Commons when he piloted through Parliament the partial abolition law which some MPs have charged he is not obeying.

The solicitor general announced Tuesday that two of the eight men facing the death sentence for the murder of policemen or prison employees—the only category for which the death penalty is imposed under the partial ban lasting until 1977—have received stays of execution to October.

Woolliams, Tory MP for Calgary South, asked Allmand in the House Wednesday if stays are to be granted in all eight cases to give cabinet time to draw up a total abolition bill or to bundle all the cases together to commute the death sentences at one time and have one big "political smell."

The solicitor general denied both suggestions. He repeated that cabinet's reason for asking for a stay of execution in the case of Rene Vaillancourt was because it had implications for other cases and there was not time for ministers to consider it fully before the scheduled execution date of May 16.

Woolliams then demanded whether Allmand has the same "attitude and philosophy" with regard to capital punishment as he did when he sponsored the partial abolition bill last year.

"Does the minister agree that he misled the House then?" he asked.

The solicitor general retorted that he is completely opposed to capital punishment on the basis of all the information he has now, but added that he is prepared to have "reasonable discussion" with those holding other views.

Posties Paid More Than Their Bosses

TORONTO (CP) — A contract currently being voted on by Letter Carriers will give them more pay than their supervisors as of July 1, Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said Wednesday.

However, Mackasey made no commitment to remedy the situation when questioned by a man who identified himself at a meeting of the York centre Federal Liberal Association as "part of management."

The man said the letter carriers stand to get five cents an hour more than their supervisors because supervisors are part of a separate bargaining unit whose contract continues until the end of the year.

N-SAFEGUARDS NOT FOOLPROOF

OTTAWA (CP) — The president of Atomic Energy Canada Ltd. said Wednesday there is no absolute safeguard against a foreign country misusing nuclear materials or technology.

Dr. John Foster told a Commons committee Canada requires countries buying Candu reactors and nuclear technology to sign an agreement promising not to use the material in the preparation of explosives and to allow international inspections of their nuclear facilities.

But he agreed with committee members that "there is no such things as a foolproof safeguard system."

If a country signed an agreement, accepted the nuclear materials and then later denied access to international inspectors, there was little direct action that could be taken, he said.

It would be clear to the international community what was happening, but "it's always a problem in military matters that you know what is up, but what can you do about it?"

AECL, a Crown agency, sells its Candu reactors on the world market, but no sales can go through until the buyer signs a safeguards agreement with Ottawa.

Foster was answering questions about nuclear sales, including recent agreements by Argentina and South Korea to purchase reactors. Negotiations now are under way with both countries on safeguards.

"The most impressive car in its class I've ever driven"

BRITISH LEYLAND
2 door Coupe also available

That was the conclusion Brian Hillis, a technical editor of Driving, Touring & Travel Magazine reached after putting the Austin Marina through a gruelling 20,000 mile road test.

"When I started the test on the Austin Marina last April, I decided to subject it to tortures that it may never see in the hands of the average person."

"In 20,000 miles of driving I found the Marina's day-to-day performance steady and sure...and repairs were few and inexpensive."

"In keeping with our extreme weather conditions in Canada, I tried to give the car a fair test through the different seasons. Whether the temperature was a hot humid 95 degrees in downtown Toronto, or minus 20 in Hull, the car started with equal ease."

"The heating and defrosting system is a real world beater in winter. More often than not it is necessary to turn off the heat on all but the coldest days, and the electric rear window defroster keeps visibility at its best."

"And that's just one example of the Marina's standard equipment. It's an easy car to buy, because virtually the only two options are automatic transmission and radio. Standard features include reclining front seats, door-to-door carpeting, radial ply tires, and of course the Marina's 1800 cc MGB type engine, which at 70 mph still gives you power for those quick passing spurts."

"Considering the low price, equipment included as standard, the very usable back seat and a huge trunk, the Marina is possibly the best small car buy on the market."

"It's the most impressive car in its class I've ever driven. I've never hesitated recommending it to anyone."

Anik III Launched On Perfect Orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Canada's Anik III communications satellite has been launched into perfect orbit by a Delta rocket, United States space officials say.

The rocket lifted off at 7:35 p.m. EDT Wednesday, six minutes behind schedule. Officials said the delay was caused by pleasure boats that had wandered into an area near the launch site.

If the $22-million mission is successful, the satellite will carry television and radio communications to remote areas of northern Canada.

Anik III went into an elliptical orbit, ranging from about 150 to 22,500 miles from earth. Sometime Saturday, a spacecraft motor will be fired to put the satellite in a stationary orbit 22,300 miles from earth, officials said.

Two other aniks, launched in 1972 and 1973, are still working.

When the third satellite begins operating, the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. plans to expand service so that every Canadian village of 500 persons will have television reception and every town of 200 persons will have radio programming.

The third satellite adds 12 channels to the 24 provided by Anik I and Anik II

At present, eight of Anik I's commercial channels are taken up full time by Canadian communications companies such as CBC, CN-CP and Bell Canada. Another channel is in part-time use.

Anik II carries signals for RCA Global and RCA Alaska of the United States, using three channels full time and another part time.

But the U.S. Federal Communications Commission ordered RCA last December to switch its business to satellites of Western Union, another U.S. firm, from those of Telesat pending the planned launching of RCA's own satellite system.

Deadline set for the change was May 15 and a Telesat spokesman said Tuesday that is unchanged.

Value of the RCA business to Telesat this year has been estimated at $6 million. Telesat's total operating revenue in 1973, the last full year reported, was $19 million.

Telesat says, however, that additional channels may be taken up by present users and others are considering using Anik channels in their operations.

DREDGE TRIAL BREAKS

HAMILTON (CP) — The Hamilton Harbor Commission dredging-scandal trial was adjourned Wednesday, after three days of complicated legal wrangling.

The Ontario Supreme Court trial of Kenneth Elliott, 42, and Reginald Fisher, 61, on charges arising from alleged dredging contract kickbacks, began on Monday.

The first three days were devoted mainly to consideration of defence motions and jury-selection procedures. All the motions eventually were dismissed.

Elliott, a former harbor commissioner, and Fisher, a local business consultant, are charged with 10 offences involving conspiracy, fraud and uttering.

A charge of breach of trust, laid against Elliott, was removed from the original indictment by Mr. Justice Thomas Callon. That count is to be tried later.

Defence lawyer moved early in the proceedings to have all charges quashed.

Malcolm Robb, Elliott's lawyer, argued Monday that the charges were vaguely worded.

In dismissing the motion, Mr. Justice Callon said he was satisfied the charges met the requirements of the Criminal Code.

Mr. Justice Callon also dismissed a motion by Ray Harris, Fisher's lawyer, that would have divided the indictment into five separate trials.

The judge also dismissed a motion by Hamilton lawyer John Bowlby for a precedent-setting ruling that would have allowed Mr. Bowlby to sit in on the trial to provide legal representation for Joseph Lanza and Delbert Hickey.

The two men, federal appointees to the three-man harbor commission who served with Elliott, were named but not charged in one count of the 10-page indictment.

The judge denied the motion, saying he had no authority to allow such a move.

Mr. Bowlby is president of the Liberal riding association in Hamilton East—the seat held by John Munro, the federal labor minister.

The trial resumes Monday.

Environmental Centre Names Board

Environmental education naturalist Heather Crampton has been elected chairman of the board of directors of the Greater Victoria Environmental Centre.

Others elected were Larry McGill, vice-chairman; and Phil Chiddell, treasurer.

Projects planned for the year include a seminar on chemicals in food, a handbook on insect control around the house and garden, and a television series to follow-up the group's 'Energy and You' seminar last November. The first of this series can be seen on Channel 10 this Friday from 9 to 10 p.m.

Union, Not Laws, Can Help Women Most

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Unions can do more in winning equal pay and working conditions for women than any legislation, the provincial government's International Women's Year co-ordinator told Victoria Labor Council delegates Wednesday.

"The gains that are being made in equal pay are coming fro mthe unions," Gene Errington told about 25 delegates, two of them women.

But to make more gains, she said, unions have to be willing to make women's issues a priority.

"I've heard negotiators make impassioned pleas for equal pay and working conditions but when it comes down to the crunch, nothing happens.

"You have to make sure that the people junked in the crunch are not women."

Errington said in a recent Canadian Union of Public Employees settlement at the University of B.C., only one group within the union was shortchanged — the good services group which was mainly women.

The salary gap between women and men in unions is getting higher, not decreasing, she said. Unions negotiate percentage increases for all those in the union, and the people in the lower paid categories, who are mostly women she said, fall behind even more.

"This (percentage negotiation) should be seriously looked at and maybe dumped," she told the delegates.

Unions must address themselves to organizing women, Errington said, even though it might be difficult because even women sometimes don't think of themselves as permanent members of the labor force.

"Women also tend to identify with management and feel the boss is right. Secretaries consider themselves part of management and part of the boss," she said.

But, when these secretaries to want to organize into a union they often have difficulty finding anyone who is interested, she said.

Errington said pay increases are not always the biggest factor in organizing women into unions.

"They're often more worried about job security or about having a little control over their working conditions — secretaries are sick to death of making the coffee."

She said women in unions must take a more active part in the union and be willing to stand for executive positions and be shop stewards.

She said she had planned to expand more on the action women union members should be taking, but as only two of the delegates were women, there wasn't much point, she said.

FORD SHINES IMAGE

WASHINGON (WP) — President Ford Wednesday launched the first of a series of meetings he will have with world leaders to assure them that despite the failure in Vitnam the U.S. will honor its commitments.

In separate meetings Wednesday, the President conferred with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam and New Zealand Prime Minister Wallace E. Rowling.

Saanich Ratepayer Group Proposed

There appears to be some interest in the formation of a Saanich Ratepayer Federation.

Charles Goodman of the Gordon Head and Districa Ratepayers' Association, the group taking the lead, said the idea arose after representatives of ratepayer groups appeared on a TV program.

Goodman says the idea is to have two members from each community association and to meet twice a year.

The first meeting called to discuss the issue drew only representatives from four groups.

He said Cadboro Bay showed some interest but the other three, including Gordon Head — were for it.

The other representatives were from the Broadmead and Prospect Lake groups.

A meeting has been called for Monday, May 12, at 7:30 at St. Dunston's Church hall, at Tyndall and San Juan at which time it is hoped other ratepayer groups will attend.

Goodman said formation of a federation would allow the passing of information and making use of the experiences of others such as Cadboro Bay Ratepayers who are now in the process of developing a community plan.

He feels that other groups, when it is time to draw up their plans, can use some of the experience gained by Cadboro Bay.

Goodman said the federation could act on major issues or in giving moral support to other groups who are fighting Saanich council on a problem.

He added that another project for the federation would be the adjusting of boundaries as some areas are not now represented by a ratepayer group and in some cases boundaries overlap.

CB CALL DIRECTORY PLANNED

The Victoria Rotary Club has received permission from the Department of Communications to go ahead with the publication of a citizen's band directory.

"There are 5,300 call numbers on Vancouver Island, and nobody knows who's who and this really makes a mess of the airways," said Rotarian Charles Mullins.

The directory will list the names, addresses and call numbers of all citizen's band operators on Vancouver Island.

The cost of the book is $5 plus tax.

Proceeds from sales will be donated to local charities, particularly to set up Rotary scholarships to Pearson Memorial College of the Pacific.

Veal Takes Kindly to Spices

Veal comes from very young, milk-fed calves, weighing 200 to 250 pounds at slaughter. Producers usually sell some of their calves to keep down the herd size.

Because it is from a young animal, veal is pale in color, tender and very lean. It can be cooked by most methods depending on the cut. Cook roasts in a 163 deg. C. oven. If there is no fat covering on the roast, lay pieces of suet, salt pork or bacon over it to add juiciness and flavor. Remove the fat during the last hour of roasting to allow the meat to brown. Panfry or bake chops, steaks and cutlets. Loin and rib chops can also be broiled if they are well brushed with fat.

Since veal is a mild-flavored meat it takes kindly to a great variety of seasonings and sauces — curry, mustard, thyme, savory, garlic, wine, tomato juice, consume, or even milk diluted with sour cream. Add an extra spark of color with garnishes such as spiced peaches, crabapple jelly, mint jelly or a lemon wedge.

BAKED VEAL STEAKS WITH ASPARAGUS

2 1-inch boneless veal leg steaks (about 2 pounds)
Salt and pepper
1 pound asparagus
1 10-ounce can whole mushrooms
¼ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons fat
2 cups soft bread crumbs
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup butter
1 cup chicken bouillon
1 tablespoon melted butter
2 tablespoons flour
1½ cups mushroom liquid plus pan drippings.

Pound steaks and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Trim asparagus spears to 3-inch lengths. Cut remaining stalks in ½-inch pieces for stuffing. Drain mushrooms, saving liquid. Set aside half the mushrooms for gravy and slice remainder. Saute onion and asparagus pieces in fat until onion is transparent. Add sliced mushrooms and brown. Add bread crumbs and seasonings and mix lightly. Spread stuffing on one steak, top with second steak and fasten edges with skewers. Brownsteaks in ¼ cup butter in shallow roasting pan over medium heat, 5 to 6 minutes each side. Add bouillon, cover pan and bake at 163 Deg. C. until almost tender (about 45 minutes). Uncover, baste and bake until tender (15 to 20 minutes more). Cook asparagus tips in ½ cup boiling salted water until tender. Drain and coat with 1 tablespoon melted butter. Place steaks on serving dish. Drain off pan drippings. Return 1 tablespoon fat to pan and stir in flour. Gradually add 1½ cups mushroom liquid plus pan drippings. Stir and cook until smooth and thick. Add whole mushrooms and heat. Pour over steaks and garnish with asparagus tips. 6 servings.

Christa's Sensational Konigsberger Klopse

By CRAIG CLAIRBORNE

NEW CANAAN, Conn. — A lengthy note from our friendly, far-ranging correspondent, Feinschmecker, that gentleman of impeccable taste and appetite, informed us that the finest German cooking he's found in any home in America was that of Christa Drechsler of New Canaan.

"Her herring salad is wunderbar," he said, "her lentil soup is koestlich, her Konigsberger Klopse sensational and her Rote Grutze — a compote of berries with heavy cream — a miracle of taste."

We telephoned Mrs. Drechsler, who invited us to a gathering of eight people one midweek evening, and when we arrived one late afternoon, she was in the midst of breaking up the carcass of a roast goose removed from her freezer a few hours earlier. It was destined for a kettle of lentil soup.

"The goose is left over from some holiday we celebrated at the end of last year," she said. "I always save carcasses for soups and goose is expecially good for lentil soup. The bones of roast duck or turkey would work. Chicken wouldn't be too good, I think; not enough body."

Mrs. Drechsler told us that she had always puttered around the kitchen and that although her family had servants in Hamburg, the city of her birth, her mother did most of the cooking at her father's insistence.

On the evening in question, Mrs. Drechsler prepared her excellent and much-praised herring salad, and a rouladen, the well-known meat rolls.

One of the chief characteristics of many German dishes is a smoked flavor, generally achieved by the addition of double-smoked bacon, which is available in the meat markets in German neighborhoods. That flavor is distinctly present in the rouladen. It may be a bit too prevalent for the average taste, and the milder ordinary breakfast bacon may be substituted.

GERMAN-STYLE MEAT ROLLS (Rouladen

12 slices top round, about three pounds, each slice measuring about 4 by 11 inches and each slice weighing about one-quarter pound, (see note). Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste.
1 tablespoon or more dried marjoram
¼ cup or more prepared mustard, preferably imported mustard such as Dijon or Dusseldorf ½ pound bacon, preferably slab bacon, unsliced, (see note)
3 cups finely chopped onions
½ cup finely chopped chives, ley
½ cup finel chopped chives, approximately 12 small imported sour pickles (cornichons) or use half-inch strips of dill pickles
8 tablespoons butter, approximately
1½ cups thinly sliced carrots
1¼ cups dry red wine
1 teaspoon flour
2 teaspoons water
1 cup heavy cream
Freshly cooked spaetzle (see recipe).

FOOD

1. Place the meat on a flat surface and pat dry.

2. Sprinkle meat on one side with salt and pepper. Sprinkle with equal amounts of marjoram and spread top to bottom and side to side with mustard.

3. Remove the rind from the bacon and cut the bacon into quarter-inch cubes. There should be about two and one-half cups. Set one-half cup bacon aside for later use. Combine the two cups of bacon, two cups of chopped onion, parsley and chives. Sprinkle the meat with equal portions of this mixture, leaving a clear margin of about half an inch around the edges of each slice. Place one pickle about one inch from the bottom of each slice and start rolling the meat from the bottom up, folding the sides toward the centre as you roll. Use a skewer to keep the roll intact.

4. Heat two tablespoons butter in a saucepan and add the carrots, remaining one cup onions and reserved one-half cup bacon. Cook, stirring, until vegetables are lightly browned, about 10 minutes. Remove the vegetables and bacon with a slotted spoon. Set aside.

5. Heat the remaining six tablespoons butter in one or two heavy skillets large enough to hold the meat rolls. Add the meat rolls to the skillet or skillets and cook, turning to brown on all sides. Scrape the bottom of the pan as necessary to loosen any brown particles that stick to it. When the rolls are well browned, remove them and keep warm. Add the wine and beef broth, stirring to dissolve the brown particles. Blend the flour and water and stir it in. Return the meat rolls and any liquid that has accumulated around them to the skillet. Add the reserved vegetables and bacon. Cover. Cook, turning the rolls occasionally. Cook one hour.

6. Remove the meat rolls and keep them warm. Pour and spoon the sauce into the container of an electric blender or food processor. It may be necessary to do this in two steps. Blend until smooth and return the sauce to the skillet. Add the cream, stir and bring to the boil. Add the meat rolls, cover and simmer 15 minutes longer over low heat. Serve with freshly cooked spaetz.

Yield: Twelve servings.

CHEESE BUN RECIPE WITH VARIATIONS

By MARY MOORE

In 1959 in Soest, Germany my daughter Marianne entertained some Canadian army wives at an afternoon bridge party. I was there and made cheese buns for the refreshment with coffee.

Sixteen years later here in Canada I met one of the girls who was at the party and she said she had never forgotten those cheese buns.

So last week I hunted up the recipe and made a variation of them. With all of the complaints I am receiving regarding the high cost of bakery products I decided to give that cheese bun recipe again with variations. They were a great success.

CHEESE BUNS
(24 with variations)

1 tsp. granular yeast
½ c. lukewarm water
1 tsp. sugar (first amount)
2 tbsp. soft butter or margarine
3 tbsp. flour (first amount)
1 tbsp. sugar (second amount)
2 tsp. salt
1 c. milk
¾ c. cheese whiz
3½c. SIFTED all-purpose flour (second amount)
jam (see below)

In a large bowl soak the yeast in the lukewarm water with the 1 teaspoon sugar for 10 minutes.

In a pot mix together well the soft butter or margarine, flour (first amount), sugar and salt. Stir in milk until smooth and cook, stirring until thick. Remove from heat and stir in cheese whiz which will reduce it to lukewarm. Add to risen yeast liquid along with the sifted flour (second amount) and mix as well as you can for 5 minutes. (This mixing is equivalent to kneading. IF you have a dough hook on your kitchen machine use it for this mixing.) Let rise until doubled, covered, under a lighted bulb.

Punch down dough and knead on floured board 2 minutes. Shape in two 14" rolls. Cut each into 12 even pieces. Flatten eight into rounds and fold over to make eight pocketbooks or halfmoons (like Parkerhouse rolls). Place on greased baking sheet. Shape eight more into flat rounds. Place 1 teaspoon each butter and raspberry or strawberry jam at right of centre and fold over and seal edges with your fingertips. Place on greased cookie sheet. Shape remaining eight pieces into long 8" rolls, rolling them under your palms. Coil into eight buttered 2½" tart tins.

Top with 1 teaspoon apricot or peach jam. Brush tops of all 16 pocketbooks sparingly with milk. Let rise until doubled — about 1½ hours. Bake at 205 deg. C. about 10 minutes. Do not overbake. NOTE: These cheese buns freeze exceptionally well if carefully freezerwrapped.

NOTE: Write to Mary Moore, 32 Churchill Ave., Hamilton, Ont., enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents for each specified recipe.

Dietetic Not Lower Caloried

NUTRITION BUYLINE

QUESTION:
Are dietetic foods lower in calories?

ANSWER:
Not necessarily. Dietetic foods are foods altered for specific conditions. They may have reduced salt intake or reduced sugar intake. However, even though sugar content is lower, it does not always mean calories are lower; in some instances "dietetic" foods are higher in calories than regular foods. Example: "dietetic" chocolate bars, cookies and ice cream often have as many or even more calories than regular products.

QUESTION:
My family hates liver. What other foods are good sources of iron?

ANSWER:
Other good sources of iron would include organ meats (kidney, heart), red meats, dried peas, dried beans, and lentils, leafy green vegetables, whole grain or enriched breads and cereals. egg yolks, nuts, and dried fruits (raisins, apricots, etc.).

QUESTION:
I am concerned about the high cost of dental work for myself and my family. Are there foods which we might eat which will help prevent cavities?

ANSWER:
The kinds of food that build a sound body also build strong teeth. However, proper food cannot add anything to the enamel of a tooth that has already erupted. It must be eaten over the whole period during which the teeth are forming under the gums.

Therefore as an aid to good teeth formation it is important that during the tooth forming years (1-14) plenty of proper foods be eaten such as milk, eggs, cheese and Vitamin D. The daily food guide provides a valuable guide for meal planning to include these foods for the whole family. This food guide can be obtained free, on request from your local health unit.

No valid evidence has been produced to show that any special kinds of foods, vitamins, medicine or minerals with the exception of fluoride applied directly to the enamel can harden or improve the enamel after the teeth have erupted. Avoiding excessive sweet sticky food, particularly as snacks and brushing the teeth and gums after eating will help prevent tooth decay.

Race to Keep Tender Asparagus Cut

Tender fresh green asparagus will be appearing on most local markets this month. With warm rains and bright sunshine, it pops up as if by magic. Gardeners must keep a sharp eye out for the first signs of the tender tips peeping through the soil. From then on it's a race to keep the asparagus cut as it can grow from eight to ten inches a day.

When you buy asparagus, look for bright green bunches with straight stalks and tightly closed tips. Store unwashed and untrimmed in a plastic bag in the refrigerator, and use within one or two days. If used as a vegetable along with the main course, one pound of asparagus will serve four. And don't forget that a serving of asparagus is an excellent source of iron and vitamins A and C.

Before cooking, wash the stalks carefully using a soft brush. Break off each stalk as far down as it will snap easily. Remove any scales if sand has collected under them. Because asparagus cooks best in an upright position, stand the stalks in about two inches of boiling water in a deep covered saucepan. This way the tender tips will be cooking in steam. Allow six to 12 minutes, depending on the size of the stalks.

There are as many delicious ways of serving asparagus as there are nationalities. In Italy, they sprinkle cooked asparagus first with grated parmesan cheese, then with melted butter and just before serving pop it under the broiler for a glazed effect. A Polish favorite is asparagus sprinkled with the sieved yolk of a hard-cooked egg and finely chopped parsley and covered just before serving with fine bread crumbs toasted in butter.

Some ways of serving asparagus are also world favorites — with a cheese, egg or hollandaise sauce, sour cream and mayonnaise with curry, herbed butter, crumbled bacon, in a souffle, or omelet or as a chilled soup.

Food Advisory Services, Agriculture Canada, suggests 'Asparagus a la King' for those who wish to serve this spring vegetable at a brunch or luncheon.

ASPARAGUS A LA KING

1½ pounds asparagus
One-third cup chopped green onion
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups milk
½ pint (1¼ cups) sour cream
6 hard-cooked eggs, diced
2 tablespoons chopped parsley.

Cut asparagus in 1-inch pieces. Cook in boiling salted water until tender (about 10 minutes). Drain. Saute onion in butter until transparent. Blend in flour and seasonings. Gradually add milk. Stir and cook until smooth and thick. Add asparagus with remaining ingredients and heat through. Serve on toast or patty shells. 6 servings.

Free for the Asking

By HARRIET HART

From time to time Canada's food prices review board publishes reviews in both English and French. These analyse the reason for any price increase and forecast the likely price trend of commonly used foodstuffs.

For example, with regard to ice cream, the board stated (in one of last year's reviews) "it is unlikely that any price decline will occur in the future, since higher returns to dairy producers are required for an economically viable dairy industry."

Concerning shortening and cooking oil it predicted that "prices will most likely stablize in the early part of 1975."

About sugar prices the board declared "the prospects for a return to very low sugar prices are slim, since demand is growing at a faster rate than world production."

You may write to the board for an index of free publications and board statements and then select the reviews which interest you. Or, you may ask that your name be added to its mailing list.

The address of the Food Prices Review Board is: P.O. Box 1540, Station "B", Ottawa, Ontario K1P 5Z5. Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

Lady of the Year

Popular Victoria business woman, Irene Warren, will be honored Friday evening when City Council of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority confers upon her the title of First Lady of the Year.

The ceremony will take place at the sorority's Founder's Day Banquet in Craigdarroch Hall, University of Victoria, where a certificate of recognition will be presented to Mrs. Warren.

The first-lady program sponsored by 11 local chapters of sorority, through the city council, is planned to focus attention on a woman in the community who has made an outstanding contribution in her field.

Names and qualifications were submitted to the membership through a nominating committee and the winner was chosen by secret ballot.

There is no doubt Mrs. Warren's qualifications for the honor are many. Nor that high on the list is her devotion and her outstanding contributions to the Gorge Road Hospital.

She started her work there when beds were still occupying the high-ceilinged pioneer Crow Baker home.

It was through her efforts that a hospital auxiliary was formed and today she is an honorary president of that group.

Fifteen years ago she became chairman of the hospital's board of directors, a position from which she retired in April this year.

She worked with Ed Winslow and a corps of public-spirited citizens who spearheaded a drive for $65,000 to help furnish that wing. And she master-minded a plan in which about 100 organizations were given the opportunity of donating $400 for a hospital bed in return for having plaques with their names placed on rooms to which those beds were assigned.

Next project was finding space and equipment for physio-therapy department and a big hydro-therapy pool.

This is now an integral part of the 100-bed wing which a few years ago was designated as the rehabilitation centre of the hospital where persons in all age groups with a fighting chance of recovery are given help and care.

Finally there is the new 300-bed wing, opened two years ago, for extended care patients.

According to Mrs. Warren, when the beds in that wing were filled and the extended care program was running smoothly, all that she had hoped and dreamed for the Gorge Hospital had been accomplished and the time had come to retire as chairman of the board — which she did, as I told you earlier in this column, in April.

Ask her what was the urge or the motivating force that first directed her efforts toward Gorge Hospital and she tells you "it was a very personal thing."

Soon after she was married (to Cyril Warren, well-known city organist) her father, George McAdams, was stricken with what was known as creeping paralysis.

There was no therapy available in those days to ease his suffering and she says that, over and over again, he would say to her, "Irene, please work to get a hospital where people like myself can get a little help."

WARREN

In business life, Irene Warren was public relations and special events co-ordinator at the Hudson's Bay Company here for 15 years.

In that time she organized The Bay's charm schools from which she saw graduated more than 5,000 young girls. She also planned the program for that firm's 300th anniversary as well as many other projects of historic and local interest.

A year ago she left The Bay and accepted an even more responsible position — that of executive manager of promotions for the Downtown Victoria Association, a rapidly-growing organization.

She is an honorary citizen of the City of Victoria, a member of the YM-YWCA board of directors and a charter member of Zonta Club Victoria, an organization of professional and executive women.

Beta Sigma Phi is an international cultural and social organization with chapters throughout the United States and Canada and in countries around the world.

The sorority was founed in 1931 and maintains its international headquarters in Kansas City, Mo.

International honorary memberships includes such names as Mrs. Richard Nixon, Margaret Chase Smith, opera star Eleanor Steber and Mrs. George Pearkes of this city.

In honoring Mrs. Warren as First Lady of the Year, city council president, Lovey Petrie, says "In this way we are pointing directly to the important contributions women are making in community work, in business, government, social welfare and in education."

Rhubarb Coaxes Springtime Appetites

Like our first robin, rhubarb is greeted as a harbinger of spring. It holds within its bright stalks the promise of refreshing desserts. It is just what is required to coax lagging springtime appetities.

Spring rhubarb with its deep red stalks and tart flavor is usually sold by the bunch. Look for firm, crisp and straight stalks and use within a day or two. Remove the leaves as they tend to draw moisture from the stalks and cause them to wilt.

Rhubarb is so simple to freeze you should put some away for winter meals. It requires no blanching and no sugar. Just wash, trim, cut into one-inch pieces and package in freezer bags. It's a good idea to pack just the right amount for a family dessert in each container. Freeze four to five cups of cut rhubarb for a pie or three cups to yield two cups of cut rhubarb for a pie or three cups to yield two cups of cooked rhubarb or 4 servings. You can also freeze rhubarb sauce. Cook it as usual and cool it before freezing.

To many people, rhubarb is synonymous with pie. Whether it is the popular two-crust type or has a crumb or meringue topping, it is always delicious. A 9-inch pie requires four to six cups of rhubarb depending upon the type of pie. One pound of rhubarb cut in ¾-inch pieces yields about 3 cups.

Tart, succulent rhubarb may also be stewed or baked and served as a sauce over a cornstarch pudding or cake. It combines well with other fruits — strawberries, blueberries or pineapple — in pudding sauces, sherbets or pudding. Team it with biscuit dough to produce a colorful cobbler or shortcake.

For variety in your rhubarb fare, Food Advisory Services, Agriculture Canada, suggests that you try 'Rhubarb Bavarian Dessert'. This chiffon-type dessert is ideal as an afternoon tea sweet or a light dessert with or without the shortbread base.

RHUBARB BAVARIAN DESSERT

Base:
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
½ cup butter or margarine, softened

Topping:
4 cups diced rhubarb
¼ cup water
1¼ cups sugar
Dash salt
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1-3 cup cold water
Red food coloring (optional)
½ pint (1¼ cups) whipping cream, whipped

To make base, combine dry ingredients. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse bread crumbs. Spread evenly in bottom of greased 9-inch square cake pan. Bake at 177 Deg. C. until lightly browned (10 to 12 minutes). Cool.

To make topping, combine rhubarb, ¼ cup water, sugar and salt and simmer until rhubarb is tender, stirring occasionally. Soak gelatin in cold water. Add to hot rhubarb and stir until dissolved. Add food coloring if desired. Chill until partially set, then fold in whipped cream. Turn onto base and chill until firm, (about 3 hours). 9 servings.

Divorce Backfired

DEAR ABBY: I have no one to talk to, so I am going to cry on your shoulder, if you'll let me.

It's an old story. An affair that never should have started. Nine years ago I fell in love with my boss. (We were both married.) I had always been a good wife and mother, and had a religious background, but I wasn't strong enough to resist this man.

After eight years of deceiving my husband, I filed for a divorce and told my husband everything. My lover told me that he would do the same. Well, you know the rest. He never did. So now I am divorced, and I don't have my husband or my lover.

I have prayed to God to help me stop loving this married man because now I know that he will never leave his wife and family.

Will I ever get over this, Abby? I desperately need some encouragement. Maybe this letter will keep some other woman from making the same mistake that I did.—Weak and Foolish

DEAR WEAK: Yes, you will get over it, but not until you stop dwelling on the past and blaming yourself for your "foolishness" and weakness.

There is a lesson to be learned here: "Don't discard the old kettle until you're sure the new one holds water."

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to the woman who was so deeply in debt was all right as far as it went, but it didn't go far enough.

We were also in debt over our heads. Then we heard about Consumer Credit Counseling Service, which turned out to be the answer to our prayers.

It is a non-profit agency that will figure your wages and debts, and contact all your creditors who usually are willing to cut your payments down to where you can handle them. Then every payday, you pay the Consumer Credit people a set amount and THEY pay off your bills. That way you don't have any creditors hounding you, and you keep your self-respect.

Someone helped me by telling me about Consumer Credit; now it's my trrn to help others.—Grateful.

DEAR GRATEFUL: Apparently, Consumer Credit Counselling has been a good friend to many because yours was one of many letters I received recommending it. Thanks for writing. I'll spread the word.

DEAR ABBY: Re the college student who wouldn't shower regularly—to the displeasure of those who had to live with him. In 1951, during basic training, my company commander told me of a soldier who had not bathed in 13 weeks. (This included two weeks of bivouac!). He asked me to see to it that that smelly soldier got a daily shower—or else.

I got five of the strongest men I could find, and we approached this unwashed soldier and told him that if he didn't get into a shower, we would get him into one. He refused, so we stripped him and carried him bodily into the shower. The others held him while I proceeded to scrub him with a GI scrub brush. Halfway through the bath, he pleaded for mercy and promised to finish the rest himself. He did. And after that, he was Mr. Clean.

Harsh? Perhaps. But it served a purpose.—Lawyer

DEAR LAWYER: Now that's what I call a reasonable man under the circumstances.

Board Checks Foreign Funds in U.S.

By PAUL WHITELAW
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — President Ford has established a special committee of top-level government officials to keep track of all foreign investment in the United States and help co-ordinate American policy in this field.

The president took the unprecedented action Wednesday in response not only to the growing financial reserves of oil-exporting countries, but also to head off growing congressional support for more stringent foreign investment restrictions.

The committee established by Ford in an executive order will monitor the impact of investments coming from abroad, but it will not have the power to block or limit any foreign deals. It can only make policy suggestions.

A senior administration official said in an interview Wednesday that Ford hopes the new committee will stall at least two bills in Congress which would put curbs on the traditional open-door policy of the U.S. toward foreign investments.

"The administration is concerned about keeping track of new investments from overseas, but we feel there is no demonstrated need at this time to restrict the inflow of foreign direct investment," remarked the treasury official.

He noted that direct investment — that is, investment in new business or purchases of the capital stock of existing companies — has been relatively minor. Most Arab money entering the United States has been in the form of indirect investments — such as short-term bank deposits.

Sources said the new investment review committee is based on the premise that foreign governments will alert Washington whenever they wish to invest heavily in the U.S. — such as Iran did when it decided recently to buy 13 per cent of Pan American Airlines.

Ford's executive order Wednesday said the "committee on foreign investment" will "have primary continuing responsibility within the executive branch for monitoring the impact" of domestic investments coming in from abroad.

The president said the committee would be composed of representatives designated by the secretaries of state, treasury, defence, commerce as well as the assistant to the president for economic affairs and the executive director of the council on international economic policy.

All representatives will hold the rank of at least assistant secretary.

"GOT ANY PETS YOU'D LIKE SOMEBODY TO TAKE FOR A WALK?"

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

It is a fact of bridge living that the expert player has an aversion to taking finesses, except as a last-resort play. The reason is simply that his standard of living requires something more than a reliance on a 50-50 proposition.

In today's deal we have an example of the avoidance of a finesse which, if it had been taken, would have resulted in the defeat of declarer's contract. Sitting South was Charles J. Soloon, of Philadelphia. The deal arose in the World Championships of 1956, in the match between Great Britain and the United States.

North-South vulnerable. West deals.

Opening lead: Ten of ♦.

South's bidding was according to the book: His original take-out double, followed by a one notrump rebid over his partner's forced response (on possibly zero points) showed a notrump-type hand containing 18-20 high-card points. Appreciating this, North's raise to two notrump was automatic, as was South's rebid of three notrump.

On West's opening lead of the diamond ten, dummy and East both played low, Solomon capturing the trick with his jack. If one were to glance superficially at just the North-South hands, it would appear that the success of declarer's contract depended on the spade finesse. As Solomon played the hand, however, the finesse turned out to be unnecessary.

At trick two Solomon laid down the ace of hearts and then followed up by playing the heart king. With East's queen, dropping on the latter lead, South's jack was cashed next. Then came the king, queen, and ace of clubs, in that order. With the six adversely held clubs being divided 3-3, South's remaining club became the sole winning club in the deck. Solomon now had his contracted-for nine tricks: one spade, three hearts, one diamond and four clubs.

Admittedly, the queen of hearts did not figure to fall on the second lead of that suit. Nor did the six outstanding clubs rate to be divided 3-3. But surely Solomon's play was proper, for the spade finesse could always be taken as a last resort. His play of the hand was an unspectacular, but neat, display of technique.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast for Friday, May 9

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Surprises are featured. One who seemed distant now makes gesture of reconciliation. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Insist on facts — let credit go. Means get hard news, not fluff stuff and "feature filler."

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What seemed obvious gets tangled in maze of bureaucracy. Yes, red tape could tangle and trip the truth. Key now is to call on one with experience, teaching ability and willingness to spend some time with you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You have fun while others think you are suffering. Irony is in the picture and your creative processes are stimulated. You get around, are versatile, your ideas flow and your ego is fanned by opposite sex. Do you want much more?

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Pressures exist. Recognize them and work around them. Means don't walk into a hurricane when shelter is available. Get down to specifics. Check details. Deal with Taurus, Leo, Scorpio individuals. Don't try to twist facts. Accept truth and, yes, it will set you free and make you strong.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be prepared for change, travel, variety. Find out who is moving, who is remaining — and why. Be a reporter-detective. Gemini, Virgo persons are in picture. Accent is on disrupted communications and what to do about it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Demeanor is more important than usual. Key is diplomacy, willingness to make concessions. Family member confides problem. Don't cast stones. Emphasis is on financial aspects of current activity. Partner, mate must be placated.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be more selective than has been true in recent past. Check, double check — get money's worth. Someone wants something from you and does not intend to pay fair price. Protect yourself! Contract has loophole. Close it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Heavy atmosphere prevails. Persons who seemed to have light touch may be the opposite. You have added responsibility. Your reward is greater but there is less free time. Capricorn, Cancer persons could figure prominently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You gain recognition from surprise or unorthodox quarter. You find one who commands — and that person seeks your counsel. Be aware of your own worth. Stop kicking toe in sand. Love, romance, creativity emerge from tumble, rumble and storm clouds. You survive!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get to heart of matters, especially where property and security are concerned. Leo, Aquarius figure in picture. Your sense of timing is enhanced. You can be first with the most — key is to do it on your own.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Caution sign flashes and you should observe it. Some around you encourage flimsy structure, quick methods, timesaving schemes. Such will not ultimately serve your best interests. Key is to slow down, take a breath and review goals. Another Aquarian figures prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 12-March 20): Study Aquarius message. Get something more than promise for your efforts, money. Individual who talks a big game is willing to take risks — at your expense. Know it and protect youself in clinches. Accent is on special payment, collection.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have knack of helping people during times of crises. Many are drawn to you with their problems — and you are often better at helping others than when it comes to aiding yourself. August should be your most important month this year. Aries, Libra individuals play significant roles in your life.

Hybrid Auto Pushed

TORONTO (CP) — Ralph Flanagan, a University of Toronto professor, and Anthony O'Donohue, a Toronto alderman, have proposed a high-efficiency hybrid automobile which would cut gasoline consumption by 50 per cent. They say the cut would save Canadian drivers $2.1 billion a year.

They have applied for $700,000 in federal research grants to develop a prototype withing two years.

O'Donohue said the gasoline savings might be as high as 65 per cent. In addition, their car of the future would sharply reduce air pollution in cities.

"Somebody should develop this car in this time of energy concerns and we think we can do it," he said.

All power produced would flow through the storage unit and a new type of transmission to the wheels.

When the car used more than the power produced by the engine, extra would be drawn from the storage unit. When it used less, the excess would be stored in the unit.

The prototype would be a small two-passenger city car, ideal for commuter use, Prof. Flanagan said.

"I don't really see it as a highway car, although it could cope with the Queen Elizabeth Way or Highway 401," he said.

Hybrid drives have been explored in theory in automotive literature but Prof. Flanagan said a 36-page brief he and O'Donohue submitted May 1 to the federal departments of energy and transport is probably the first concrete proposal for such a car.

'ABOUT TIME I GOT CAUGHT'

PRINCE GEORGE—"It's about time I got caught" a British Columbia hunter told a conservation officer after he had been found with illegally hunted wildlife in his possession.

And Wednesday Sylvester Supernault of Bear Lake pleaded guilty in provincial court to charges of having two muskrats and parts of moose out of season, hunting migratory birds and carrying a firearm without a licence.

He was remanded to May 23 for a pre-sentence report.

The court was told Supernault had told a conservation officer he had been hunting "this way" for 30 years.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. — Police used a battering ram Wednesday to raid the Grateful Dead Motorcycle Club and arrest five members on manslaughter charges in the stomping death of a motorist.

The Raiders, led by police superintendent Joseph Walsh, were armed with warrants charging eight persons with first degree manslaughter.

Police said Jose Sosa, 39, was dragged from his car, pounced on by members of the gang and beaten to death after a traffic incident outside the headquarters last week.

LOS ANGELES—Veteran actress Mae West filed a $100,000 suit in Los Angeles Superior Court Wednesday to stop a nude female wrestling establishment from using the name of Diamond Lil's for its business.

The actress and author of the book Diamond Lil, based on a play of the same name in which she starred, is seeking the $100,000 in punitive damages against the establishment.

WASHINGTON—U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger says he is at peace with himself because he believes his basic foreign policy decisions in the past six and a half years were correct.

He also says it would ill serve the U.S. for him to resign at a time of international upheaval, so long as President Ford remains confident in him.

Billion $ Dispute

LONDON (UPI) — Christina Onassis and her stepmother Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis met secretly with lawyers Wednesday to discuss the family fortune, an Onassis family spokesman disclosed today.

"There is not a lot of love lost between them," a spokesman for the late Aristotle Onassis said.

There were no details of the meeting. Miss Onassis, 24, and her stepmother are reported to be in dispute over the Onassis inheritance, estimated at $1 billion.

"I don't know exactly what happened," said spokesman Nigel Neilson. "But it is certainly safe to assume that the question of finances was one of the things discussed."

Mrs. Onassis flew to Athens after the meeting. Her stepdaughter went to Nassau, the Bahamas, following two days of talks with oil company officials about her father's business.

Christina left little doubt that she plans to run the shipping empire left behind by her late father. She refused to talk to reporters and, Neilson said, was bewildered by photographers who followed her everywhere.

FORD LOSES LICENCE

DETROIT (UPI) — Henry Ford II's February drunken driving arrest in California has resulted in suspension of his Michigan driver's licence for 90 days and the addition of six penalty points to his driving record.

The Michigan secretary of state's office said Ford was notified of the action Wednesday.

The 57-year-old Ford Motor Co. chairman pleaded no contest to the California charge and was fined $375 and placed on two years' probation.

Pilot 'Not Guilty' In Hash Haul

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — Claude Genet, 42, a Canadian pilot charged with importing more than $1 million worth of hashish into Canada, was found not guilty in magistrate's court Wednesday.

Magistrate R. B. Wong said he was unable to say beyond any doubt that the defendant was guilty.

Throughout the trial, Genet said he knew nothing of the 350 pounds of hashish aboard his plane on a return trip from Casablanca, Morocco.

Michael Dijoux, a landed immigrant from France, who had chartered the plane for the flight, was convicted of importing illegal drugs and sentenced to seven years in prison after pleading guilty in a Yellowknife, N.W.T., court April 7.

The new Fiat 131.
It's not a dream car.
It's a reality car.

Part of most everybody's dream has been the dream car. Bigger than it had to be, more powerful than it had to be, more expensive than it had to be. More a symbol of having arrived than a practical means of getting somewhere.

The way things are today, you'd assume that the dream car would have seen its end. But somehow it persists. Despite all the whoopla you've been hearing, in 1975 the average car made in Canada will weigh 4000 pounds and get 16 miles a gallon.*

At Fiat we've never shared the idea of a dream car.

Instead, we've built our cars to deal with the world as it really is.

The new Fiat 131 is our latest and most advanced extension of this idea.

The 131 squarely faces the problem of survival. If you've gotten used to trading in your car every 2 or 3 years, the 131 should come as a pleasant surprise.

The engine was tested for over a million miles. The valves last twice as long as ordinary valves. The piston rings are plated with chromium. They last far longer than ordinary rings.

The 131 faces the problem of rust. Its entire underbody is sealed against the elements. The exhaust system is made of special steel, impervious to corrosion.

The 131 faces up to the inevitability of accidents. The passenger compartment has been engineered with particular attention to safety. It has horizontal steel rings at the floor, waist and roof. The gas tank is tucked away against a pressed-steel bulkhead immediately behind the back seat. The steering column collapses should there be a head-on collision.

The 131 gives passengers in the front seat more legroom than the Cadillac El Dorado. Yet it is shorter than a Vega. It deals very nicely with parking and traffic.

Last, the 131 faces the spiraling costs of owning a car. It's designed to be economical, not just on gas, but on day-to-day maintenance and repair.

In times like these, isn't the reality car starting to sound more and more like a dream?

UVic Students Appeal for Jobs

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Five University of Victoria students Wednesday addressed a special directors meeting of Victoria Chamber of Commerce and urged merchants to hire more young people despite their lack of experience.

University students might not have developed all the necessary skills but they all have learned problem-solving techniques that enable them to learn new tasks quickly, the chamber was told.

Unemployment is unusually high among university students this year because of the general business recession.

Anne Forester, representing students in post-graduate studies, said many Victoria businesses could profit from the hiring of a university student to carry out research projects.

"The one skill all graduate students must develop is writing reports based on research. It seems to me that it might be very profitable for all concerned if you were to ask graduate students to work for you this summer and in years ahead to come in an do that study that you have been meaning to do for some time but never found the time for," Mrs. Forrester said.

"It could be anything at all; consumer research, a new market survey, writing the history of your company."

Peter Chapman, a biology student, said that in many ways university students are at a disadvantage in the job market when competing with students from technical schools who have mastered specific skills.

However, the lack of specific training and the lack of experience are not great handicaps in most jobs because they can be learned quickly. An exception might be the trades, Chapman said.

"An interesting paradox is the attitude of employers who often require a university degree for jobs that are entirely unrelated to any university field of study.

"I am not sure why this should be and whether employers look for someone with a degree or, rather, what a degree stands for," Chapman said.

"However, I hope that in any dealings with university students you will consider the difference."

J. W. Horne, a student in the large and varied arts and science faculty, said students may lack experience but usually have imagination, some leadership abilities and a demonstrated ability to learn.

"If what you need is someone to produce the company publication or set up the advertising campaign for that new product or service, we have creative writing, English or psychology graduates to satisfy that need," Horne said.

"On the other hand, if you need managerial or administrative assistance, perhaps a political science or economics graduate is the answer. The possibilities are limited only by your imagination," Horne said.

Tom Dutton, a student in the department of physics, said smaller businesses are hesitant to hire university graduates because they might feel the student will want a large salary just because he has a degree.

"In a lot of cases, and certainly my own, that is not the reason why we have gone to university. Most of us seek employment which is interesting and beneficial but not necessarily lucrative," Dutton said.

Richard Thomas, student in the school of public administration, said businessmen should be aware that graduates are equipped to work in both public and private administration.

McHaffie announced the results of the election of directors for the new chamber season. The directors will meet June 4 to elect officers of the chamber.

Directors elected to a two-year term were: John Ansell, Alan Emery, Don Challinor, Wilf Fraser, Bob Henderson, Bruce McKay, Mel Cooper, Bruce Walker, Ian Bolton.

Italian Concert Set

A free program of Italian music will be presented Saturday at 2 p.m. in Newcombe Auditorium.

The program will feature two Vancouver groups, the 60-voice Italian Choir in Renaissance costumes, and the Alpini Mountaineers singing and playing musical instruments.

1974 'PROBLEMS' KILL KIROV BALLET TOUR

MONTREAL (CP) — Soviet officials have turned down a proposed Canadian tour by Leningrad's Kirov Ballet because they are concerned about a repetition of certain "problems" during last year's tour by the Bolshoi Ballet, says Montreal promoter Nicholas Koudriavtzeff.

Koudriavtzeff, whose company, Canadian Concerts and Artists Inc., organized last year's tour and would have arranged the Kirov tour, said the Soviets did not give him specivic reasons, but he believes last year's defection by dancer Mikhail Baryshnikov and demonstrations by Ukrainian and Jewish groups were embarrassing to them.

He said that 10 months ago his company booked a week in June at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre for the ballet but will present a French operetta instead.

8 CARD OF THANKS

MR. AND MRS. A. IVERSON and Mary wish to express our heartfelt thanks for the many kind expressions of sympathy for the loss of our son and brother, Keith.

9 IN MEMORIAM

ALLISON—In loving memory of a Dear Dad and Grandfather Joseph, who passed away May 8th 1974, also Stepmother and Grandmother Lois who passed away May 26th, 1974.
Though your smiles have gone forever
And your hands we cannot touch
We will never lose sweet memories
Of the ones we loved so much.
—Ever remembered, Lil and Tom, Larry and Paulette, Ken, Pat and great-grandchildren.

CREED — In memory of our dear Father who passed away May 7, 1969. Sadly missed by Norma, Ray, Gordon, Randal, Glen and Michelle Creed.

FORREST — In loving memory of our dear wife and mother Robina, who passed away May 8, 1974.
Often in a sight we see,
Sometimes in a melody
Always in our hearts fond memories.
—Sadly missed, Bob, Alex, Doll and family.

HORNE—In loving memory of our dear father, Lt. Cdr. John G. Buckney Horne, M.B.E., Rtd. who passed away May 8, 1957.
"Not lost today, but every day
In our hearts you are remembered."
—Deeply missed by his loving family.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

Salsify Oddity Image Unjustified

Salsify is some kind of an oddity to most gardeners, and its common names of Oyster Plant, Vegetable Oyster, Hairy Parsnip, have done nothing to improve its image.

As soon as we get away from the idea it has a "fishy" taste, and realize its only similarity to a parsnip is its tapered root, we can enjoy the distinctly nutty flavor of this vegetable.

Although the plant is easy to grow and can be left in the soil for use as needed over winter, the cook runs into difficulties when preparing this vegetable for the first time.

Many cook books lightly dispense with the preparation of Salsify by saying "prepare as for parsnip". When this is done the home cook is horrified to see the roots turn brown to black before they reach the saucepan.

The tap-root is covered with fine hair roots which have to be removed. To prevent discoloration, scraping and cutting has to be done under an acid solution made by adding lemon juice or vinegar to the water.

To my way of thinking, a much easier method is given in some European cookbooks. Their method is to wash the roots in cld water, then place them in a saucepan of boiling water, to which a teaspoonful of vinegar has been added.

The roots are about eight inches long and usually need to be cut in half to fit the saucepan. The cutting, if necessary, is done right over the pan so that the air does not have time to discolor the cut.

After boiling for about 15 minutes, drain off the liquid and rub the roots with a rough cloth. The skin and hair roots then come off easily.

With two strikes against it, the tendency to discolor and its link with oysters, cooks have not exploited its possibilities. Outside of boiling like parsnips or frying in a batter (always served smothered with the ubiquitous thick white sauce) little imagination has been used.

Its nutty flavor should be good in a raw salad if quickly covered with yogurt mixed with lemon juice to prevent rapid discoloration.

Like Chinese cabbage, it seems to have been ignored by nutritionists, for it is not present in any list of chemicals, minerals or vitamins.

Like all tap-root vegetables, salsify prefers a loose fine-textured soil that has been deeply prepared. It has an excellent flavor when grown in a clay soil, providing the soil has been finely broken and well mixed with compost. Also in common with other tap-roots, the crop is not a sucesss on soils that have been recently dressed with barnyard or horse manure.

To prepare our clay soils for this crop we have to wait until they dry out in May; therefore seed is sown as soon as the soil is ready.

The roots are about one-and-one-half inches in diameter at the top. so the seed is dropped three to four inches apart in the row.

This spacing eliminates the need for thinning, a tricky thing to do since damaged roots bleed badly and are useless. Care must also be taken in weeding, cultivating, and then harvesting the roots.

As with parsnips, the first roots are lifted in late September to early October, the remainder being left in the soil until needed. The entire crop is used before new growth starts in the spring.

Allotment gardeners can store a two or three week supply by placing the roots in boxes of dry sand as they are dug. The home gardener can do the same in bad weather. The roots shrivel if left exposed to the air.

Groups Urge Williams To Ban Giant Marina

Environmental groups today asked Resource Minister Bob Williams to stop the development of a giant marina in Saanichton Bay on the grounds that studies show the project would have a significant impact on the environment of the bay.

The environmental reports were made public Wednesday by Gus Underwood, manager of the Tsawout band which opposes the construction of a 1,130-berth marina on 28 acres of land adjacent to the Central Saanich reserve.

Williams will announce Monday whether the provincial government will allow construction of the proposed marina.

In releasing the environmental reports, Underwood said the band will "take the road to militancy" if all other measures fail to stop the marina.

"For generations the band has traditonally used the bay," he said. "Then suddenly, without warning, the marina was sprung on us.

"If you think Indians have no cause for complaint on how they are treated by governments. I suggest that non-Indians study how this marina was engineered," he added.

Sierra Club president Bruce Hardy said a telegram has been sent to the minister pointing out that the bay, rich in marine life and an important bird refuge, will be seriously affected if the marina is approved.

Bob Dickout, president of the Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association, said, "It is obvious from the environmental reports that valuable wildlife resources will be lost if the marina is built in the bay."

Th report shows that eel grass beds necessary to sustain some species of birds and fish, will be destroyed by the marina.

The breakwater for the marina would also reduce the shore flow of currents and this would result in increase stagnation, pollution and affect the movement of small fish.

Another report dealing with impact the development would have on the community, states the project would have "no significant positive social impact on the Tsawout community."

Provincial Indian leader Philip Paul said Wednesday he expects the government to approve construction of the marina.

The NDP has made a number of decisions against developers since coming to power so they will feel it's time to make a concession to them in this case, he said.

He predicted there will be trouble from the Tsawout Indians if the marine project is allowed to go ahead.

U.S. TV Stations Plan Blackout Move

HAMILTON (CP) — Three Buffalo, N.Y., television stations — WGR-TV, WBEN-TV and WKBW-TV — have devised a plan to prevent their signals from reaching television sets in Toronto, Leslie G. Arries, WBEN general manager, said Tuesday.

Arries said in an interview the move is retaliation against Canadian plans to edit commercials from Buffalo signals when they are carried on cable systems in the Toronto-Hamilton area.

The proposal was revelaed earlier in the day at a public hearing of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission CRTC.

Arries said the stations soon will apply in Washington for permission to conduct a test of the system. It involves building a new transmitting tower on the south shore of Lake Ontario near the mouth of the Niagara River and broadcasting signals toward Toronto to mix with regular transmissions, causing picture distortion.

Arries said the stations have hired A. Earl Cullum Jr., an expert on radar and communications jamming from Dallas to handle planning.

Ted Rogers, head of Rogers Cable TV Ltd., Toronto, has said such efforts would be countered by cable companies which could build a new receiving station across the river from Buffalo and carry the signals by a special line.

The three Buffalo stations are paid more than $8 million a year by Toronto advertisers.

CITY POSTIES INCENSED

Postal workers throughout Canada are incensed and insulted at the latest pay increase offer from the federal government, A Victoria spokesman for the Canadian Union of Postal Workers said Wednesday.

Stan Darlington, head of the 200-member CUPW local in Victoria said the offer of $1.15 an hour increase over 32 months was "not only an insult to our people but to labor as a whole."

Darlington, talking to delegates at the Victoria Labor Council meeting, hinted that strike action could be necessary.

"There is certainly not going to be any degree of hopefulness on our part that we will achieve a settlement without bringing it home to the federal government," he said.

—Support the construction of a steel mill in B.C. as a basic step in the development of a secondary industry in the province;

—Endorse the principle of the Greenpeace Foundation's work of attempting to stop Pacific whaling operations; and —Urge the B.C. Federation of Labor to request that the Employers' Council of B.C. and the Canadian Manufacturing Association, and their affiliates, set up a program of voluntary chest x-rays for employees who may be exposed to harmful atmospheric conditions.

Lon Nol Bribe 'Failure'

Times News Services

Lon Nol, clinging to the presidency of Cambodia with his mind impaired by a stroke, was paid a $1 million bribe to resign in a last futile attempt by fellow leaders to organize an effective resistance to the Khmer Rouge Rebels, according to Nol's successor.

"We paid the price to have Lon Nol leave and the country fell anyway," mourned Saukham Khoy, last president of non-Communist Cambodia.

Lon Nol resigned two weeks before the Communists occupied Phnom Penh April 17 and fled with his family to Hawaii, where he bought a $100,000 home. He is protected there by the U.S. secret service.

Meanwhile, the last 550 foreigners trapped in Phom Penh crossed into Thailand today and several described a "dead city" littered with decomposing bodies and abandoned household goods, populated only by stray pets and Khmer Rouge soldiers.

However, earlier evacuees in accounts released today related mixed tales of killings and kindness from the Khmer Rouge victors, and one of the last women to arrive said soldiers escorting them gave them coconut milk and oranges all along the 200-mile road to the border.

In Bangkok, reliable sources said Washington has imposed a freeze on any more Cambodian and Vietnamese refugees who want to go to the United States.

POLICE UPSET

The president of the B.C. Federation of police officers has written solicitor-general Warren Allmand advising him that if he fails to do the bidding of the people on the controversial capital punishment question, he should resign.

The letter, sent Wednesday, carries a far more moderate tone than the heavily worded telegram sent by the Vancouver Policemen's Union Wednesday which outright demands Allmand's resignation.

Both the Union and Federation are upset over Allmand's statement to the press he would resign if the federal liberal cabinet over-ruled his position against capital punishment.

"It appears by your statement you place yourself above the judiciary," Frazer Macdonald, federation president wrote.

"Let me remind you that in Canada our justice system is supposed to operate without the interference of cabinet.

"You are totally wrong to assume you can overrule the decisions of the courts.

"Further, as an elected representative of the people if you fail to do the bidding of the people you should resign."

Macdonald, who is a constable with the Esquimalt police force, pointed out Allmand's view was that of only one person and should never be foreced against the will of the people.

"You are elected to serve (underlined) the public; not rule (underlined)," he wrote. "Therein lies the difference."

Trustees Elect Bunn

Peter Bunn, a Greater Victoria school board trustee, was elected vice-president of the B.C. School Trustees Association in Vancouver Wednesday.

Bunn, who was one of two BCSTA directors last year, replaces Mike Berg of Nelson who was elected president by delegates to the annual meeting of the BCSTA.

Berg defeated Eileen Madson of Windermere, who was seeking a second term as president.

Dura Awarded Hydro Contract

A $2,254,700 contract has been awarded to Dura Construction of Victoria for the addition to the B.C. Hydro building at Pandora and Blanshard.

The seven-storey office building, already under way, will incorporate the existing buildings into its design and provide accommodation for about 1,400 employees of the health department, Public Works Minister Bill Hartley said Tuesday.

Red Shield Fund Hits $90,000

The Salvation Army has raised $90,000 toward the $145,000 objective in this year's local Red Shield Appeal.

In the residential blitz Monday evening 2,000 volunteers gathered about $45,000, and more money is coming in from the business canvass.

Castro Urges U.S. To Ease Trade Ban

SENATOR DOUBTS CIA INNOCENT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Frank Church of the U.S. Senate intelligence investigation committee says he believes the Central Intelligence Agency has given an incomplete picture of its involvement in plots to assassinate foreign leaders.

Church told newsmen Wednesday statements by top CIA officials denying they took part in actual assassinations were "correct but incomplete."

But Church refused to elaborate when asked if that meant the CIA had plotted assassinations of foreign leaders such as Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, but never carried them out.

Former attorney general Nicholas Katzenbach testified at the committee's closed door session and said later CIA officials told President Lyndon Johnson in 1965 the agency had never been involved in the assassination of any foreign leader.

Katzenback recalled a meeting with Johnson and then CIA director Richard Helms in April, 1965.

"LBJ asked Helms if the CIA had ever been involved in any assassination," Katzenbach told reporters. "Tell me, I want to know," Katzenbach quoted Johnson as saying.

"Helms said flatly 'no, the CIA is not involved'," Katzenbach said.

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro has urged the United States to ease its trade embargo with Cuba, denied any Cuban role in the assassination of John F. Kennedy and charged that the CIA was behind a number of attempts on his life.

Looking into U.S. television cameras, Castro said in English:

"We wish friendship. We belong to two different worlds but we are neighbors. One way or another we owe it to ourselves to live in peace."

The Cuban prime minister held a news conference Wednesday night between private sessions with U.S. Senator George McGovern.

Castro said he felt former president Richard Nixon had "a personal hostility against Cuba and many counter-revolutionary friends" but added: "President Ford does not have any personal hostility."

"We prefer a total lifting" of the 13-year-old U.S. trade embargo, but a resumption of shipments to Cuba of food and medicine "will help a lot."

Castro has demanded a relaxation of the boycott before the two countries can negotiate other friction points such as release of U.S. prisoners in Cuba and compensation for $1.8 billion in U.S. property expropriated after Castro seized power.

Castro said any Cuban role in the slaying of a U.S. president would be "absurd, irresponsible, crazy—and a very dangerous measure."

However, he said "it is not news for us" that the CIA was involved in various attempts to kill him and other leaders of the 1959 Cuban revolution.

Castro said Kennedy was an adversary, having been president during the Bay of Pigs invasion. But Kennedy was "an intelligent man who had begun to understand the errors of his policies, and perhaps Kennedy would have made some steps toward improving relations with Cuba."

McGovern later said he had understood there were nine Americans who could be considered "political prisoners."

Europe Recalls VE Day

By The Associated Press

Europe marked the 30th anniversary today of the Allied defeat of Nazi Germany with wreaths, parades and speeches. The Soviet Union declared an amnesty for war veterans.

The Kremlin said it would release an undisclosed number of Russians from jails and labor camps under a decree timed to coincide with the celebrations of the end of the Second World War in Europe.

In Czechoslovakia, occupied by Hitler's forces before the war began in 1939, the Communist party central committee met in Prague Castle for a VE Day ceremony. Speakers, including party leader Gustav Husak, praised the Soviet army for liberating the country.

News reports said there was little jubilation among the Czechs on the anniversary.

East Germany's Communist party daily Neues Deutschland says: "We may count ourselves among the victors of history."

West Germany marked VE Day on Wednesday with a state commemoration led by President Walter Scheel. But the leadership of the opposition Christian Democrats, who feel such ceremonies no longer are necessary, did not attend.

Scheel said in Bonn: "Our former enemies celebrate (VE Day). The sacrifices they made for their victory over injustice certainly entitle them to do so. We remember their sacrifices and all the dead of the war with profound respect. We do not forget that the liberation came from outside."

More than 35 million people, military and civilian, died in Europe during the Second World War—20 million in the Soviet Union, four million Germans and 1.6 million among the Western allies.

The British government officially ignored the anniversary of VE Day. No special ceremonies were scheduled.

The 7,000 troops massed for inspection by Giscard included his old outfit, the 2nd Regiment of Dragoons in which he was a corporal at the end of the war.

The only reference to the anniversary in British newspapers was an editorial in The Guardian headlined Look Back in Agony.

It says war is futile "and this is one thing the survivors (of the Second World War) and their children need to remember, lest any of them should be misled again by military bands and a madman as the Germans were in the 1930s.

Licence Renewed To Pipe Gas South

OTTAWA (CP) — A natural gas export licence held by Canadian-Montana Pipe Line Co. has been extended at a reduced volume for one year, the National Energy Board announced Wednesday.

The board said one licence held by the company has been extended annually since it expired in 1973, giving the board time to study natural gas supply and demand.

A report on the study, expected to show shortages of the fuel developing within the next five years, is expected to be ready around the end of the month.

Meanwhile, the board said it has approved a further one-year extension to the licence, authorizing export of 10 billion cubic feet of natural gas. The company had asked for a two-year extension and total volume of about 20 billion cubic feet.

The board also said the gas exported under the temporary extensions will be deducted from the total volume of gas authorized for export under another company export permit issued in 1967 for a term of 22 years.

The effect of the measure, the board said, is to increase the amount of gas the company can export annually while at the same time not increasing the amount that can be exported during the life of the licences.

Consideration of applications for new export licences has been deferred by the board during the last year while it studied the supply board during the last year while it studied the supply and demand for natural gas.

HE DIDN'T LISTEN

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Elizabeth Blakemore warned her 79-year-old husband, Frank, not to go on a fling to the United States.

"I told him, 'you're an old man,' but he didn't listen to me," the 80-year-old wife said today in an interview from the couple's home in Crofton.

On Wednesday, Blakemore, a retired builder, met a young woman on a street in San Francisco and bought her a drink at a night club.

San Francisco police said he accepted readily when she offered to thank him by giving him coffee and breakfast at her apartment.

But when he arrived there she hit him four or five times on the head with a claw hammer, took $1,300 in Canadian bills from his pocket and then shoved him out of the apartment, said patrolmen Larry Minasian and John Murphy.

The officers said the woman called a cab for Blakemore that took him to the police station.

Blakemore was treated at hospital and released.

Mrs. Blakemore was unaware of the incident until contacted by the Times this morning. She said her husband hadn't told her where he was going when he left home Tuesday.

"I thought he was going down to Reno."

She said she had managed to dissuade him from going to the races in Vancouver but not from the trip for which he had been saving for some time.

She was surprised by the amount of money he had taken with him.

"I didn't think he had that much. I don't know what he'll do now with no money. I have none.

"I guess he'll have to hitch-hike home."

$25M Ferry Loss Seen by Strachan

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Transport Minister Bob Strachan said today operating losses for B.C. Ferries in the current fiscal year could be $25 million.

The minister blamed increased fuel costs, higher wages to ferry employees and lack of federal financial input for the losses, "vastly increased" over last year's $10.6 million.

But Opposition Leader Bill Bennett charged that the reasoning is simply a smokescreen for Strachan's financial mismanagement.

He said it indicates a "sad state of affairs". Pointing to deficits of $36.4 million in ICBC operations and a loss for B.C. Rail which Bennett estimates will be over $10 million, the opposition leader said the government can't run away from its responsibilities.

"He's responsible for the ferry authority and if he can't manage the job he should resign," said Bennett.

"The minister just doesn't want to accept the responsibilities—the government of the day is not managing people's tax dollars and it reflects (especially in the case o BCR) on Premier Barrett as the minister of finance," said Bennett.

The minister said his predictions were based only on preliminary indications and the losses have not been computed.

In October Strachan hinted there would be a $20 million loss on the year's operations.

He described the service as a social service to the people —"We have to realize it's not a straight money-making proposition."

The government is always looking at increasing passenger fares but there has been no decision.

One of the main ingredients in the loss position is the high cost of offering restaurant facilities to the passengers, he said, but the government does not intend to scrap offering the service on the ferries.

"If I get too many protests from the people that too much money is coming from general revenue to keep the ferry system operating, we'll have to look at (increasing fares).

"But we also get a large number of letters from people saying the ferries should be free."

Strachan said he is not discouraged by the financial forecast.

"The price of fuel went up three times last year, there was a good wage increase to the ferry employees, and everything we buy has gone up in price."

Crux of the matter is the federal government's refusal

Arm Sewed Back On

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 10-year-old boy's left arm, torn off in an accident in a laundromat, has been re-attached by a team of Vancouver surgeons who give the operation a "good chance" of success.

Richard Burdett, of nearby Richmond, got his uniform dirty helping his little league baseball team win a game Tuesday. That night, as he tried to retrieve the uniform from a laundromat drying machine while it was still working, his arm was caught by the whirling drum and severed between elbow and shoulder.

A surgical team at Vancouver General Hospital began re-attaching the limb within an hour of the accident, and by early Wednesday had finished the complicated job of rejoining bone, blood vessels and nerves.

"Warmth has returned to the arm and there is pulse in the wrist," one of the two surgeons who operated said Wednesday night.

Doctors and police praised the boy's mother, Mrs. Carol Burdett, who made sure that the severed arm went with her son in the ambulance.

Richard was first treated for blood loss at Richmond General Hospital and then quickly transferred to VGH, where the surgical team awaited.

If the operation is successful, it would be only the second such achievement in Canada, one doctor said.

Richmond RCMP said Richard and his mother went to the laundromat about 10 p.m. to have the boy's uniform washed and dried. After washing, the uniform was put into a coin-operated machine called a centrifugal extractor.

Police said that although a notice on the machine warns against forcing the lid open before it opens automatically at the end of its cycle, Richard apparently became impatient.

The extractor's motor stops when the lid is opened, but because the drum is turning at such a high speed it takes some seconds to stop. Police said it appeared the boy reached inside as soon as he raised the lid.

Mrs. Burdett was nearby and didn't know anything was amiss until she heard her son cry out and fall to the floor.

Summer Jobs . . . An Expert's Advice

More than 1,100 young people have registered with the Canada Manpower youth office where there are only 20 jobs on the board — but it is not quite as bad as it seems.

Every day about 20 new jobs come in — and many are filled in the first five minutes.

"We have people who wait around all day and they are first in line when a new job is posted," says Leslie Fiddler, a provincial department of labor employee assisting at the manpower office.

"There are jobs but they go quickly."

But they should check in for a short period of time every day until they find work, she said.

The unskilled jobs tend to go to the first acceptable applicant in line. The skilled jobs are different. The manpower officers will search through their lists to find fully-qualified young people.

"The next action will be in the tourist industry jobs," Fiddler said.

"There is little hope of getting summer employment with the provincial government departments now because the deadline for applications was April 16. Most young people don't realize how early they have to start. We had applications in the last week of March."

Tourist industry jobs will mainly be paying only the minimum wage but they often hire young people with no experience.

"It may not sound like much taking a job as a chambermaid — or perhaps I should say chamberperson — but the work experience is as important as the money. There are a lot of hotels and motels in Victoria and they are all going to need additional staff for the summer."

She said the commonly-heard advice about knocking on as many doors as possible might prove to be counter-productive.

It might be better, she said, to knock on just a few doors on a regular basis so the owner gets to know you.

"If they know you and are impressed, they will hire you as soon as they can. The

CLICHE REPORT PROTEST HALTS OLYMPIC WORK

MONTREAL (CP)—Work at the main Olympic site in the city's east-end was halted today when about 250 construction workers walked off the job, a spokesman for one of the Olympic contractors said.

"Everything has come to a standstill," the spokesman said. "I don't know how long the work stoppage will last."

A spokesman for the Olympic organizing committee said the protest was against the Cliche commission report which recommended four union locals affiliated to the Quebec Federation of Labor be put under trusteeship.

In a related move, construction workers also walked off the job today at two Montreal refineries.

At Petrofina's refinery all 350 construction workers did not report for work and have caused a virtual shutdown of the construction site, the company said.

Supertankers To Anacortes?

SEATTLE (AP) — Shell Oil Co. is planning a sea-island oil terminal capable of handling supertankers at a spot near its Anacortes refinery, company officials say.

Refinery manager Bill Malseed said in an interview the sea island could be operating in Guemes Channel by 1978. It would rest above 70 feet of water about 1,000 feet off the Shell pier at March Point.

He said the $25 million facility could handle easily two 180,000 dead weight ton tankers Shell has on order. The biggest tanker previously to visit Puget Sound was one weighing 138,299 dead weight tons.

Malseed said the terminal would be an offshore pier or deep-water platform that could handle up to three tankers per month unloading crude oil cargoes.

Oil would be pumped ashore via an undersea pipeline to storage tanks. Smaller ships carrying refined products to California would continue to call at Shell's land-based pier.

CIDA Hid Loan—MPs

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Charges that CIDA, the Canadian International Development Agency, had concealed from parliament and the public that it was providing loans and grants totalling $23.5 million to Cuba, were made in the Commons Wednesday.

Confidential CIDA documents were obtained by the Ottawa Journal. They indicated agreement had been reached by the government agency's top officials at a meeting last December to announce only that $12.5 million was going to Cuba. The Journal published the documents in pat Wednesday.

Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp said if the opposition had questions to raise about CIDA they should put them to External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen in the house. The minister was absent from the Commons.

Sharp suggested the opposition use one of its alloted days in the house to question the minister on the charges.

Two Progressive Conservative MPs raised the issue. They were A. D. Alkenbrack (Frontenac-Lennox) and Dan McKenzie (Winnipeg-South Centre).

Alkenbrack attempted to introduce a motion calling for the cancellation of all payments of aid by CIDA to Cuba

Strachan to Fight Body Shop Hikes

The time may have come for the Insurance Corporation of B.C. to start signing with selected auto body shops in the province. Transport Minister Bob Strachan said Wednesday.

Strachan, interviewed on an open line radio program in Vancouver, said the ICBC may have to consider a new system of authorized body shops to avoid what he called unilateral harassment by some shop operators in B.C.

While Strachan was on the program, he was informed for the first time that auto body shops in Victoria plan a substantial increase in rates, over and above the ICBC-approved rate.

The body shops will raise the rate May 15 from $15.50 an hour to $20 an hour.

Strachan said he didn't know how long the corporation could stand the unauthorized rate hikes. He said his reports indicate that the body shops are doing very well under Autoplan.

A spokesman in Strachan's department today explained how an authorized body shop system would work.

The ICBC would negotiate rates with certain body shops around the province and then authorize those shops as Autoplan shops. A motorist with an accident claim would have to take the work to one of the authorized shops. The ICBC would not pay for any work done in a shop which was not authorized under Autoplan.

Individual contracts would be signed with the authorized shops instead of the present system where a province-wide rate is negotiated between the ICBC and the Automotive Retailers' Association representing shop operators.

There are indications today that other body shops in B.C. may also be planning rate hikes similar to those announced for the Victoria area.

A meeting of shop operators on northern Vancouver Island will be held in Parksville Monday to discuss possible implementation of new rates.

Tom Brown, a Nanaimo operator, said some sort of price adjustment is needed "just to let us keep even."

Body shops are now entering contract negotiations with employees and owners are expecting to pay hefty wage increases.

Bob Mussalem, chairman of the Lower Mainland ARA division, said his unit may also be planning rate hikes to about $19.05 an hour and later to $19.95 or $20 an hour.

Viet Refugees in Canada

Times News Services

A total of 153 Vietnamese refugees arrived in Canada by plane today and were taken immediately to a downtown hotel for customs and immigration processing as well as medical checkups.

Twenty refugees arrived in Vancouver, but moved on immediately; two for Edmonton, five for Toronto. The rest flew onto Montreal.

The refugees are the first of about 3,000 being admitted into the country by the federal government in the next several weeks.

On arrival in Montreal aboard a Canadian Forces Boeing 707 jetliner, the refugees, many smiling some crying after the flight from Honolulu, were whisked downtown by waiting buses. A number of children were among the arrivals.

Immigration spokesman Patrick Gaudreau said the refugees now would under an introduction to the Canadian way of life including everything from how banks work to language instruction and job training.

He said the process could take from five days to several months.

Officials were careful not to allow close contact with the refugees, saying that most had not been properly vaccinated.

They were met in Montreal by Jeanne Sauve, federal environment minister, representing immigration minister Robert Andras, as well as immigration officials and representatives of the newly formed Committee of Assistance for Vietnamese Orphans and Refugees from the Montreal Vietnamese community.

The spokesman said most of the Vietnamese would be settling in Quebec.

Child Trampled

Two-year-old Tracy Buie is in fair condition in the pediatric intensive care unit of Victoria General Hospital after she was trampled on by a cow this morning at her parents' farm at 4546 Strafford Place. The child is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Dan Buie. Dr. Buie is a Victoria physician.

Barrett Set To Discuss Indian Claim

FORT ST. JAMES (CP) A spokesman for the Stuart-Trembleur Indian Band said Wednesday Premier Barrett wants leaders of the band to meet him in Victoria to discuss their claim against the British Columbia Railway.

Justa Monk said the ban, which for more than a week has blocked the B.C. Rail line on its Tachie Reserve 28 miles northest of here, was advised that the premier is anxious to meet with them.

'Two for Price of One' . . . MPs' Wives Want Pay

OTTAWA (CP)—The wives of some MPs and diplomats say they should get money—or at least a little recognition—for toiling on behalf of their husbands.

Several wives of parliamentarians and diplomats told a seminar here Wednesday that it is time they went on the government payroll for their tasks as hostesses, secretaries and managers or ambitious husbands.

They said a husband's election to the Commons or posting to a foreign country uproots families, cuts short the independent careers of many women and forces wives into unpaid jobs as public servants.

But others said women should be content to do what they can to support their husbands and not push for more independence.

The seminar, sponsored by the Parliamentary Wives' Association, showed widely diverging views between younger and older women on whether the public is getting "two for the price of one" when MPs are elected or diplomats are sent abroad.

Laurette Watts, wife of a diplomat, said she must give up her government policy analyst's job to follow her husband to a posting at the Canadian embassy in Washington.

Such moves are fine for the husband, Mrs. Watts said, "but what about our responsibilities towards ourselves and our own development?" She said the government should consider some form of compensation for wives who interrupt their own careers.

Mauren McTeer, wife of MP Joe Clark PC-Rocky Mountain), said MPs should not be criticized for hiring their wives at government expense to work in their offices.

"Who knows the riding better than the spouse?" Ms. McTeer asked. She said she was startled by criticism of Liberal MP Jim Fleming (York West) when he hired his wife Ilona, to work in his parliamentary office.

Eunice Raines, wife of Marke Raines (L-Burnaby-Seymour) said she is "appalled and dismayed" at the amount of work her husband is expected to do. She would gladly sign any petition to grant MPs more time at home with their families and said MPs need a union to fight for better working conditions.

Evelyn Munro, wife of Donald Munro, a former diplomat who now is Conservative MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, said women should consider it a privilege to support their husband's careers.

"Being part of your husband's life should be your career," Mrs. Munro said. "It is up to us to give 100 per cent effort and anything else comes later. Do not let the side down."

By the Sea, By the Sea By the Beautiful Sea

Our notes here the other day on the sheer physical invigoration of a trip into the interior of the province prompted an amusing letter from a gent who has retired from his work in Prince George and will spend his remaining years in Victoria — in an apartment on Dallas Road, to be exact, just across the street from the mysterious sea.

"Yes," he notes, having digested my delight in the joys bof mountain air, "but would you want to live there?"

It's a letter that practically demands some reflection on the curse and the pleasures of living by tidewater which, with very brief and enforced periods, has been the story of my life.

The curse is that a man who has spent this many years by salt water is simply incapable of living anywhere else with complete contentment. I'm often asked why I left Toronto and what may have been the best newspaper job in the country. The absolute, crazy truth is that I couldn't live a full life when the nearest ocean was a thousand or more miles away.

I am not at all sure that this may be explained by the theory of the late Rachel Carson and others who have suggested that, since we all crawled from the sea a great many centuries ago, we have a subconscious pull toward it. They have called it "Mother Sea" for that reason. Well, that's a bit vast for a brain the size of mine. But, for any number of reasons, I am drawn to it hypnotically and you could say that my life has been dictated by that pull.

It is by no means an isolated affliction. Anyone who has spent a few weeks exposed to it develops a case of sea fever that will last a lifetime. Whenever I meet my old friend Arthur Mayse, himself a beach dweller for most of his life and a man who has written some of the most beautiful and memorable accounts of it, we end up talking of how lucky we've been to be waterfront dwellers, though it's cost us both whatever small fame or fortune might otherwise have come our way.

One attraction certainly is the incredible number of moods that any stretch of contemplated ocean water present to the viewer. Years ago, when we moved to a beach on Salt Spring Island, I jotted down notes from time to time on the many faces of Booth Bay, ranging from an absolutely motionless haze to the kind of complete fury that hit us on the windy Easter weekend. The project was eventually abandoned simply because that bay is hardly ever the same from one day to the next. Only the gulls, the crows, the heron standing, long-legged, at low tide, the diving ducks, are constant.

There is, too, the magical delivery system of the ceaseless tide which, eventually, makes every waterfornt man a compulsive beachcomber. I'm often told about Sid Barron, the artist and Toronto Star cartoonist who lives in James Bay and is said to have a home-full of objects from the beach — gnarled bits of driftwood, buoys, stones and shells and the rest — and have heard him described as an eccentric for this reason.

But at this moment on any stretch of strand in the wide world — on the rocky, Atlantic coast of Brazil, on the channel tide flats at Calais, along the Capetown shore — there are people involved in precisely this kind of salvage job.

There is not a morning that passes, whatever chores I may have for the day, that I don't begin with a preliminary survey of what the tide has brought in. There is, in fact, a breed that will find a use for almost anything that has been washed ashore. Thus, this week, when the beach was littered with tiny, orange, deep-water starfish, no bigger than your hand, loosened by the dragging nets of the shrimp boats from Crofton, the beach was suddenly crowded with people who took them away for reasons that I'll probably never know.

We, ourselves, over the years, have had a more or less constant supply of firewood and building materials delivered by the pull of the moon to our front door. Mayse, himself, has written with characteristic awe of the occasional bark tide when the beach is covered by the best of all burning wood, sometimes in great, long slabs from the hide of firs.

This very week we've had a delivery of the finest of all garden growers, a long line of seaweed that looks exactly like chopped spinach. The trick here is to wait until the tide is about half way in, at which point the small waves have nudged it along the edge of the beach in a thick, lava-like scallop of aromatic greenery, and you simply rake it into piles. Vegetables and flowers of every kind take to it as a baby takes to mother's milk.

It has been a week, too, when, making my first morning survey from the porch, I saw a flat-bottom, plywood rowboat drifting empty around the point so that everything had to come to a halt while we rowed out for the salvage. One side, the side we could not see, turned out to have been stove in, but it may be repaired by the inevitable neighbor who is handy at such things and anyway, as I say, anything looks better than it is when it comes from nowhere.

You are forever conscious, as well, that the sea, so constantly beautiful, may also be cruel. I think of our neighbor, Ruth Heinekey who, walking the beach one serene, slumbering morning after a gale, was confronted by the body of a man whose skiff, overloaded with clams, had gone down in the storm, and in our own time here a half dozen persons have gone down forever in those innocent-looking depths.

Our own brushes with such disasters have been more comical than tragic. I think of the afternoon when a woman swimmer, out in the bay, suddenly began to thrash about and call for help. My wife and I ran to our dinghy, to which a small, outboard motor was attached. As we staggered down the beach my wife's bikini top slid to her waist and when we had finally reached the swimmer and I manouvered the boat to bring her in the raised motor conked her smartly across the back of the head. She was suddenly swimming strongly for the shore, escaping the greater menace of her rescuers than the sea itself.

That very same evening, sitting on the proch, watching the rising of a full moon, we heard thin, piteous cries for help far out in the channel. Since our outboard was in its usual state of unresponsiveness we rowed out into the darkening night, straining on the oars for at least a mile and a half. At the point of total exhaustion we could see the hull of the small cruiser ahead and rowed on desperately. At that point the engine of the cruiser roared into life and it disappeared, never to be seen again.

Well, I've written the Dallas Road gent to tell him all this and to explain why we could never live up there in the interior, though, Lord knows, it is a grand place to visit.

Five-Mill Tax Hike For City

Victoria city council today gave first readings to its $33.2 million budget bylaw for 1975, which makes provision for a $4.4 million hike in municipal expenditures and involves a mill-rate increase of slightly less than five mills.

The levy for general city purposes is established at 43.48 mills this year, 4.96 mills higher than the 1974 rate.

But levies for education, hospital purposes, the regional district, and the B.C. Assessment Authority added to the city requisition bring the combined mill-rate to 89.97 mills—a 13.61-mill increase over last year.

Finance committee chairman Ald. Sam Bawlf today explained that the budget in its present form is a "best-guess" document which, due to the difficulties of the civic dispute, had to be prepared without the usual preliminary of thorough departmental expenditure reviews.

But once the budget is adopted to meet the May 15 deadline under the Municipal Act, those detailed studies will be carried out and adjustments made, he said.

"That will probably be done with more vigor than at any time in the city's recent history," Bawlf added. "We have a mandate to cut costs wherever possible."

Firemen First To Order Smoke Alarms

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Saanich is introducing a fire safety program unique in Canada.

Long advocated by Chief Harold Gains, the municipality will sell smoke detectors to residents for less than $50.

Gains says if the program catches on provincially it will save lives and reduce fire premium costs.

The smoke detectors are easy to screw into the ceiling and blend with their surroundings. They're an ionization type, sensitive to combustible products in the air, and powered by seven batteries.

The batteries, Gains says, will last from a year to 18 months and can be replaced for $6.

"Battery-powered detectors are better than electrical ones," Gains said. "If fire knocked out an electrical system then people would be left without a warning system."

Saanich will call tenders for the devices next week and Gains said delivery could be expected within a month.

The council voted Monday to buy 500 and by Tuesday all 18 firemen on duty had ordered one. Municipal administrator Bill Tremayne also ordered one.

Gains said residents are already phoning and asking to be put on the list.

Purchasers must show proof they live in Saanich and indications are there will be many repeat orders.

The only other similar program Gains knows of is run by the borough of Monroeville in Pennsylvania.

It ordered 2,000 detectors as an initial introduction, selling 1,900 of them in 60 days. Now the borough requires the devices be installed in all single-family homes and duplexes.

As a result of this over-all use of devices, the borough has a .3 per cent drop in fire insurance rates for all its residents.

Chief Gain and his compact life-saver

"I've phoned the underwriters to see if our rates could be affected," Gains said. "I was told if the devices were used on a much broader base, say provincially, there would be a re-examination of their ratings."

Gains is hoping residents in other municipalities of the Greater Victoria area will contact their fire departments if they are interested in obtaining this modestly-priced protection.

"If the other chiefs feel as I do the service could spread. Not only would the devices be saving lives, they would also be saving an awful lot of property so lower insurance rates would be justified."

The fire marshal's department in Vancouver has approved the project.

The chief quelled fears of some residents that they could be away on holidays and return after two or three weeks, not knowing the batteries that power the detector are dead.

"They'll have ample warning," Gains said. "There's a two-week toning device that will give intermittent tones when the batteries are getting low."

Gains said he would like to see all apartments and single-family homes fitted with the devices.

"Ninety-nine people out of 100 don't die of burns, they die of asphyxiation," Gains said. "The detectors, which have a three-year warranty, are very reliable, and will give people ample time to get out of the house."

The detectors will be sold at the main firehall on Vernon.

Bawlf Rejects Mass Heritage Designation

Victoria's Heritage Advisory Committee today urged city council to designate 133 buildings in the city's central area as heritage structures, but committee chairman Ald. Sam Bawlf dissociated himself from the recommendation.

In an interview before this afternoon's regular council meeting, where the committee's report was to be presented, Bawlf said he would explain to fellow-aldermen that he feels designation of all the suggested buildings is "definitely not warranted at this time."

"In bringing this recommendation forward I think they are being premature," he added.

Bawlf explained that he had authorized an "informal gathering" of the committee so that some progress could be made during his absence last month. The meeting was attended by only three members.

The likely result of council consideration of the report today would be a request for reappraisal of the heritage list by the full committee, he said.

The committee recently published a fully-illustrated "Heritage Conservation Report" listing 133 buildings as "deserving primary and immediate attention by council," and it is these structures which the committee today recommended for designation.

Of the total, 95 are privately owned and the remainder either government-owned or under some form of quasi-public ownership, such as churches and clubs.

Heritage designation is a procedure under the Municipal Act which permits municipalities to protect historically and esthetically valued older buildings. Any building so designated cannot be demolished or altered externally without specific council approval.

In other recommendations aimed at stimulating "revitalization" of the central area's heritage architecture, the Heritage Advisory Committee today proposed:

—Establishment of a heritage office to administer heritage designation bylaws and advise on improvements to older buildings;

—A renewed civic clean-up and paint-up program;

—And further approaches to senior governments for legislative changes that would assist preservation efforts.

Among the legislative changes earlier suggested by the committee is one that would give municipalities the power to stall for 30 days the issuance of a demolition permit where that would conflict with a heritage designation bylaw in course of preparation.

It also proposed "conditional" demolition permits, under which the holders would be required to preserve listed architectural features, or turn over to public custody artifacts that would otherwise be destroyed.

Disabled Victorian Honored

He received an award established in 1969 which recognizes disabled persons who, through their own efforts, establish themselves and encourage others to do the same.

Lidster, who is blind, paralyzed from the chin down as a result of rheumatoid arthritis, is the author of No Time for Why, a book which describes how he came to terms with his disabilities.

Lidster said today he doesn't know the nature of the award and can only imagine it is some kind of certificate.

In it he said disabled people are "on the threshold of the most exciting productive period ever faced by them."

He said concern in the community for disabled people is growing and electronic devices are giving disabled persons a greater measure of independence and a greater opportunity to live nearer to a normal pattern of life.

Disabled people, he said, don't need to be depressed.

No Time for Why was published in 1973. He won first prize in 1957 in an essay contest sponsored by the Canadian Council for the Blind.

Suspect in Murder Picked Up in City

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Canadian Immigration officials in Victoria are holding a 23-year-old man whom they believe is wanted to face charges in Lebanon, Indiana, for a 1972 murder and attempted murder.

The arrest came as a shock to Jenkins' employer Fred Von Ilberg who described him as "a personable fellow, a first-class person."

Jenkins had been employed with Von Ilberg's firm, F.V.I. Development and Management Ltd., for the past seven months as a carpenter's helper.

"He was one of my best men, a very fine worker and I'll have trouble replacing him."

Von Ilberg said he received a call from Colwood RCMP Cpl. Ed Currie at 3 p.m. asking him to meet him at a restaurant on Pat Bay Highway to discuss a matter pertaining to one of his employees.

He said police told him Jenkins had been discovered through a credit check.

Von Ilberg, together with Currie and RCMP Constable Rick Lewis returned to the job site at 4 p.m. where Jenkins was arrested.

"John's fellow workers were completely flabbergasted," Von Ilberg said.

According to Von Ilberg and other sources, Jenkins had worked for a short time with Rubber Ducky Divers in Victoria measuring diving suits and before that had lived in Vancouver.

Immigration official Doug Cook said Jenkins entered Canada last September but other sources indicated the wanted man had been living in this country, mainly on the west coast for more than two years. Jenkins and his Canadian girlfriend, who was unaware of his background, rented a home on Stelly's Cross Road.

Jane Castle, city editor of the Lebanon Reporter, told the Times that Jenkins had been indicted following a shoot-out in August, 1972 on a farm southwest of Lebanon that left one man dead and another paralysed for life. She said Jenkins disappeared after the shootings. His car was discovered at an Indiana airport six weeks later.

She said Jenkins was married at the time. His wife is now believed to reside in nearby Indianapolis.

Jenkins has retained Victoria lawyer Brian Smith to represent him at an immigration inquiry expected to be held either later today or early Friday.

Women Plan Outrage Day

Women's groups in Victoria are planning a rally and march to the legislature Saturday to mark Outrage Day, which has been called to protest government inaction on issues affecting women's rights.

The rally will start at 2 p.m. with a meeting at the Law Courts, 740 Burdett.

The group will also be demanding freedom for Dr. Henry Morgentaler, the Montreal doctor convicted for performing illegal abortions earlier this year.

Sports Car Hits Tree, Driver Dies

Twenty-year-old Paul Charles Whillans of 1315 Gladstone was killed Wednesday night when his sports car crashed into a large oak tree at West Saanich Road and Stelly's Cross Road.

Whillans, who would have been 21 in four days and was engaged, was dead on arrival at Royal Jubilee Hospital soon after the accident which occurred at 11:05 p.m. He was the only occupant in the car.

Central Saanich police chief Bob Miles said officers at the scene estimated the car was travelling at between 90 and 100 mph when it failed to round a turn in the road, hit a sign, a telephone guy-wire and slammed sideways into the tree.

Miles said the car was demolished. Shreds of glass from the windshiled were hurled 250 feet down the road.

Hospital Day Proclaimed But There'll Be No Show

Health Minister Dennis Cocke has proclaimed Monday Hospital Day but you won't be able to tell the difference at the area's major hospitals.

Overcrowded and over-extended, the Victoria General Hospital will be unable to be able to come through with a special show.

"We're holding off until we have something to show," a spokesman said.

Oak Bay Ald. Doug Watts, chairman of the hospital's board, said "The Victoria General Hospital is still experiencing peak occupancy with extra beds set up in all available areas such as sunrooms, classrooms and conference rooms."

Medical administrator of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, Dr. A. C. Pickles, said the hospital's facilities and personnel were stretched to the limit.

The Gorge Road Hospital, also, plans no special events.

The one exception in the area is the Saanich Peninsula Hospital at 2166 Mount Newton Cross Roads.

The extended care hospital, which has 75 patients, will hold an open house guided tour and tea from 2 to 4 p.m. and mount displays of work done by the patients.

Telephones Disrupted

About one-third of the incoming trunk telephone lines serving southeastern Victoria were put out of service this morning by malfunctioning computer switching equipment and B.C. Telephone Co. planned to keep them idle until late tonight.

A spokesman said half the automated equipment was deliberately switched off to avoid overtaxing the remaining circuits in the 592-598 series of prefixes.

The breakdown about 9 a.m. affected 92 of 240 trunks that carry calls from the 64,000 subscribers in the 38- zone to the 59- series, which are mainly in Oak Bay and South Fairfield.

17% Tax Increase for Saanich

Saanich residents are facing a hike of 5.85 mills in the general mill rate and an average increase of 15 to 17 per cent in their over-all taxes.

In the second of two budget sessions which ended at midnight Wednesday, council brought down a total budget of $25.8 million, $17.3 million for municipal services.

Council had given department heads notice before the budget sessions that the increase in mill rate from 40.38 was not to rise higher than 47 mills.

Comptroller-treasurer Roy Broughton said today the edict was made to hold the line in an emergency situation.

In the public works budget of $1,613,000, for example, no priorities were established. Projects will be funded in order of necessity.

People with sewered homes in the municipality will get a break.

"On the bright side," Broughton said, "Thanks to the provincial government's sewerage facilities assistance grant for work in excess of $3 million, the parcel tax has been reduced $11, from $36.70 to $25.70. There's also a reduction in the levy based on land assessment. On a $50,000 home this will amount to $9."

In a sewered home valued at $50,000, the net increase in the general municipal tax would be $30 because of the $20 reduction in sewer taxes. The over-all increase to the home-owner, including school taxes, hospitals, would bring the total increase to $103 in School District 61.

Because of the rise in school taxes in School District 63 (from 31.55 mills to 42.95 mills) the over-all increase in taxes to an owner of a home valued at $50,000 will be $168.

The big increase in school-tax in School Distict 63, will jump the over-all increase in taxes to about 25 per cent.

The budget for garbage collection was lopped by $100,000 and set at $634,800. Broughton said the engineering department has been askeed to review the garbage collection situation and come up with recommendations to cut costs.

Uncertain Pattern At Toronto

Analysts said many investors find little to stimulate a revival of buying interest and are waiting on the sidelines for a trend to develop.

Volume by 2 p.m. was 1.02 million shares, down from 1.25 million at the same time Wednesday.

Advances were ahead of declines 167 to 149 with 196 issues unchanged.

Molson B was up 1⅛ to $17¼, Canadian Tire A1 to $48½, Banister Continental ⅞ to 8⅛, Versatile Manufacturing ¾ to $9⅜ and Skyline Hotels ¾ to $6.

Western Supply A was off 1½ to $21½, Dome Pete ⅝ to $27⅝ and Canadian P

9 IN MEMORIAM

ALLISON—In loving memory of a Dear Dad and Grandfather Joseph, who passed away May 8th 1974, also Stepmother and Grandmother Lois who passed away May 26th, 1974.
Though your smiles have gone forever
And your hands we cannot touch
We will never lose sweet memories
Of the ones we loved so much.
—Ever remembered, Lil and Tom, Larry and Paulette, Ken, Pat and great-grandchildren.

CREED — In memory of our dear Father who passed away May 7, 1969. Sadly missed by Norma, Ray, Gordon, Randal, Glen and Michelle Creed.

FORREST — In loving memory of our dear wife and mother Robina, who passed away May 8, 1974.
Often in a sight we see,
Sometimes in a melody
Always in our hearts fond memories.
—Sadly missed, Bob, Alex, Doll and family.

HORNE—In loving memory of our dear father, Lt. Cdr. John G. Buckney Horne, M.B.E., Rt'd. who passed away May 8, 1957.
"Not just today, but every day
In our hearts you are remembered."
—Deeply missed by his loving family.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
